STOCK RALLY CONTINUES; MONEY EASES

Wave of Selling Sweeps Over Market During Morning Carrying Several Leaders Down.

SOLVENTS STOCK JUMPS 45 POINTS

Renewal of Selling Pressure Against Some Issues Turns Course of Market Irregular at Close.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 8.—Renewal of selling presure against some of the recent favorites turned the general course of prices irregular just before the close of today's market, but final quotations were generally higher. Extreme gains in the active issues ranged from 2 to nearly 10 points, with a few high-priced specialties showing larger advances, but these were interspersed with a number of 1 to 5 point declines.

Trading showed a marked falling off in volume, the day's sales falling below 3,800,000 shares.

Recurrent rumors that large blocks of stocks bought for supporting purposes last week were overhanging the market, coupled with prediction that the weekly Federal Reserve brokers' loan statement would show a much smaller decrease than generally expected, had a disturbing effect on speculative sentiment. U. S. Steel common which rallied from 216 to 221¼ fell back to 219, unchanged on the day. Eastman Kodak, U. S. Industrial Alcohol and Western Union lost a substantial part of their early gains. General Electric fell 4½ points below last night's close and Montgomery Ward showed a net loss of more than 3 points.

Solvents Up 45 Points.

Commercial Solvents, which sold down to 550 in last week's break, soared 45 points to 655. America Machine and Foundry ran up 20¾ to a new high at 279¾, and closed at the top. Warren Bros. soared 14¼ points to a new high at 206¾. American Bank Note, R. H. Macy, National Lead, Ludlum Steel, Otis Steel, May Department Stores, International Business Machines and Columbian Carson closed 6 to 12 points higher, the last-named touching a new high record.

Foreign exchanges held firm in quiet trading. Sterling Cables ruled steady around $4.86¼.

Call Money Plentiful.

Call money renewed at 6¼ per cent, with the supply so plentiful that the rate was dropped to 6. Time money was reported to be available at 8¾ per cent for all maturities, which contrasts with a rate of 8¾ to 9 yesterday, and a high of 9 to 9¼ last week.

There was virtually no demand for new accommodation, this explaining the ease subsequent to the fixing of renewals. The situation was doubly interesting by reason of the fact that the rate on day loans at London closed at 6 per cent, bringing the rate there in line with that prevailing in the New York market. Close followers of this situation are satisfied that continuation of this relation for any length of time must eventually result in a substantial flow of funds from New York to London.

Early irregularity in the market was attributed to predictions that the weekly Federal Reserve brokers' loan statement, to be issued after the close on Thursday, would not show the generally expected large decrease in borrowings. These predictions were based on the fact that the loans of some of the leading houses were down only 1 or 2 per cent below the levels of a week ago. This was offset, however, by reports of a substantial decrease in member bank borrowing at the Federal Reserve.

Cotton broke sharply, on the resumption of trading following the usual recess for consideration of the monthly crop figures compiled by the Government. The Bureau compilation as of Oct. 1 proved bearish when placed against the average of private forecasts, showing an increase in indicated yield of about 200,000 bales over the Sept. 1 estimate, and placing the condition at a slightly better figure. Having been primed for substantial more bullish forecast the market experienced a rush of selling when trading was resumed, with active options slipping off $1.50 to $2.25 a bale.

Closing stock prices, with other tables and market news, will be found on Pages 35, 36 and 37.

150-STORY BUILDING PLANNED

It Will Cover Two Squares in New York; Cost $100,000,000.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 8.—Plans for construction of a $100,000,000 office building of 150 stories—the highest in the world—is announced today by Charles F. Noyes, real estate operator, who will be associated in the work with David Schulte.

The building will be erected on a site comprising almost two square blocks in the old garment center in downtown Manhattan, a short distance from City Hall. Leases in buildings now on the site, Noyes said, will expire in seven years.

The new building will be 1600 feet high, more than twice as high as the Woolworth Building.

Grand Jury Witness Slain.

By the Associated Press.

EAST CHICAGO, Ind., Oct. 8.—Deputy Sheriff Samuel Goldberg, a witness before the Federal grand jury inquiry into Lake County corruption, died early today of wounds inflicted last night by a Negro, James Britt. Federal officers said the shooting was the result merely of a personal quarrel. Britt was arrested and will be charged with first degree murder, officers said. The shooting was the aftermath of a quarrel which started two months ago over a grocery bill.

Historic Scenes Recalled in Twenty Floats Celebrating Fifty-First Anniversary of His Mysterious Majesty's First Arrival in City—Changes in Route.

Thousands of out-of-town visitors are arriving to swell the throngs of men, women and children who will view the Veiled Prophet's annual street parade as it traverses a six-mile route of city streets tonight.

Elaborate preparations have been made for the Prophet's carnival which will mark the fifty-first anniversary of his first visit to St. Louis. Streets of the route, including the whole of widened Olive street, have been decked with flags and bunting while in the Prophet's den at Laclede and Rankin avenues the 20 floats are in readiness for the three and one-half hour pageant.

"Traditions of St. Louis" is the general title of the parade, which will portray the history of St. Louis from the prehistoric Mound Builders to the present day, the floats having been designed from original paintings by Oscar E. Berninghaus, St. Louis artist. The title float will carry a reproduction of the figure of St. Louis from the familiar statue on Art Hill in Forest Park.

Occasional Rain Forecast.

Unsettled weather with possibly occasional light rain was predicted for tonight by the Weather Bureau. In the event of rain at the starting time, the parade will be postponed until Thursday evening.

The Prophet's ball, which ushers in the fall and winter social season, will be held at the Coliseum tomorrow evening with about 10,000 invited guests.

Rigid traffic rules for this evening have been formulated with a view to preventing congestion before and after the parade. All vehicular traffic will be barred from the streets of the parade route while street cars and busses will be rerouted over adjacent streets in an effort to enable the public to see the parade in comfort and go home quickly afterwards.

The parade will start at 7 o'clock, 15 minutes earlier than in past years, and barring accidents will end at 10:20. The route changed for the first time in 20 years, will traverse Sarah street instead of Vandeventer avenue on the west, because of reconstruction work, and Broadway instead of Fourth street, on the east, in order to keep within the traditional length.

For the first time the procession will move east on Olive street, passing the Lindell-Locust cutoff, and continuing to Jefferson avenue, providing a much greater area for spectators than has ever been had before.

Subjects of the Floats.

In constructing the floats, efforts were made to maintain historic accuracy. Most of the floats will portray specific incidents in the city's history, although some will be of the composite type with a touch of humor here and there as evidenced by such titles as "Early Traffic Congestion" and "The Gay Nineties." The titles, explanatory of the nature of individual floats, follow in the order they will appear in the parade:

"Saint Louis."
"The Veiled Prophet."
"The Mound Builders."
"Early Explorers."
"Laclede and Chouteau."
"The Louisiana Purchase."
"The Three Flags."
"Lewis and Clark."
"Fur Traders."
"The 49-ers."
"Steamboat Days."
"Grant."
"Eads Bridge Construction."
"Early Traffic Congestion."
"Shaw's Garden."
"The Gay Nineties."
"The World's Fair."
"Spirit of St. Louis."
"St. Louis of the Future."

Hotel Parties After Ball.

Hotel dining rooms will entertain several thousand persons at supper dances to follow the Veiled Prophet's ball tomorrow night. Hotel Jefferson has more than 1500 reservations for a reception and supper in honor of the new Veiled Prophet's Queen and will close its doors to the general public.

NEW GOLD RUSH IN IDAHO

By the Associated Press.

WALLACE, Idaho, Oct. 8. — A gold rush recalling the early day stampedes into the rich Couer d'Alene region was in progress in this region today.

The announcement of John Stout that he had discovered outcroppings which assayed more than $2500 a ton in gold, $21 in silver and $3 in copper, started the stampede to the North Fork River country, over which thousands of men tramped in the earlier rush. The discovery was thought to be about 25 miles north of Prichard.

WINS $1,500,000 INHERITANCE; TO GO BACK TO CONVENT

1234 ACRES NOW IN LOS ANGELES

Parent Who Was Wine Maker Purchased Tracts When City Had 10,000 Population.

In 1926, Sister Philomene of the Convent of the Good Shepherd, freed from her vows, walked out of the convent at 3801 Gravois avenue. A slight, dark-eyed woman, looking frail and subdued in worldly garb, she went to Los Angeles to fight for her inheritance as Miss Jeanne Lemesneger, her name prior to entering the convent.

Today, possessed of land rights which are expected to be worth more than $3,000,000 in five years, by virtue of a decision of the Supreme Court of California, she intends to return to the anonymity of the cloister, despite the prospect of certain independence in the world and a physical constitution not altogether suited to religious life.

The value of her holdings today is estimated by John S. Leahy, her chief attorney, at $1,500,000. If she again dons the white habit of the Good Shepherd, or that of any other order, she will re-take the vow of poverty. Although still privileged to hold property in her own name, the vow will preclude the use of her wealth in her everyday routine of life, as the rules of the various orders provide a certain regime calculated to approximate poverty. And in disposing of worldly goods, a religious must consult her superiors. On the other hand Miss Lemesneger could dispose of her fortune before reentering the cloister.

Father Was Wine Maker.

At 38, Miss Lemesneger is the sole surviving daughter of the late Georges Lemesneger, who emigrated from France in 1872, achieved wealth as a wine manufacturer in Los Angeles and purchased large tracts near the city when it was a town of less than 10,000 inhabitants.

Los Angeles has surged out to and beyond Verdugo Canyon tract of 1234 acres, one of the vintner's purchases now in the west end of the city. Golfers and homeseekers have landscaped it with bunkers and rose gardens and the boom city of more than a million inhabitants has sent the tract into the realm of high finance by locating its municipal airport nearby.

Of the vineyards of Georges Lemesneger nothing remains. But real estate men estimate the land to be worth from $5,000,000 to $8,000,000 or at the lowest $4052 an acre, and the heirs have agreed to hold it for five years more when it is expected to reach a value of nearly $10,000,000.

Of this Jeanne Lemesneger, released from her vow of poverty but ready once more to assume it, is heir to one third. The heirs of her half-sister Yvonne, Countess de Coatparquet, and those of her sister Louise, who was Mrs. James P. Murnane of Los Angeles, will share equally with her on the death of Jeanne's stepmother.

Disaster of His Life.

To the youthful soldier of Napoleon III, Georges Lemesneger, the fall of Sedan in 1870 was the greatest disaster of his life. Prussian boots sounded on the road to Paris, where officials of the Empire stared at the blank walls. The Empire was tottering to make way for the Third Republic and a certain member of the Imperial Army obtained his discharge and sailed for the United States, broken-hearted.

Near the town of Los Angeles he bought lands and planted vineyards such as he had once worked in France. He became a citizen, made wine which was good, grew wealthy, married, raised a family.

With German boots once more turned toward Paris in 1914, Georges Lemesneger, soldier of Napoleon, forgot his 65 years, put his property in a corporation, gave up his American citizenship and repatriated himself so that he might serve once more in the army of France. A shell fragment struck him during one of the sieges of Verdun and he was invalided back to Los Angeles. Here he rallied and recovered.

In June, 1916, he called his family together. There were Louis and young Georges and Louise and Jeanne, all by his first wife, and Yvonne, a daughter by his second wife, Marie, who had formerly been the children's governess.

"France will soon be annihilated." Georges Lemesneger an-

FALL TRIAL LIMITED TO 4 HOURS A DAY BECAUSE HE IS ILL

Former Interior Secretary Accused of Bribery Attended in Court by Physician and Nurse.

COURT BARS ALLUSION TO SINCLAIR DEAL

Opening Statements Presented — Josephus Daniels, Former Secretary of Navy, Arrives to Testify.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8. — Whether the jury selected to try Albert B. Fall, former Secretary of the Interior, on charges of bribery will complete its work appeared today to depend largely on the condition of his health.

By agreement of counsel, the trial hours will not exceed four a day. This course was taken at the request of the defense attorneys, who told the Court Fall's bronchial attack last week left him in such a weakened condition that greater strain might cause a relapse.

The condition of Fall became worse today and he was excused from court before the opening statements were concluded. The jury was excused while Fall was helped out.

Approximately three weeks of listening to the story of the leasing of the Elk Hills, Cal., naval oil reserve to Edward L. Doheny is in store for the jury of eight men and four women chosen at yesterday's opening session, if his health permits. The jurors will be locked up nightly under guard.

Deposition May Be Used.

A possibility that the deposition given by Fall in the Sinclair conspiracy case but never put into the court records might be made public during the current trial was suggested today when W. B. Bull, United States Commissioner of El Paso, Tex., appeared at the trial as a Government witness.

Bull took the 10,000-word document at El Paso a year and a half ago when attorneys for Harry F. Sinclair insisted Fall's testimony was essential to Sinclair's defense. Fall's health at that time would not permit him to come to Washington to testify.

Owen J. Roberts, special Government counsel, commenced his opening statement as soon as the jury entered the box. He went into details of the naval oil reserve No. 1 at Elk Hills, Cal., in connection with which the Government charges Fall accepted a bribe of $100,000 from Doheny.

Among the witnesses who arrived today was Josephus Daniels, Secretary of the Navy under Wilson, and a Government witness in the case.

Sinclair Reference Barred.

Roberts said the Government would show that the $100,000 passed with the intent to influence Fall's action on the lease.

When the prosecutor said the Government would prove that at the time Doheny negotiations were going on similar dealings were under way between Fall and Harry F. Sinclair, oil magnate, an objection to bringing up the Sinclair case was made by Frank Hogan of the defense counsel. His objection was upheld.

Hogan in his opening statement said it would be shown there was no basis for the bribery charge against Fall. After reviewing the friendship of Fall and Doheny which began when they were young men in the West, Hogan reviewed the incident which he said led up to the $100,000 loan. The two met here, he said, and Fall outlined his "dream" of acquiring the Harris Ranch next to his in New Mexico. Doheny, he told the jury, without a word from Fall offered to lend him the money he needed to carry out his plan. Fall declined the offer at the time, he asserted, saying he could get the money anywhere.

Explaining $100,000 Loan.

Fall, continued Hogan, received $100,000 in checks from Edward B. McLean, publisher of the Washington Post, but something that McLean said caused Fall to believe the loan would work a hardship on the publisher and he telephoned Doheny asking for the loan in cash as he was leaving for New Mexico the next day and thought he could get better terms if he had cash.

The next day, he added, Doheny's son brought the cash to Fall in Washington, reaching here Nov. 30, 1921, and receiving Fall's note for the money. Doheny bowed his head at mention of his son, who was killed in Los Angeles by his secretary several months ago.

HOOVER SAYS FRANKNESS MARKS HIS DISCUSSIONS WITH BRITISH PREMIER

Text of Hoover's Statement

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON Oct. 8.—Following is the text of a statement issued today by President Hoover regarding his conversations with J. Ramsay MacDonald:

There is nothing that I can report at the present moment on the conversations with the Prime Minister. These conversations are continuing in the most friendly of atmospheres. We fortunately have no controversies between our countries to be settled. We are, therefore, able to discuss our mutual problems in the long-distance view and solely in the broad aspect of human welfare in the largest sense.

Moreover, we are able to carry our conversations without circumlocution and in absolute frankness with recognition of the point of view of both sides. Neither of us has anything to reserve. We have to search only for those things that will promote the increase of good will and moral solidarity between the two countries. The Prime Minister possesses a wealth of Scotch humor which lubricates any discussion.

More important than all is the great evidence shown by the press and the American people of genuine friendliness to the Prime Minister of Great Britain and to his people. This demonstration that is in progress is in itself of more importance than any incidental conclusions that he and I might come to on matters concerning our two nations.

MARKET TRUCKMAN'S STRIKE DECLARED OFF IN NEW YORK

Settled After City Goes Short on Green Vegetables and Terminals Are Clogged.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 8.—The strike of market truckmen which has clogged New York terminals with millions of dollars worth of perishable produce, was declared off this afternoon.

Threatened by a blockade in their freight yards where 3000 cars of produce have accumulated since the strike was called Saturday night, the railroads put an embargo into effect at midnight.

Agents throughout the country were instructed not to accept shipments of perishable produce consigned to New York until further notice.

Retail prices for fruits and vegetables continued normal because commission houses, forewarned of the strike, had put in stocks sufficient for the demand. Trade associations issued warnings to the public that increased retail prices were unjustified profiteering.

NEW U. S. GLIDER RECORD

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Oct. 8.—Dr. Wolfgang Klemperer of Akron, O., was said to have broken all United States' glider records yesterday when he covered 5 miles and remained aloft for an hour.

Dr. Klemperer took off at 5:20 p. m. from Dunbar's Camp, 2000 feet above sea level, rose to an altitude of 600 feet and glided to a point about 25 miles from the start. The glider crew will leave today for Akron after three weeks of glider testing in the mountains near here.

Jewels Found Under Staircase.

BERLIN, Oct. 8.—German police today discovered jewelry valued at $20,000, which had been stolen at the French embassy while Ambassador Pierre de Margerie was attending the funeral of Dr. Gustav Stresemann on Sunday. In a final search of the embassy, the police found all the jewels in a package, carelessly wrapped in paper under the staircase. A chauffeur reported the robbery on Sunday after finding empty jewel cases in the embassy garden.

GIRL AROUSES FAMILY OF SIX TO SAVE THEM FROM FIRE

Barnhart, Mo., Residents Escape Shortly Before House Collapses.

Awakened by smoke last midnight, Anna Rose, 11-year-old daughter of John Lindner, a painter of Barnhart, Mo., aroused her father and five brothers and sisters, enabling them to escape by an outside stairway from the second floor of the burning two-story frame building, five minutes before the floor collapsed.

Dorothy, 16, the eldest child, was overcome by smoke when she attempted to save her clothing, and was rescued by her father. Two dogs on the first floor were killed.

"We were sleeping on the second floor," Lindner said, "when Anna Rose came running into the room I shared with my son, Roger. She already had awakened the children sleeping in the room with her."

Mrs. Lindner was visiting a sister, Mrs. Bertha Giese, in St. Louis. The house was destroyed with a loss of about $3000, partly covered by insurance.

Barnhart is on the Lemay Ferry road, 25 miles south of St. Louis.

FRANCE, WITH GREATEST CROP ON RECORD, HAS WHEAT FETE

PARIS, Oct. 8.—Wheat, hailed by Minister of Agriculture Hennessey as the noblest cereal of all, was the basis of a great national French festival yesterday. To the French bread is the emblem of hospitality.

This year France had the greatest wheat harvest in her history, reaching 319,000,000 bushels. Hennessey's organization of a competition among farmers for the biggest individual crop was the principal feature of the propaganda by which the Government spurred on farmers.

Three prize winners were selected from each of the 90 departments of France. Several women were among the 270 landlords and peasants who came to Paris yesterday and received prizes from the hands of President Doumergue.

They visited the agricultural research center at Versailles and then had a banquet at a Paris hotel.

FINAL TALK ON WORLD PEACE SET FOR TOMORROW

President Calls Reaction of People of U. S. More Important Than the Conversations Themselves.

VISITOR LEAVES WHITE HOUSE

Tells Correspondents Conferences So Far Indicate Purpose of His Visit Will Be Attained.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8.—President Hoover and Prime Minister MacDonald today neared the end of their discussions of questions which might form the focal point of friction between the American and British nations.

History has yet to record the results of their experiment in international intercourse, that of personal contacts between the heads of governments, but each radiated a confidence that a long forward step had been taken in Anglo-American accord.

With the vexing question of general naval parity, or equality, behind them, the American President and the British Prime Minister rounded out their conversations with discussion of other subjects which bear directly on the relations of the two great English speaking peoples and the general peace of the world.

In a general way the talk about ideals in world relations was mixed with practical suggestions for treating rather special problems, and broadly speaking the two ardent seekers of a permanent peace for the world had little difficulty in bringing their minds to a common viewpoint.

Marked by Absolute Frankness.

Mr. Hoover, in a statement today, said the conversations with MacDonald were being carried on in an atmosphere of absolute frankness and that "neither of us has anything in reserve."

The Chief Executive said since there were no controversies between the United States and Great Britain to be settled at this time, it was possible to carry on the talks with a prospective of the future in a broad sense.

The two, he added, were searching for those things that would promote a good feeling between the American and British peoples.

The President asserted that more important than the conversations themselves was the reaction of the American people of the great friendliness they had shown to the Prime Minister and through him to the British people.

This evidence, the President said, also was more important than any conclusion that he and Mr. MacDonald might reach.

Premier Leaves White House.

MacDonald and his daughter, Ishbel, took leave of the President and Mrs. Hoover whose guests they have been since Saturday, soon after breakfast this morning.

From the White House they went to the British Embassy where they will stay until they leave for Philadelphia and New York Thursday on their way to Canada.

After the Prime Minister's departure, Mr. Hoover went to his office for an early conference with Secretary of State Stimson regarding the reply to the British invitation to attend the naval limitation conference at London in January. The invitation was received late yesterday by cable from Ambassador Dawes, to whom a copy was handed by the British Foreign Office.

After reaching the Embassy, MacDonald conferred with British officials who accompanied him to the United States and attended to an accumulation of official business. Miss MacDonald drove to the Library of Congress for an inspection of that building.

Confer After Breakfast.

Before the President and Premier separated, however, they had another conference. This took place after breakfast in the study on the second floor.

It was understood they would have a final talk tomorrow on the Invitation to Conference, Published in Japan, Outlines Points Agreed on by U. S. and Britain.

KELLOGG TREATY "STARTING POINT"

Anglo-American Parity to Be Reached by 1936 — Diminishing of Battleship Building Desired.

By the Associated Press.

TOKIO, Oct. 8.—The British invitation to Japan to participate in a five-power naval conference was published here tonight, after its receipt by the Foreign Office.

The invitation, which is approximately 1000 words in length, reviews the Anglo-American conversations in which it was stated agreement had been reached on the following:

(1)—The Kellogg pact is the starting point of the agreement.

(2)—Anglo-American parity of all naval categories shall be reached by the end of 1936.

(3)—The desirability to reconsider the battleship replacement programs of the Washington treaty of 1922 with a view to diminish the amount of replacement construction therein implied.

(4)—Total abolition of submarines subject to conference with other naval powers.

The invitation says that it was considered desirable that the conference should be summoned for the third week in January to consider categories of vessels not covered in the Washington treaty and to deal with the questions covered in paragraph 2, article 21 of that treaty.

It stated that the British Government was willing in the interval before the conference to continue informal conversations with Ambassador Matsudaira in London on any points requiring elucidation.

Great Britain proposes in due course to communicate its views on the conference agenda and hopes that Japan will make a corresponding communication. It expresses hope that the fruits of the conference will facilitate the task of the League of Nations Preparatory Commission and the subsequent general disarmament conference.

Rome Paper Says Italy Will Have Word on Submarines.

By the Associated Press.

ROME, Oct. 8.—An accord between England and America on naval affairs will be greeted in Italy by "adhesion and with reserves," the influential newspaper Giornale d'Italia said today.

It adds that, although Italy desires peace and limitation of armaments, she will have something to say about submarines. The newspaper considers submarines a defensive arm necessary for nations like Italy, which have a long coast line to guard and insufficient finances to protect it with many costly surface vessels.

Arnaldo Mussolini, commenting in the Popolo d'Italia at meeting on the Anglo-American conversations at Washington, today said the Fascist regime was animated by an honest will for peace. "Italy fears no attacks and meditates none," he said.

SOVIET RAIDING REPORTED

Harbin Reports Killing of White Russians in Manchuria.

By the Associated Press.

HARBIN, Oct. 8.—Chinese and foreign sources today gave credence to White Russian reports that more than 140 white Russian men, women and children have been killed along the border north of Hailar by raiders from the Russian side of the Manchurian frontier. Most of the victims it is said were peasants and their families.

The white Russians asserted that many of the raiders wore Soviet uniforms and that the victims were killed with machine guns and bayonets. Eight of the wounded were able to reach Hailar.

The Chinese are sending troops to what is known as the Three Rivers district for the purpose of protecting the white Russian peasants there who are unarmed in accordance with Chinese regulations.

Final MacDonald-Hoover Talk Tomorrow

eve of the Prime Minister's departure. While no official indication has yet been given, the expectation is that the President and the British statesman will issue a second joint statement on the general results of their talks.

This morning Mr. Hoover omitted his usual medicine ball game on the south lawn. He and Mr. MacDonald breakfasted at an early hour.

The Prime Minister in an informal talk with a group of correspondents said he had "never felt fitter." He thanked the newspaper men for the way they had written about his trip and said their efforts so far had been toward the attainment of complete success for his visit.

MacDonald to Be Honored at British Embassy Tonight.

Perhaps few conversations in history have aroused more interest than those which have taken place in the last three days in the wilderness of the nearby Virginia mountains and in the quiet simplicity of the President's White House study. But just what passed between the men who for the time control the destinies of two mighty nations probably will not become known for some years.

The second ceremonial dinner of his visit was arranged for MacDonald tonight at the British Embassy. In accordance with long established custom in the diplomatic corps, Secretary of State and Mrs. Stimson were the highest ranking American guests invited to the embassy dinner, Vice President Curtis being asked to bring Mrs. Gann to the reception following it.

While the text of the invitation to the naval limitation conference in London will not be made public until tomorrow, it was the understanding here that it explained the situations arising from the negotiations for equality in cruiser strength which have been going on between the American and British Governments for several months.

Hoover and MacDonald went over a final draft copy at the President's camp in Viriginia Saturday and the text then was sent back to London. The formal invitations to the United States, Japan, France and Italy, then were put into form for forwarding to the Ambassadors of those countries.

Acceptance by the United States and Japan is regarded as a certainty. The Japanese will have more than the three months' notice officials in Tokio indicated they desired before the gathering of the delegates at the British capital to discuss not only limitation of cruisers, submarines and destroyers, but also a further holiday in the construction of capital ships The American proposal is that this holiday extend from 1931 to 1936, the time of the expiration of the Washington naval limitation treaty.

After the formal acceptance of the invitation, President Hoover will give attention to the selection of the American delegation to the London parley. This probably will consist of three delegates in addition to the staff of naval experts, which is expected to be headed by Rear Admiral Hilary P. Jones.

The general belief is that Stimson will head the American delegation, with Hugh S. Gibson, American Ambassador to Belgium as another member. Should President Hoover follow precedent a Democrat would be named to the third place, but he has given no consideration to that matter.

Invitation to Conference Sent to British Dominions.

Copyright, 1929, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Cos. (The New York World and Post-Dispatch.)

LONDON, Oct. 8.—British Foreign Office messengers yesterday delivered to the United States, French, Italian and Japanese Embassies here the British Government's formal invitations to their respective Governments to attend a five-Power naval conference in London next January.

The document, bearing the signature of Foreign Secretary Henderson, is to be issued this evening for publication in Wednesday morning's newspapers. It is understood to cover several pages of foolscap and to give a brief historical summary of the situation leading and making possible the issuance of the invitations.

There is understood to be a slight difference between the text of the invitation addressed to Ambassador Dawes, which is accompanied by a covering letter and that sent to the other three countries.

The correspondent was officially informed that before Premier MacDonald left for the United States the Foreign Office here notified the British self-governing dominions including the Irish Free State, that their representatives would be welcome to attend the conference.

The British Government's offer to the Dominions follows the precedent established at the Paris peace conference and followed in part at the abortive Geneva three-Power naval conference and in conformity with provisions for relations between Great Britain and the Dominions worked out at recent Imperial conferences.

French Reply Probably Will Not Be Made Before Oct. 16.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Oct. 8.—The French reply to the British invitation to attend a five-power naval conference will be delayed a short time and probably will not be sent before Oct. 16. It is likely to be a qualified conditional acceptance.

$97,274 JUDGMENT FOR BANK IN SPRINGFIELD, MO., UPHELD

Amount to Go to Depositors of Holland Banking Co. Closed in 1924.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Oct. 8.—A judgment for $97,274 for depositors of the defunct Holland Banking Co. of Springfield, Mo., against the Continental National Bank of Kansas City, in a suit involving alleged conversion of Holland Banking funds to liquidate an individual loan obtained by Holland Banking Co. officers from the Continental National, was affirmed today by the Missouri Supreme Court en banc by a 4 to 3 vote.

The recovery will add only slightly to the repayments to be received by depositors of the Holland Banking Co. which failed in January, 1924. So far the depositors have received about $3,300,000. The maximum estimate of the final recovery is about 50 per cent.

A similar suit to recover $100,000 from the Republic National Bank of St. Louis, involving a loan to Holland Banking Co. officers that was alleged to have been guaranteed by a $100,000 deposit of Holland funds in the Republic National, is pending on appeal from a decision of Boone County Circuit Court favorable to the Republic National. The latter bank closed in July, 1924.

BASEBALL KILLING ACCIDENTAL

John Reiter, 16, Died From Shock, Coroner's Jury Finds.

A Coroner's verdict of accident was returned today in the case of John Reiter, 16 years old, 544 Eiler street, who died Sunday from shock after being struck by a foul tip while catching in an amateur baseball game.

Charles Van Nest, 3821 Wisconsin avenue, pitcher for the team on which Reiter played, said Reiter caught for them frequently but always refused to wear a mask or chest protector. The foul tip struck him over the heart, the subsequent shock setting up a reflex inhibition which prevented it from functioning, the autopsy physician reported.

HELD FOR EMBEZZLING POSTAL MONEY ORDERS

J. W. Svehla, Druggist, Accused of $3249 Fraud in Substation Operation.

Joseph W. Svehla, proprietor of a drug store at 2810 North Fourteenth street, was arrested yesterday on a Federal warrant charging embezzlement of $3249 from a postal substation in his store.

Postoffice Inspectors Kupferer and Mayer, who investigated his accounts, reported that for more than a year he had misappropriated funds by issuing postal money orders to fictitious persons, assigning them to himself and depositing them in his bank account.

When his accounts were examined periodically, the inspectors continued, the druggist covered the shortage by remitting to the main postoffice with checks drawn on his bank account after which he issued more fraudulent money orders.

The inspectors said Svehla confronted with discovery of the shortage, blamed his predicament on thefts of money by employes. Released on $3500 bond, he declined to discuss the charge. He will have a preliminary hearing before Commissioner Burke, Oct. 22.

CLERK LOCKED IN VAULT

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 8. — Robert Costello, 17 years old, a clerk in the insurance office of Brown, Crosby & Co., was locked in the company's vault at 5:30 p. m., closing time. Robert, who lives in Jersey City, went into the vault to turn out the lights. Suddenly the door snapped shut. Another clerk, seeing the light turned off, though no one had locked the combination, so he slammed the door and twirled the knob.

Loud yells and thumpings halted the office force just as the last persons were leaving and an office boy ran down four flights of stairs to overtake the telephone switchboard operator. He caught her at the bottom stair and she immediately telephoned to police and to company officials who might know the combination. An emergency police squad arrived with drills and another squad escorted a safe expert, who with two blows of his hamer knocked off the safe knob and freed the boy.

DIRECTOR BROOKS RECOMMENDS SEWER UNDER O'FALLON STREET

Work Between High Street and the River Would Cost $420,000.

Director of Streets and Sewers Brooks today recommended to the Board of Public Service an ordinance authorizing the construction of a sewer under O'Fallon street, between the Mississippi River and High street, to relieve sewage congestion in the district bounded by Jefferson avenue, Washington avenue, Mullanphy street and the river.

The sewer, having an average diameter of 11 feet, would cost $420,000, to be paid from bond issue funds. If the ordinance is approved by the Board of Public Service and the Board of Aldermen construction will be started in December and will require about a year. The district mentioned is now drained by the Biddle street sewer, which is overtaxed.

TWO SONS OF BILL TILGHMAN HELD FOR MURDER IN ROBBERY

OKLAHOMA CITY, Ok., Oct. 8.—Five charges of first-degree murder have been filed at Chickasha, Ok., in connection with the slaying of James Chitwood, 60-year-old farmer, near Minco, Ok., during the robbery of a dice game early Sunday, J. Roy Orr, Assistant County Attorney, reported. The charges were filed jointly against Richard and Woodie Tilghman, sons of the late Bill Tilghman, pioneer Oklahoma anda Kansas peace officer; Alfred Stratton, uncle of the two Tilghman boys; Jack Reynolds and "Dude" Brown.

Richard Tilghman, 23, who was wounded when a group of five men held up the dice game, is in an Oklahoma City Hospital with little chance for recovery, physicians say. Woodie Tilghman and Stratton are being held in jail, and police are hunting for two other men named in the murder charges.

CIRCUIT ATTORNEY IN CAMPAIGN FOR SEVERE PENALTIES

Invokes Habitual Criminal Act to Get Maximum Sentences for Felons Up for Second Time.

Wholesale application of the habitual criminal law to bring about maximum punishment for persons convicted of felonies more than once was begun today by Circuit Attorney Franklin Miller.

Departing from the precedent set by his predecessors in that office, Miller announced he would prosecute as habitual criminals not only persons arrested for felonies after their discharge from penitentiaries, but also those who were let off with terms in reformatories or workhouses for offenses which could have been punished by penitentiary sentences.

How New Policy Applies.

The Circuit Attorney's new policy means that any one who has served a term for a felony regardless of where the time was served will be subjected to the drastic provisions of the habitual criminal statute if caught again and convicted. The policy makes no distinction between the penitentiary and minor prisons.

Under the habitual criminal statute, when a felon is convicted of a second felony, the judge instructs the jury that it is mandatory to inflict the maximum punishment—for instance, a life sentence for robbery, or five years for grand larceny.

In the past, the habitual criminal provision has been invoked in comparatively few cases, and never against those whose records included only reformatory or workhouse terms. It has been used chiefly against hardened robbers. In some cases, juries have disregarded the mandatory instruction where they felt the maximum punishment was too severe.

Two Interpretations of Law.

Circuit Attorney Miller's action is based on a new interpretation of Section 3702 of the Revised Statues, which applies the maximum penalties for a crime to any person previously convicted "of any offense punishable by imprisonment in the penitentiary." Miller's predecessors have held this meant the person must have been punished in a penitentiary.

"But the statute doesn't say the person must have been discharged from the penitentiary," Circuit Attorney Miller said. "The fact that, although convicted of a crime which might be punishable by imprisonment in the penitentiary, the person goes to the Workhouse or Reformatory, doesn't make any difference in my view.

"There has been no Supreme Court decision on this law. If defendants object to this application of the law, they can appeal on that ground."

Warrants Issued.

In pursuance of his new policy, the Circuit Attorney has issued warrants charging the following persons with being habitual criminals:

Walter Garner, arrested for $44 holdup, last Nov. 10. Record shows he was sentenced to Pontiac, Ill., Reformatory in 1926, for 1 to 20 years, for burglary at Gillespie, Ill., and was paroled after serving 25 months.

James Francis Dunivan, charged with $6 robbery last Feb. 7. Record shows he served terms in Boonville Reformatory and City Workhouse for stealing automobiles.

Richard Lawrence, charged with stealing an automobile, Sept. 2. Records shows he served a workhouse term this year for a similar theft.

Elmer Lott, charged with assisting Lawrence in the theft, after previous conviction.

Auto Killings Included.

Persons sent to the workhouse for manslaughter with an automobile, felonious wounding and feloniously leaving the scene of an accident would be among those prosecuted as habitual criminals if they again committed a felony, Miller said. Known carriers of concealed weapons would be similarly dealt with, he added.

Miller has assigned Assistant Circuit Attorney Woodward to prepare the habitual criminal charges, co-operating with Assistant Circuit Attorney Lennon, in charge of the grand jury; Assistant Circuit Attorney Griffin, in charge of the warrant office, and the Police Department. Pink slips have been supplied to the police on which to list previous convictions of persons for whom they are seeking warrants.

'SECRET BRITISH DOCUMENT' WAS A 10-YEAR-OLD SATIRE

London Papers Treat Incident as Joker Writer Was Aiming at the Late Lord Northcliffe

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Oct. 8.—Owing to the coincidence with Anglo-American naval conversations, the investigation of the activities of William B. Shearer, allegedly in the interests of American shipbuilders, have been followed in England with close interest.

Correspondents of British newspapers have reported the investigation fully, naturally including the alleged secret document purporting to have been sent by Sir William Wiseman to David Lloyd George, former Premier. This aspect of the inquiry has aroused no serious attention, however, and Lloyd George has not made the slightest public allusion to it.

Apart from the fact that Wiseman repudiated the document, it was already a rather musty joke and the whole episode was treated by the British press as a subject for merriment. The alleged document was said to have had its genesis in New York.

The weekly New Statesman, in commenting on the affair, said: "As a matter of fact, Wiseman gives the document a dignity it does not deserve when he describes it as a forgery. It is not a forgery, but a 'jeu d'esprit' written 10 years ago as a satire upon Lord Northcliffe and other forms of British propaganda during the war and was chiefly amusing because of its use of dozens of familiar names.

"There was no mystery about its authorship and character, but it was treated gravely by such papers as the Gaelic American and it played its part in Irish and German feeling."

CURTISS AIRPORTS OFFICERS MAKING INSPECTION TOUR

Officers of the Curtiss Airports Corporation, controlling airport developments valued at $25,000,000, including the new $3,000,000 Curtis Steinberg Field, near East St. Louis, will arrive here tomorrow afternoon on an inspection tour.

The party, traveling in a special car, includes Walter S. Marvin, chairman of the board; W. F. Carey, president; David Visel, vice president; H. W. Kroyer, treasurer; and Col. G. W. Goethals, B. R. Waite; and J. F. Tuyls, engineers. The officials left New York Monday night and expect to spend Thursday at the East Side Airport, next month.

Chief Fire Department.

This endorsement is gratuitous. It was given to us in the interests of better health and greater safety.

trade-in allowance for your garbage pail or trash barrel

The Gas Incinerator can be bought on our low payment plan, $5 down and $5 a month, payable on your gas bill.

Every day in the year fire threatens your home. It lurks in the basement . . . under the stairs . . . wherever rubbish and trash accumulate. Fire authorities say accumulations of waste paper, trash and litter cause six out of every ten fires.

How foolish it is to run this risk when you can eliminate it entirely. The Gas Incinerator is a handy, safe receptacle that burns rubbish and garbage quickly, automatically, odorlessly. No bother, no watching. Simply press a button and clean gas flame does the rest without smoke, sticky soot or dangerous sparks.

Referring to Aug. 10, the morning after the alleged attack, Attorney Geisler asked if the witness and her mother did not meet Nick Duneav, the author of the dance skit in which she had sought to appear in the Pantages theaters, at a downtown office.

"Yes, sir," Miss Pringle replied, "at a lawyer's named Gottsdanker." Geisler dropped this line of questioning when the witness said she was not acquainted with the lawyer prior to her visit to his office.

Previously in cross examination of the girl's mother, Mrs. Lou Irene Pringle, Geisler had sought to determine if the three had not consulted Gottsdanker regarding the filing of a $500,000 damage suit against Pantages. Mrs. Pringle has emphatically denied this, saying the lawyer had mentioned such a possibility but that she told him she was "interested only in justice for my daughter."

"The week prior to Aug. 9," Geisler queried, "did not you read in the newspaper that Pantages had sold his theaters for an immense sum?"

"No, sir," the girl affirmed.

"Did not Duneav tell you about the sale?"

"No, sir."

"And you never heard about it?"

"No, sir."

An attempt of the defense to learn whether liquor was served at parties at Duneav's apartment was stopped by the State, although the defense said "we know Miss Pringle did not drink anything."

W. L. Gordon, who operates a women's apparel shop in a theater building on the same floor as Pantages' suite of offices, testified yesterday that on the afternoon of Aug. 9 he was attracted to the Pantages office on the mezzanine by a woman's scream.

Heard Girl Scream.

The witness said he saw a girl's hand protruding from the office door and when he pushed the door open he saw a man's hand holding the girl's ankle. He said the girl ran out, "screaming, crying and hysterical."

"What did you hear when you had the door open?" Assistant Prosecutor Robert P. Stewart asked.

"Miss Pringle was screaming "Help, save me!' " nounced. "I wish to return and die with her. I now make disposal of my property."

To his sons, Louis and Georges, he deeded valuable tracts as their inheritance. To his wife he deeded the Verdugo Canyon tract, providing that on her death the property would revert to Yvonne and Louise, with a dower, size not specified, for Jeanne. For Jeanne was to enter the convent.

The next year Jeanne became a Sister of the Good Shepherd and was transferre from California to St. Louis. In the fall of 1923 Georges Lemesneger, soldier of the Empire and Republic, fell with the leaves and was buried with his decorations. By the fall of 1924 Louise had married and died. In 1925 the widow and her blonde daughter, Yvonne, returned to France to live, selling the Verdugo Canyon tract for $1,000,000 and taking $200,000 down payment and a deed of trust for the remainder.

After a short time in Paris Yvonne became the wife of the Count Fraval de Coatparquet. She died last year.

Nun Advised by Brother.

Meanwhile the frail, dark-eyed Sister Philomene, in St. Louis, received a letter from her brother Louis, in Los Angeles, warning her that their stepmother had sold the Verdugo Canyon tract and was well on the way to taking the entire inheritance to France. Sister Philomene told her Mother Superior and the Mother Superior consulted John S. Leahy.

Leahy went to France. In Paris he talked to Madame Lemesneger who admitted that it had been verbally agreed among members of the family that she was to hold the land in trust for the three girls. But she declined, on advice of counsel, to sign a statement to that effect.

On returning Leahy found that Murnane, widower of Louise, had sued in Los Angeles, claiming a half interest. Leahy filed a cross petition asking that Jeanne be awarded a one-third share. During the trial Murnane made a private settlement with Madame Lemesneger and Louis, who had warned Jeanne of her danger, testified against her A canonical lawyer, a monsignor, testified that in canon law the word "dower" meant a small gift to the religious community on behalf of its member's rights, not more than $5000.

Notwithstanding, the Superior Court not only awarded Jeanne her one-third share but brought in a judgment of $200,000 against Madame Lemesneger for money received in the sale of the property. Last July 1 the Supreme Court of the state, sitting en banc, affirmed the ruling.

While the litigation was pending the purchaser of the property defaulted on his payments and the tract reverted to the trust.

TWO COWS WALKING TO DAIRY SHOW TO ENTER CITY FRIDAY

Ayrshires Will Have Police Escort and Will Be Received at the City Hall.

Alice and Tomboy, thoroughbred Ayrshire cows which have walked from Brandon, Vt., to exhibit at the National Dairy Exposition starting at The Arena Saturday, will enter St. Louis Friday morning.

The animal hikers will cross Eads Bridge about 10:45 a. m., where they will be met by a police escort and taken to City Hall. Here a reception is scheduled for 11:30 a. m. They will then proceed on foot to The Arena.

Yesterday the Ayrshires reached East St. Louis from Collinsville, where they have rested since last Monday, a week ahead of schedule. They are accompanied by Russell Fifer, assistant to the secretary of the Ayrshire Breeders' Association.

23 IS POPULAR MARRYING AGE

LONDON, Oct. 8.—A large number of marriages between youths and women of mature years is one of the oddities in the registrar's review for 1928 which was published today. Twenty men aged 20 married women of 30, and a like number of men of 22 married women between 40 and 51 years of age.

The most popular marrying age is 23. The number of divorces last year, 4018, was the highest on record.

CHILD SWALLOWS POISON

Shirley Freiner, 2 Years Old, in Serious Condition.

Shirley Freiner, two years old, is in a serious condition at City Hospital from the effects of poison, which she swallowed at her home, 3952 North Ninth street, last night.

When the child became ill at 8 o'clock it was discovered that she had obtained a container of poison tablets from a sideboard and swallowed several of the tablets.

FOUR FALSE FIRE ALARMS

Firemen responded to four false alarms between 10:30 and 11:30 o'clock last night.

The alarms were sent in from Lucky street and Newstead avenue, Louisiana avenue and Neosho street, Twenty-second and Dodier streets and Taylor and San Francisco avenues.

AUTOPSY FAILS TO SHOW CAUSE OF CULT GIRL'S DEATH

Los Angeles Chemist to Analyze Contents of Stomach of "Priestess" Found Buried With Dogs.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Oct. 8.— The weird affairs involving "the Divine Order of the Royal Arm of the Great Seal," which came to light with the finding of the body of 16-year-old Willa Rhoads buried at the home of her foster parents here, were further complicated today by civil suits against members of the cult filed by Clifford R. Dabney, oil operator.

The filing of five suits against Mrs. May Otis Blackburn and other members of the cult, seeking the return to $44,000 as well as an oil lease and 164 acres of Ventura County land, was disclosed yesterday while police investigated the death of Miss Rhoads and reports that many members of the religious order had disappeared in the course of its operations.

Officers said several followers of the cult who had been named as among the missing had been found. Criminal charges of embezzlement, sworn to by Dabney and Mrs. Nellie R. Banks of Indianapolis, previously caused the arrest of Mrs. Blackburn and her daughter, Mrs. Ruth Weiland Rizzio, "priestesses" of the organization.

Dabley in his suits charges he and other cult members advanced money to Mrs. Blackburn pending completion of her book, "The Sixth Seal," which was to disclose, by use of "the lost measurements," minerals beneath the earth's surface.

Police placed a guard at the home of Dabney as a result of death threats reported received by him. Twelve threatening letters arrived yesterday, he told officers.

The body of Willa Rhoads is held by the county chemist pending an examination to determine the cause of death. Her foster parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Rhoads, said the girl died in 1925 of diphtheria. An autopsy failed to show the cause of death and a chemical analysis was ordered. Tests to determine the cause of death of seven dogs buried beside the girl also are being made. After a superficial examination police said the dogs were poisoned.

Mr. and Mrs. Rhoads are held as witnesses pending determination of the cause of the girl's death.

CHICAGO AND ST. LOUIS POLO TEAMS TO PLAY SATURDAY

Also Will Meet Saturday on St. Louis Country Club Field.

The first fall inter-city polo match in St. Louis for years will be played between the Redbirds of St. Louis Country Club and the Onwentsia Country Club of Chicago at 2:30 p m. Saturday and Sunday on the local club's field.

Onwentsia and the St. Louis Country Club broke even in a two-game match at Chicago in the spring. The Chicago team is rated the higher, since it is a "7-goal" team while the Redbirds are a "5-goal" team, and hence Onwentsia will play against a 2-goal handicap.

The games are open to the public. Automobiles should drive to the entrance west of Clayton, at Price and Ladue roads, whence they will be directed to the field. Admission fees will be $1 for driver and machine and 50 cents per passenger.

INFERIOR U. S. COURT SYSTEM SUGGESTED BY M'NAB

More Judges, Too, Are Needed, Declares Investigator for Hoover.

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, Colo., Oct. 8. —John L. McNab, San Francisco attorney, returned from Washington yesterday and announced that he was about to begin drafting legislation for better prohibition enforcement and relief of Federal Court congestion. McNab was chosen by President Hoover to plan a statute to take administrative machinery of prohibition enforcement from the Treasury Department and place it under the jurisdiction of the Department of Justice.

"The staggering part of the task that President Hoover has asked me to undertake is that of restoring the Federal Courts to their former position of respect in the eyes of the people of the United States," said McNab.

"Prohibition has brought into the Federal Courts a tremendous number of cheap misdemeanor cases that have reduced the dignity of these high tribunals to the common level of police courts. To correct this evil we shall have to bring more judges into crowded districts, or increase the number and powers of Federal commissioners, or create an inferior Federal Court or do all three."

3000 ORPHANS TO BE GUESTS OF HORSE SHOW SATURDAY

Arrangements Made for Their Transportation to and From Arena in Private Autos.

About 3000 orphans from 15 local institutions will attend the Saturday afternoon performance of the National Horse Show at the Arena, 5700 Oakland avenue, as guests of the management. Arrangements have been made to transport them in private automobiles.

The nine-day show which opens Saturday has attracted exhibitors from thoroughout the country. Prizes totaling $35,000 will be distributed among the owners of 500 horses entered.

"Chief of Longview," stallion owned by Mrs. W. P. Roth, of San Francisco, who values the animal at $25,000, arrived yesterday and is stabled in one of the temporary buildings at the rear of the Arena.

WOMAN TRIES HOTEL HOLDUP

Ties Up Guest, Hits Proprietor on Head With Clock, Escapes.

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 8.— A comely young woman today invaded the Atlas Hotel here, subdued and bound a woman guest, attempted to hold up W. A. Parker, the proprietor, and escaped by striking the hotel man on the head with an alarm clock.

The unidentified woman entered the room of Miss Grace Linedaugh, the guest, and used a revolver to force Miss Linedaugh to submit to being bound. "Come on and tell me where it's hid," she told the guest, apparentlly referring to some valuables. Miss Linedaugh said she had nothing of value and the robber departed, to train her weapon on Parker. He seized the revolver and wrestled with the girl, but her capture was prevented when the hotel man was stunned by a a blow from the clock. A modish hat and the weapon were abandoned by the intruder.

COLORADO PRISON WARDEN DEFENDS STAND IN OUTBREAK

Says All Guards Held as Hostages Would Have Been Killed If He Had Met Convicts' Demands.

By THOMAS DAWSON.
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

CANON CITY, Colo., Oct. 8. — Francis Eugene Crawford, warden of Colorado State penitentiary, is of the opinion that later events vindicated him for his refusal to comply with demands made by mutinous convicts last Thursday and Friday.

The prisoners, led by Danny Daniels, had captured 10 prison guards They demanded that Warden Crawford provide two automobiles for the escape of the ringleaders of the riot. If he did not comply, they said, they would kill the hostages.

Seven of the guards were men with families. It was a tremendous decision to make. Crawford concluded the criminals, even in the event he complied with their demands, would murder the guards in their flight. He flatly refused.

Warden Crawford is in his early fifties and has gray hair. He is a portly man, of medium height. He is known as a humanitarian prison executive. Since 1927, when he assumed the wardenship, there have been no floggings at Canon City penitentiary.

"Could Not Weaken."

"I think I did the only possible thing in refusing to treat with the convicts," Warden Crawford said. "I could not weaken. There was too much at stake. At first, in spite of all I know about desperate men, I believed that Daniels and his confederates would not carry out their threats. It seemed too inhuman for belief. Even after they killed the first guard in cold blood, I still could not see the way to compromise."

"They had in their possession 10 guards. They killed four in cold blood. The other six escaped with their lives. I believe the six who escaped would have been killed outright if I had attempted to meet Daniels' demand for two automobiles and freedom. It was simply unthinkable for a minute to meet those demands.

"Out of hand, a half dozen desperate criminals cowed and terrorized the rest and delivered to the prison authorities successive ultimatums threatening the murder of successive guards. All of the guards held as hostages would unquestionably have been killed in the break for liberty, if I had surrendered. I am a prison executive. It is my duty to keep those men within prison walls. When they passed the line of the prison courtyard, under any circumstances, it would have been my duty to order them shot down."

Considered No Ruse.

Warden Crawford was asked if he had considered any ruse through which, in apparent compliance with the demands, he might have rescued the guards and captured the convict ringleaders.

"No,' he said, "it was perfectly obvious that the convicts planned to use the guards as human shields. Suppose they did get into automobiles. Would they have let the guards go? Of course, not. They'd have hung onto them until they were threatened with capture, then killed them.

"Those men were prepared to commit wholesale murder. To have given in would have meant, first, the lives of all the guards, and, second, further encouragement to insurrection and mutiny. The guards who escaped have come to me to tell me they believed I chose the proper course."

At the time of the riot, Mrs. Helen Grenfell, woman member of the State Board of Prisons and Charities, pleaded with the Warden to send her as an emissary to the convicts.

"I know Danny Daniels," she said. "I talked with him last week. I know I can show him how foolish this business is. Let we go out to him. Let me try to save the lives of those men."

Warden Refuses to Parley.

Crawford shook his head. Col. Newlon of the Colorado National Guard, in charge of about 100 guardsmen posted outside the prison walls, pleaded with the Warden to capitulate. He argued that the lives of the guards should be spared first. Thereafter, posses could be sent out to recapture the criminals, he said. But Warden Crawford said no.

From 5 o'clock Thursday afternoon, when he made known his first refusal, until 12 hours later, when the convicts were slain by their leader, the Warden's associates at the prison gave him no peace. They argued for capitulation while he shook his head. He also refused to allow the National Guard howitzer to be turned against cellhouse No. 3. In that structure, in addition to the four ringleaders—Daniels, James Pardue, A. H. Davis and Red Riley—were six surviving guards and more than 200 convicts locked into cells by Daniels.

Tear gas, it is now established, wrought the demoralization among Daniels' men that bullets and dynamite had failed to produce. Daniels, according to convicts examined by the prison authorities, said, "We can't stand this very long," after six tear gas bombs had been flung into the cell house. The shooting of the convicts by Daniels and his subsequent suicide followed within an hour.

Dispute Delays State Investigation of Mutiny.

DENVER, Colo., Oct. 8.—Investigation into the mutiny at the State penitentiary was at a standstill today, postponed yesterday due to a row over secretaryship to the State Board of Corrections.

As a result of the political bickering, Thomas Duke of Pueblo, appointed to succeed Frank S. Hoag, also of Pueblo, after the later was declared ousted as secretary by the Civil Service Commission, withdrew from the meeting. The inquiry will be continued in Canon City "within a few days," it was announced.

MISS MACDONALD VISITS MODEL SCHOOL

Slips Away From White House to Observe Play Under Scrutiny of Psychologists.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8.—Ishbel MacDonald slipped away from the pomp and ceremony of official doings yesterday to spend more than an hour at a model school and clinic for children. She left the White House shortly after luncheon accompanied only by one of the secretaries of the President's wife, and an aid.

At the school, the Washington Child Research Center, Dr. Louise Stanley, director of the Home Economics Bureau of the Agricultural Department, met the special guests and ushered them into a room in which about 25 children play every day, while psychologists and teachers study from their actions the best methods in training children.

A 16-months-old girl adopted by Dr. Stanley was among the children the visitors found playing in a yard at the back of the building. The group were playing in a specially-constructed pergola and on a long pile, sliding on a shoot—choosing their own toys.

Upstairs Miss MacDonald found a psychologist giving a three-year-old boy a mental test.

"Say mama," the psychologist directed.

Miss MacDonald smiled widely as the boy answered, "I don't. I've been taught at home to say, 'mother'."

Miss MacDonald today turned to Southern music for a new slant on American culture. She accepted an invitation to go to the Library of Congress, where a program of Southern Negro and Kentucky folk songs had been arranged. Mrs. Hoover, Lady Isabella Howard, wife of the British Ambassador, and Miss Ishbel made up the official party to the concert to which about 500 persons had been invited.

Tomorrow Miss MacDonald will be guest of the two highest ranking women officials of the United States Department of Labor, Miss Grace Abbott, of the Children's Bureau, and Miss Mary Anderson, of the Women's Bureau, at luncheon.

To give her a real opportunity to get first hand information on social welfare work in America, the guest list has been made small, permitting the question and answer method of table conversation. It is limited to women of high official position.

Rothstein Murder Trial Delayed.

NEW YORK, Oct. 8.—The trial of George A. McManus, for the murder of Arnold Rothstein, Broadway gambler, was postponed today until Nov. 11. It had been set for Oct. 15. After a conference today with attorneys for the State and defense, Judge Charles C. Nott Jr. also announced that he would not preside at the trial. The postponement puts the Rothstein trial over until after election instead of during the campaign into which it was injected as one of the principal issues by anti-Tammany forces.

MARSHALL FIELD THEFT FAILS; PAIR TRY TO ROB EACH OTHER

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 8.—The understanding was that Marshall Field & Co. was to be robbed of about $1200, but the two young men who conceived the idea tried to rob each other and wound up in jail.

Laurice La Roche, 20 years old, helper on a Marshall Field truck, was held up yesterday and forced to hand over $632 being transferred from one store to another. Later La Roche admitted the robbery was a frameup and he named Harold Pemberton, 18, as his coplotter and the holdup man. They were to divide the loot, La Roche said.

Police learned that La Roche, fearing the well-known double cross, had removed $553 from the package before Pemberton arrived. He said that if Pemberton later had offered him half of the $632 he would have accepted that, too.

Pemberton, told of this, called La Roche by several inelegant titles, one of which was double-crosser.

"Thought you were pulling a fast one, eh?" he shouted at La Roche. "Well, I was set to get most of the dough myself. I was going to be square and split the $632 with you. Then I was going to have a friend of mine hold you up and take it away again."

T. A. T. Officers Consider Making Them Regular Feature.

Motion pictures are being shown today on the westbound T. A. T. plane that arrives at Lambert-St. Louis Field at noon from Columbus, O., and takes off for Waynoka, Ok., at 12:15. Pictures consist of a news reel, a comedy and a feature picture.

Officers of the air line are considering the advisability of making motion picture shows a part of the regular service.

British Actors' Equity Planned.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Oct. 8.—Hundreds of British actors and actresses met today and adopted a resolution in favor of one efficient and powerful actors' organization for England. It would be based on the principles of the American Actors' Equity Association. John Emerson, president of Equity, described how his organization protected actors in America, and the British players shouted their thanks when he offered his services and Equity's in helping form the British organization.

TARIFF AMENDMENT OF G. O. P. DEFEATED

Proposal Sought to Extend tend Customs Rate Changing Privileges.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8. — The Senate today rejected a Republican amendment to the tariff bill to extend to labor, agricultural and consumers' organizations the right now given manufacturers to intervene in customs cases. The vote was 44 to 41.

The amendment defeated also would have enlarged the right of manufacturers as parties at interest in customs cases.

Twelve Republicans joined 32 Democrats in voting against the amendment. Three Democrats supported 38 Republicans for it.

Continuance of the coalition's power is anticipated by its leaders as a result of the defeat yesterday of the Republican amendment to permit customs appraisers in certain instances to resort to an estimated value in levying ad valorem rates.

Regular Republic leaders insisted, however, that the vote on this issue, 44 to 37, did not sustain the claims that the coalition would hold intact through consideration of the numerous changes proposed in the imposts, which is expected to start tomorrow or Thursday.

A move to prevent nullification of the coalition's victory over the administration in taking the flexible tariff powers away from the President, meanwhile, has been initiated by Senator McKellar, (Dem.) Tennessee.

His proposal is that the Senate itself, instead of the Vice President, designate the Chamber's committee, when the time comes, to confer on differences in the measure with Representatives of the House, which voted to continue the flexible tariff policy favored by the President.

Confident that the group will hold power at that time, the Tennesseean thinks it could put an Independent Republican on the Senate Conference Committee in place of a regular Republican who under long precedent would be appointed.

Precedents would require the Vice President to nominate Chairman Smoot of the Finance Committee, the two ranking Republicans and the two ranking Democrats as conferees. Recalling that the House supported the President against export debentures, McKellar is determined that the Senate not be made "subservient to the administration machine in the House."

NORTH CAROLINA STRIKERS DROP THREE MURDER CHARGES

Accusation Stands, However, Against Sheriff and 11 Deputies for Marion Killing.

By the Associated Press.

MARION, N. C., Oct. 8.—Murder charges against three Sheriff's deputies growing out of the killing of five strikers in a riot at the Marion Manufacturing Co.'s plant today were dismissed after the Solicitor announced that the strikers had withdrawn charges against them.

Those dismissed are: W. G. Biggerstaff, John Snoddy and John Gowan. The freeing of the three deputies left Sheriff O. F. Adkins and 11 deputies to face charges of murder and conspiracy to murder lodged against them in warrants sworn out by attorneys for the strikers. Immediately after dismissing the charges the State closed its evidence in the murder charges and strikers' attorneys agreed to waive preliminary hearings on charges of rebellion lodged against the strikers by the Sheriff.

The strikers, between 50 and 60 of them, were bound over under $500 bonds until the regular term of the Superior Court.

RAIL UNIONS MAY AFFILIATE

Proposal Made by Trainmen's Leader at A. F. of C. Convention.

By the Associated Press.

TORONTO, Oct. 8.—An attempt to heal the long standing breach between railroad train service organizations and the rest of organized labor was made today before the American Federation of Labor annual convention. Albert Whitney, president of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, which, like engineer and conductors' organizations, has remained outside federation affiliations, got the convention platform, to declare his purpose to reverse the policy of his union and bring about affiliation. He intended to ask for a vote of the lodges of the trainmen's brotherhood on the proposal, he said, while the convention rose and applauded.

Daniel J. Tobin, head of the teamsters' organization, demanded a hearing as Whitney concluded. "When this affiliation of the railroad brotherhoods was sought before," Tobin declared, "it was a complete failure, because the rights of other organizations had to be protected. That rights of other organizations to protect their jurisdiction over certain tradesmen and mechanics must be considered when any railroad brotherhood seeks to affiliate with the federation."

44 DROWN WHEN SHIP HITS ROCK AND SINKS

69 Others Saved in Wreck Off Coast of Norway.

By the Associated Press.

BERGEN, Norway, Oct. 8.—Thirty-five passengers and nine members of the crew are thought to have drowned when the steamer Haakon VII struck a rock near Floroe in a terrific storm Sunday night and foundered almost immediately. Sixty-nine persons were saved.

The horrors of the disaster were described by survivors, although many still were suffering from exposure and shock so that they were unable to answer questions.

Twelve third-class passengers were imprisoned for hours in their quarters in the bow of the vessel barely above the water which flooded the rest of the ship. The impact had thrown the Captain into the sea and extinguished the electric lights, adding darkness to the terrors of shipwreck. The Captain swam to a rock from which he later was rescued, but was so exhausted last night that he was unable to give any explanation of the cause of the wreck.

It was a pitch dark night, with a heavy wind blowing when the vessel struck. It had been traveling at 13 knots an hour. Most of the passengers had retired and when the shock came hurried on deck scantily dressed to find that the vessel rapidly was turning over. Within a few minutes the extreme bow was above water. The passengers either crowded forward on this small unsubmerged portion or threw themselves into the sea.

A boatswain was the hero of the wreck. He succeeded in fastening a hauser from the bow to the rock down which he lowered passengers who were then able to make their way ashore along the reef. Nearly 55 were saved in this way, but they had to remain exposed to the bitter night from 11 o'clock to about 4 a. m., when the steamer San Lucar reached them. It was not until the rescue vessel arrived that the third class passengers were released from their dangerous prison in the hull of the stranded ship. Although many of the passengers were bruised, only three required hospital treatment and the conditon of these was not serious.

Many showed great heroism. A Bergen business man, Dan Huun, went below while the ship was sinking and forced the door of a saloon, dragging out seven passengers who otherwise would have perished.

It was difficult to determine the exact number of those lost, the passenger list having gone down with the ship.

The place of te wreck is most difficult for navigation. Another steamer of the same company grounded soon after the Haakon, but was refloated. A few days ago a sister ship, the Queen Maud, went aground in almost the same spot and suffered serious damage.

11 OF 35 VENIREMEN, OPPOSED TO PROHIBITION, REJECTED

Glencoe (Mo.) Dance Hall Owner Freed on Liquor Charge at Clayton.

Personal disagreement with the prohibition laws on the part of 11 veniremen forced Circuit Judge Lashly to summon a total of 35 in order to obtain a panel of 24 for the trial of a liquor case at Clayton yesterday.

The defendant, Elisha Brockman, dance hall proprietor of Glencoe, charged with the sale of moonshine liquor, was discharged when the Court sustained a demurrer to the effect that the State had not established that the drinks purchased were actually intoxicating. State's witnesses were unable to state that what they bought was liquor.

Of the original 24 veniremen, eight were excused on the State's challenge as to their views on prohibition. Of the eight summoned to take their place, three were excused for the same cause. Three more were called to complete the panel.

Brockman was acquitted in Circuit Judge Mulloy's court last week of a charge of operating a disorderly resort. He will face a first-degree murder charge in Judge Lashly's court Oct. 28 in connection with the death of Frank Drinning of Glencoe, who was shot in September, 1928.

TRAPPED BANK ROBBER ATTACKS VALIDITY OF CHARGE

Attorneys Allege He Was Not Accorded Preliminary Hearing at Sedalia.

SEDALIA, Mo., Oct. 8.—Attorneys for Ray Decker, charged with attempted holdup of a bank at Smithton, Mo., asked for dismissal of the case when it was called in Criminal Court yesterday, on the ground that the defendant had not been accorded a preliminary examination.

A hearing is said to have been held but no papers had been filed in circuit court showing such was the case. The holdup has aroused much comment, and Decker, held in jail here for several months since his arrest, has charged that he was framed. The Sheriff's office and police department here had been informed by an accomplice that a robbery was contemplated and when the time arrived for its execution they were waiting for the would-be robbers.

SAYS GASTONIA STRIKERS WERE TO SHOOT TO KILL

Woman Testifies Fred Erwin Beal, Leader in Walkout Movement, Gave That Order to Workers.

By the Associated Press.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Oct. 8.—The prosecution's evidence in the trial of seven men, charged with second degree murder in connection with the killing of Chief of Police O. F. Aderholt of Gastonia at a textile strikers' tent colony, probably will be completed late today.

Clyde R. Hoey, one of the prosecuting attorneys, so announced yesterday after Tom Gilbert, Gastonia police officer, and A. J. Roach, special deputy, told the jury about the shooting of the Chief, and Mrs. George McMahon testified that Fred Erwin Beal, leader of strike movements in Gastonia, had instructed workers "to shoot and shoot to kill."

Gilbert told the Court that William McGinnis, a striker, had fired the shot which wounded him and he also pointed out Louis McLaughlin, another defendant, as the man who fired the second shot.

These two shotgun discharges preceded a volley from the union headquarters which the witness said not only sent Aderholt to his knees, but also wounded Roach.

Officers Under Indictment.

Roach also told the story of the shooting. On cross examination it was brought out that he and Gilbert were under indictment for assault with a deadly weapon for an attack that occurred in Mecklenburg County on the afternoon of the killing of Aderholt.

The defense also forced Roach to admit he had paid two fines in South Carolina for liquor law violations and that he had resigned from the Gastonia police force with charges of assault against him for "slapping a Negro."

Gilbert admitted he had been charged with resisting an officer a number of years ago and that he had paid a finne in a shooting affray.

Deputy Sheriff on Stand.

The name of Clarence Miller, the last of the defendants to be implicated in the shooting, was placed in the records by W. P. Upton, deputy sheriff, who testified he found Miller in the union headquarters after the shooting. Upton said Miller told him, "You know we had one union headquarters torn up by thugs and police and when the officers came up I ordered them off. We are going to protect this building at all costs."

The "labor jury," appointed by the Trade Union Unity League convention at Cleveland, O., arrived yesterday and occupied seats in the gallery. The entire "jury" took seats upstairs, because a court ruling does not allow Negroes on the main floor.

U. S. AUTO FACTORIES ADOPT GERMAN DIAMOND SUBSTITUTE

American Scientists Further Develop Material Used in Precision Instruments.

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, Oct. 8.—American automobile factories have taken advantage of experiments made by German scientisis during the World War in the production of a substitute for diamonds needed in the manufacture of precision instruments.

Developing the German experiments American scientists have produced a material so hard that it scratches glass like a diamond and named it carboloy. It is a tungsten carbide and has been called the hardest material ever manufactured commercially by man. Harder than the hardest of high speed steel, its ingredients are carbon, cobalt and tungsten.

Carboloy is used in automobile factory work to provide tips for steel cutting machinery in several precision operations. While approximating the hardness of a diamond, carboloy is slightly less brittle and therefore does not chip so easily.

Artificial diamonds have been produced by subjecting carbon to tremendous heat and pressure, but the cost has proved prohibitive. Manufacture of carboloy also is relatively expensive, but only a very small piece is required—just enough to produce a tip weighing 6 to 12 grams on a base of steel.

It is possible with the new substance to hold cutting operations to within the limits of two ten-thousandths of an inch.

Mistrial in Poultry Trust Case.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 8.—A mistrial was declared today in the case of the more than 80 poultry dealers accused of violating the Sherman antitrust law by monopolizing the live-poultry industry in the metropolitan area, but a new trial was immediately started on agreement by both sides. The mistrial was declared by Federal Judge John C. Knox, when it was found that a juror was a friend and lodge brother of Benjamin Simon, one of the defendants. Counsel for the Government and the defense agreed, however, to accept the remaining jurors and the trial reopened as soon as a new one was chosen. The trial began yesterday.

before the dean of men and the president of the college, but just why he was dismissed was not made known. Barnes took the position that the fences were erected to keep the girls inside the dormitories after hours, while the college faculty insistd they were built to keep out "peeping Toms."

FORMAL WHITE HOUSE DINNER IN HONOR OF MACDONALD, NINETY AT HORSESHOE TABLE

Cabinet, Three Former Ambassadors to Britain, Congressional Leaders Attend — President Escorts Lady Isabella Howard.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8.—The White House was ablaze last night for the first formal dinner given by President Hoover in honor of the British Prime Minister MacDonald and his daughter, Ishbel.

The state china—gold rimmed and seal—was laid around a horseshoe table for 90 guests.

The entire Cabinet and several of the assistant secretaries, four members of the Coolidge Cabinet and three former Ambassadors to Great Britain were among the guests, as well as leaders in Congress and high officers of the Army and Navy.

The Dolly Madison dining service was used with its formal centerpiece of mirrors and vases filled with pink roses, alternating with vases of roses and evergreens, extending from one end of the table to the other.

Gold candelabra filled with white tapers added to the general effect. Back of the President's chair palms and ferns were massed, and above the mnatelpiece was a painting of the mountains of California. On the north wall of the room hung the full length portrait of Abraham Lincoln, recently placed there at the special request of the President and Mrs. Hoover.

Mrs. Gann's Status.

The social status of Mrs. Dolly Curtis Gann, sister and official hostess of Vice President Curtis, was believed by her friends to have been determined definitely at the State dinner.

Although the Vice President waived the precedence of his sister for this occasion, Mrs. Gann was given a place beside her brother in the official reception preceding the dinner, at the head of the reception line to greet the President and Mrs. Hoover.

At the dinner itself Mrs. Gann sat to the left of the President, having been escorted to the State dining room by Sir Esme Howard, the British Ambassador, who occupied the seat to her left. The place of honor at the chief executive's right went to Lady Isabella Howard, who entered on the arm of the President.

Although Vice President Curtis volunteered to waive his rank in favor of the Prime Minister, in the seating arrangement he was given the place to the right of the first lady, whom he escorted into the dining room. MacDonald sat on Mrs. Hoover's left next to Mrs. Henry L. Stimson, wife of the Secretary of State, whom he escorted.

Miss Ishbel MacDonald sat to the President's right next to Secretary Stimson, who was her escort.

Lady Howard was dressed in orange silk and wore her decorations and diamonds. Sir Esme and several others also wore decorations.

Mrs. Hoover's gown was periwinkle blue velvet with bodice drape in surplice style. The long skirt, hung in points, with a train lying two feet on the floor. She wore no jewels. Mrs. Gann wore silver lace with flesh tulle in the bodice and a separate train of silver lace.

Gen. G. W. Skiddy of Yale Dies.
By the Associated Press.

STAMFORD, Conn., Oct. 8. — Gen. William Skiddy, banker and member of the Yale Class of 1865 and personally known to every living Yale oarsman of the past 40 years, died at his home at Pound Rocks yesterday at the age of 84. To Yale men the world over Gen. Skiddy's name was known because of his intense interest in Yale rowing. For his entire adult life he stood as an adviser on crew matters and during most of those years sharing with the squads the training quarters at Gales Ferry.

FORMAL WHITE HOUSE DINNER IN HONOR OF MACDONALD

blue green panne velvet, made long, draped at one side.

Miss Ishbel MacDonald wore a white taffeta gown made with long sweeping lines and with a cluster of red roses on the shoulder.

Reception in Blue Room.

The President and Mrs. Hoover with their guests of honor received the guests in the blue drawing room, in which had been placed white roses and potted ferns and palms. Tall candelabra on either side of mantlepiece in the Red Room held white candles. The flowers in this room were red roses and gladioli. In the Green Room were pink roses and tall vases of feathery pink cosmos.

A new touch in the Green Room was a handsome white and gold tapestry altar cloth which had been placed over a long console table beneath a huge mirror.

Following the dinner Lewis Richards gave a harpsichord recital in the East Room, where chairs and divans had been placed about the wall. A portrait of George Washington by Sully, and one of Martha Washington have lately been hung in this room. The guests noticed a little inscription on the latter, stating it was the portrait rescued by Dolly Madison when the British burned the White House.

Two immense black and gold vases of crimson roses were the only touch of vivid color in the room, except that made by the gowns of the women.

The British Prime Minister and his daughter spent the night at the White House. They have a three-room suite on the northwest corner of the second floor. Mr. MacDonald has the room and the bed used by Abraham Lincoln, and Miss MacDonald has the room used by John Coolidge.

The list of guests was announced at the White House in the following order, but it was explained that this was not the order of seating:

The Vice President, Charles Curtis, and his sister and official hostess, Mrs. Dolly Curtis Gann; Premier MacDonald and Miss Ishbel MacDonald; the Ambassador of Great Britain and Lady Isabella Howard; the Secretary of State and Mrs. Henry L. Stimson; the Canadian Minister and Mrs. Vincent Massey; Michael MacWhite, the Minister of the Irish Free State.

Associate Justice James C. McReynolds, of the United States Supreme Court; Lord Arnold, personal friend of MacDonald; Sir Robert Van Sittart, undersecretary of State for Foreign Affairs; Robert L. Craigie, head of the American division of the London Foreign office; Thomas Jones, secretary to the Prime Minister.

The Secretary of the Treasury, Andrew W. Mellon; the Secretary of War and Mrs. James W. Good; the Attorney-General and Mrs. William D. Mitchell; the Postmaster-General and Mrs. Walter F. Brown; the Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Charles Francis Adams; the Secretary of the Interior and Mrs. Ray Lyman Wilbur; the Secretary of Agriculture and Mrs. Arthur M. Hyde; the Secretary of Commerce and Mrs. Robert P. Lamont; the Secretary of Labor and Mrs. James L. Davis.

Senators Present.

Senator William E. Borah, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and Mrs. Borah; Senator Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas, the Democratic leader of the Senate; Senator James E. Watson of Indiana, the Republican Floor Leader, and Mrs. Watson; Senator Frederick Hale of Maine, chairman of the Naval Affairs Committee; Senator George H. Moses of New Hampshire, president pro tempore of the Senate.

Representative Stephen G. Porter of Pennsylvania, chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee; Representative John Q. Tilson of Connecticut, the Republican leader in the house.

Admiral Charles F. Hughes, chief of naval operations, and Mrs. Hughes, and Gen. Charles P. Summerall, Chief of the Army General Staff, and Mrs. Sommerall.

Charles E. Hughes, former Secretary of State, and Mrs. Hughes; Frank B. Kellogg, Former Secretary of State, and Mrs. Kellogg; Harry S. New, Former Postmaster-General and Mrs. New; William M. Jardine, Former Secretary of Agriculture and Mrs. Jardine.

Other Officials.

Joseph P. Cotton, Under-Secretary of State, and Mrs. Cotton; Ogden L. Mills, Under-Secretary of the Treasury, and Mrs. Mills; Charles E. Hughes Jr., Solicitor General of the United States; Walter H. Newton, administrative assistant to the President, and Mrs. Newton; George W. Wickersham, chairman of the National Law Enforcement Commission, and a former Attorney-General; William R. Castle Jr., Assistant Secretary of State, and Mrs. Castle; Patrich J. Hurley, Assistant Secretary of War and Mrs. Hurley; Ernest L. Jahncke, Assistant Secretary of the Navy; Julius Klein, Assistant Secretary of Commerce, and Mrs. Klein; Charles J. Rhoads, Commissioner of Indian Affairs, and Mrs. Rhoads; Alanson B. Houghton, former Ambassador to Great Britain and Mrs. Houghton; John W. Davis, former Ambassador to Great Britain, and Mrs. Davis; J. Theodore Marriner, head of the State Department Division of Western European Affairs; Mr. and Mrs. Julius Barnes of New York; Edward F. McGrady, of the American Federation of Labor, and Capt. Allen Buchanan and Col. Campbell B. Hodges, naval and military aids to the President.

Mrs. Longworth in Washington for Very Short Visit.
By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8.—Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longworth, whose absence from the capital during the visit of Prime Minister MacDonald has prompted some comment in social circles, was in Washington today for what she described as a very short visit.

She said she returned "in the middle of last night" and would leave "probably today or tomorrow." She said she did not intend to take part in any social entertainments, explaining her home here was not open. To further questioning she replied: "I never give interviews."

Style —And How!

Style in the designing—style in the fabrics—style all the way through these new Bartlett Topcoats for Fall.

The Windsor, pictured above, is one of the most popular—particularly in the new Black-and-White Tweed Homespun—a fabric which looks like it was just "off the boat" from bonny Scotland. You'll probably be surprised to know that this elegant fabric was loomed right here in this country. But it certainly has that stylish "Scotchy" look which sets it apart from the ordinary run of Topcoats.

Or, maybe one of the new Bartlett Polos in Sudan Tan or Tahoe Blue Camel's Hair effect will strike your fancy. Or, perhaps you'll find your choice among the dozens and dozens of other fine new Topcoats for Fall now here on display. At any rate you'll be surprised to find how much you'll save by buying direct from the maker.

PEEPING YOUTH SHOT BY BELLEVILLE POLICE

Howard Walthes One of Group Caught at Girls' Dressing Room Window.

Howard Walthes, 18-year-old foundry worker, was shot in the left lung and seriously wounded last night by Patrolman E. W. Mellon of the Belleville force who was chasing a group of boys accused of peeping through a window in a girls' dressing room at the Belleville Turnverein.

The shooting occurred on Third street between A and Main streets after a chase of several blocks. The policeman said he fired two shots at the pavement to frighten three boys who were running about 100 feet ahead and one of the bullets glanced upwards, striking Walthes.

At St. Elizabeth's Hospital, Belleville, physicians said the bullet was lodged too deeply for an operation to be attempted.

Police reported Mellon and Patrolman Herbert Kaltenbrown were sent to the Turner Hall at 9:20 o'clock after Chief of Police Mayes had received a telephone call that boys were peeping in an alley window.

The two policemen entered opposite ends of the alley, slipping up to a point near the window and turned flashlights on the boys. Three of the boys scampered off toward Second street followed by Mellon, while the others fled in the opposite direction pursued by Kaltenbrown.

Walthes is the son of Joseph J. W. Walthes, a pattern maker, of 38 Columbia avenue, Belleville, with whom he lived. The father said today that his son admitted to him at the hospital that he was one of the boys at the window.

SAYS HE SAW SLAIN NURSE OF WASHINGTON WITH STRANGER

Gardner Declares Mrs. Virginia McPherson Was at His Home Until Midnight.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8.—A surprise witness in the case of Mrs. Virginia McPherson, bride of eight months who was strangled in her apartment, has told Department of Justice Agents that the young woman had been at his home as late as midnight Sept. 12, the night she met her death.

The witness, Victory Gauthey, a landscape gardner of Ardmore. Md., near here, said she was with a man who was not her husband, Robert A. McPherson Jr., under indictment on a charge of killing his wife.

Introduction of Gauthey was the second development within two da in the death of the woman which was first accepted as suicide. Federal investigators, who were brought into the case after the police had been denounced for their handling of it, found what they said was proof that the woman received two men in her apartment before she either took her own life or was strangled by someone else. This evidence is said to have indicated that an altercation had arisen and after one of the men had left the other choked the young woman to death with a cord.

with any plot against King's life. They were arrested in St. Louis and gave bond.

The Illinois Governor subsequently refused the application of Jackson County authorities for extradition papers on the ground it was not shown that Bennett or Britt were in Illinois at the time of the alleged attempt on King's life and could not be fugitives from that State.

SHAW-WALKER

307 N. 4th St., Between Olive and Locust

One of the many picturesque spots on the blue Danube in Budapest. World travelers consider this one of the most beautiful cities in all Europe.

"I ask all my clients to use one soap—Palmolive!"

says Madame Stefania Weisz, of Budapest, leading beauty specialist to the aristocracy

"Because so many soaps are definitely harmful to the skin, I ask all my clients never to use any soap except Palmolive."

BUDAPEST

"ALTHOUGH skins vary considerably," says Stefania Weisz, of Budapest, "deep, thorough cleansing is the basic requirement of them all." Thus Madame Weisz explains the need for regular use of soap and water.

But it must be Palmolive Soap. Madame Weisz is consulted by the former aristocracy of Hungary, by the lovely women of the film and theatrical world. To all of them she says, "If you will only cleanse the skin regularly with this pure blend of olive and palm oils, it will respond much more effectively to my treatments."

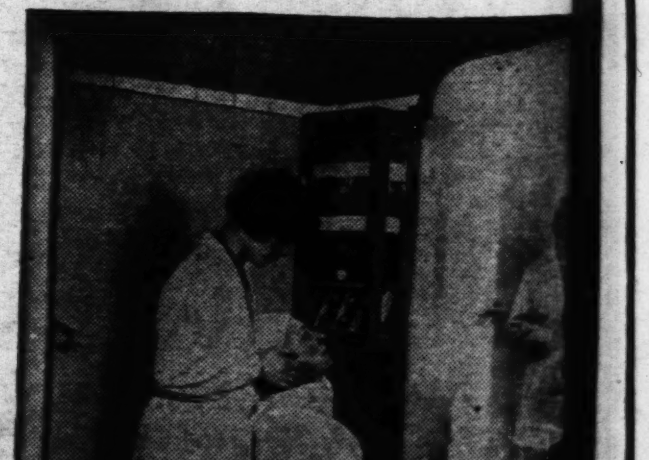
Echten, of Budapest, says nothing takes the place of Palmolive

"Whenever I give a treatment in my salon, I add the advice to cleanse the skin twice daily with Palmolive Soap," says Echten, another great Budapest expert. "Nothing else, in my experience, so thoroughly removes all the tiny particles that collect and clog up the pores, and unless all this accumulation is removed regularly, no amount of treatment can really keep the skin youthful and healthy."

That statement, you'll find, is typical of the specialists of Middle Europe. Pessl, of Vienna and Budapest, agrees to it. So does Lavecky, of Prague. And they are joined by an international group, including Paris' most gifted beauty advisers.

Here is the suggested treatment

With the finger tips, massage a smooth lather of Palmolive Soap and warm water into the pores. Rinse away the impurities with warm water, then cold. Use Palmolive for the bath, too. Let your whole body enjoy its advantages, since it costs no more than ordinary soaps. Millions of people obey this advice. They have made Palmolive one of the two leading toilet soaps in France, home of beauty; the first of all facial soaps in America and 48 other countries.



A salon treatment by Weisz, of Budapest. Madame Weisz insists that deep, thorough cleansing is the basic requirement of all beauty treatments. And Palmolive Soap and water is best for such cleansing, in her opinion.

Here is the greatest professional endorsement in the world! 17,502 beauty specialists recommend daily use of Palmolive

LEGGE EXPLAINS BOARD'S STAND ON STABILIZATION

Should Be Conducted by Co-Operatives Under Ordinary Conditions, Extraordinary by Board.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8. — In a letter defining the position of the Farm Board on crop stabilization Chairman Legge today, said stabilization should be divided into two classes: That conducted by co-operatives under ordinary conditions and that conducted by the Board under extraordinary circumstances.

The letter, written to Chairman McNary of the Senate Agriculture Committee, continued that in the emergency situation the Government would stand losses if they occurred.

Legge said the letter was written because a reading of the testimony before the committee last week disclosed the "subject of stabilization is not very clearly expressed" by the Board members who discussed it, because questions and answers were so disconnected.

The Farm Board Chairman declared his communication could be accepted as the position of the Board as a whole.

Opposition Lessening.

Opposition of cotton and wheat groups in the Senate to confirmation of two Farm Board members is thought by administration leaders to have lessened today and they renewed their expressions of hope that the entire board would be approved.

The move against Carl Williams of Oklahoma, cotton's representative on the board, appeared to be less pronounced after publication of a supplemental statement sent by him to Chairman McNary of the Senate Agriculture Committee, in which he said he favored the highest price for cotton the world would pay.

The statement elaborated on testimony given before the Agriculture Committee last week in which Williams said he believed cotton should be bringing 1 cent to 1¼ cents more than it does at present. This statement aroused the opposition of Senator Smith (Dem.), South Carolina, leader of the cotton group, who contended the price should be much higher.

Stand on McKelvie Changing.

After reading Williams' statement, which the board member said he made because it was obvious he had been misunderstood, Senator Smith said he would arrange for conferences to make further inquiries and then determine his course.

Likewise, oppositon to Sam R. McKelvie of Nebraska, wheat's representative on the board, was said by administration leaders to have eased off considerably. They contended that while a number of Senators from wheat states were not satisfied with McKelvie's views, they were not disposed to oppose his confirmation.

Senator Wheeler (Dem.), Montana, said he had not convinced himself McKelvie had a wide range view of the wheat growers' problems. He said he would make inquiries and determine his course before the Agriculture Committee meets to vote on the board members.

MOTHER, DAUGHTER, OBTAIN DIVORCES AT THE SAME TIME

Younger Woman Remarried at Once, Though She Asked for Maiden Name.

By the Associated Press.

RENO, Nev., Oct. 8.—Mother and daughter obtained divorces at the same time yesterday though in different departments of the District Court. The daughter was immediately re-married.

The mother is Mrs. Ella W. Sill, who obtained a divorce from Seymour E. Sill of Buffalo, N. Y., on the ground of failure to provide the necessaries of life.

The daugther obtained a divorce from Richard Henry Means, son of a lawyer of Buffalo, N. Y., and received permission to resume her maiden name of Sill. She kept it a few minutes, and then before becoming the bride of George F. Dehy, who gave his home address as Reno.

GAMBLING CASINO FOR PANAMA

PANAMA CITY, Oct. 8.—T. G. Duque, Secretary of the Treasury, has signed a contract with Ben Gray, Inc., New York, for construction and operation of a tourist hotel and gambling casino in Panama City. The concession was given in accordance with a new law allowing certain forms of gambling.

According to the terms of the agreement the concessionaire will invest at least $750,000 in the plant, paying the Government from $5000 to $12,000 annually plus a percentage of gross receipts for 25 years. The concession is renewable for another 25 years. Ben Gray said he represented some New York financiers. He will leave soon for the United States.

MAN SHOT AT DRINKING PARTY SATURDAY DIES

James Pritchard, 420 North Ninth, Was Wounded by Negro.

James Pritchard, 32 years old, a laborer, 4219 North Ninth street, died at City Hospital today of a bullet wound near the heart suffered Saturday afternoon.

Police are holding for the Coroner Peter Conners, a Negro, 5022 North Second street, who admitted shooting Pritchard after a drinking party at Connors' home.

The two men had several drinks, Connors said, and when he objected to further drinking, Pritchard became abusive, followed him from the kitchen to the bedroom and made a move as if to strike him. Connors said he obtained a revolver and fired in self-defense Pritchard identified the Negro as his assailant.

Political Club Leader Slain.

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 8.—Andres Quinones, president of the Anti-Re-Electionist Club at Los Mochis, Sinaloa, was assassinated last Thursday, it was disclosed in a protest which Juan Catano Flores, secretary-general of the Anti-Re-Electionist party, sent to President Emilio Portes Gil yesterday.

INQUIRY IN PHELPS MURDER RESUMED

County Grand Jury to Hear Witnesses in Overland Bank Killing.

The St. Louis County grand jury, which has been investigating the murder last January of Todd V. Phelps, cashier of the Overland State Bank, by one of four robbers in a holdup of that bank, met again today to resume the inquiry. Several witnesses are to be heard before an indictment can be voted.

The case has several aspects of a conflicting nature and Prosecuting Attorney Castien has passed the matter on to the grand jury.

It will be recalled that Sylvester Baldwin, St. Louis County roadhouse proprietor, was identified by George Hoech, clerk in the bank, as the robber who shot down the cashier after he had handed over all the money. After Baldwin had been in jail six months St. Louis detectives announced a confession by Lawrence Ahrens, St. Louis gangster, that he was one of the robbers, and that James McGauley, life convict in the Michigan prison, had killed Phelps. Baldwin was not mentioned in Ahrens' confession.

Hoech later repudiated his identification of Baldwin after viewing McGauley in the Michigan prison, stating McGauley more nearly resembled the slayer than Baldwin. The latter was then released on bond, and the grand jury now is considering Ahrens' confession and possible connection of McGauley with the crime.

The grand jury session are under the direction of Circuit Judge Arthur V. Lashly, whose brother, Jacob M. Lashly, former president of the St. Louis Bar Association, is attorney for the bank and associated with the prosecution. Louis H. Egan, president of the Union Electric Light & Power Co., is foreman.

Rides Plane to His Texas Ranch.

ALPINE, Tex., Oct. 8.—The most secluded ranch in Texas, 122 miles from any town, has been linked with the rest of the country by aviation. Elmo Johnson has established a landing field at his ranch south of the Chisos Mountains. Many planes have utilized the field as a welcome oasis. Johnson raises deer which the State Game Department ships to all parts of Texas.

CADILLAC LaSALLE FLEETWOOD

EXCESS VALUES MAKE THESE NEW MODELS LOWEST PRICED OF ALL TRULY FINE CARS

The new La Salles are priced from $2285 to $2795; the new Cadillacs from $3195 to $3795; the new Fleetwoods from $3995 to $7500. All prices f. o. b. Detroit.

WHEN, three weeks ago, the new Cadillacs, La Salles and Fleetwoods were introduced, the Cadillac Motor Car Company promised—in these new creations—the greatest chassis value, the greatest body value, and the greatest price value in the motor-car industry today.

That this promise is fulfilled is perfectly apparent to every one who has become personally familiar with these new Cadillacs and La Salles and had an opportunity to contrast them with those cars which might even remotely be considered competitive.

The present newness of the new Cadillacs and La Salles affects every phase of motor car appearance, performance and appointment.

New designs; lower, longer, racier lines; greater seating capacity; larger, smoother, more flexible V-type, 8-cylinder engines; more speed and power; non-shatterable Security-Plate Glass in all windows, doors and windshields.

A new harmonized steering system, designed by Cadillac engineers, makes these cars amazingly easy to handle. So perfectly does this new harmonized steering system solve the problems arising from low-pressure balloon tires and higher speeds that it eliminates all steering effort and steering strain.

Two special Cadillac-La Salle features—the quick, quiet, clashless Syncro-Mesh Silent-Shift Transmission and the Safety-Mechanical Four-Wheel Brakes—have been raised to new heights of efficiency, ease of operation and protection.

The new Fisher and Fleetwood bodies are so rich and regal that the average automobile body appears disturbingly inadequate by comparison. Luxurious new special fittings and appointments are everywhere evident in these new Cadillacs and La Salles:

New touches of modernity in the fashioning of mouldings, louvers and valances; roomier rear seats; more spacious front compartments; all Cadillac and Fleetwood 5- and 7-passenger closed bodies are equipped with disappearing center arm rests in rear compartments; adjustable front seats are even more easily adjusted than in previous models; instrument panel recessed into cowl; smart cadet visors; larger headlights; double-acting windshield wipers.

Nothing has been left undone—in these new Cadillacs and La Salles—in equipment, finish and appointment to achieve the very utmost in comfort, safety, dependability, driving facility and luxurious environment.

A summing-up of comparisons and contrasts can result in but one conclusion: that these new Cadillacs and La Salles are not only the most highly perfected and completely appointed motor-cars in the industry today, but—what is of even greater importance—that Cadillac, the world's quality-standard, has become also the world's price-value standard by which all other motor-car values must come to be judged. Cadillac Motor Car Company, Division of General Motors.

. . . Consider the delivered price as well as the list price when comparing automobile values. Cadillac-La Salle delivered prices include only reasonable charges for delivery and financing.

Banker Merely Delayed on Return From Hunting Trip.

By the Associated Press.

ANCHORAGE, Alaska, Oct. 8.—James A. Stillman, New York banker, reported missing on a hunting trip, will arrive here today by boat, Pilot Joe Crosson said yesterday upon his return from a flight up the Skwentna River where he landed and visited Stillman.

The banker had been delayed in his trip down the river. He was expected to arrive here Saturday.

1500-MILE FLIGHT IN SEARCH FOR EIGHT

Flyer Unreported Four Days Fails to Find Missing Canadians.

By the Associated Press.

WINNIPEG, Man., Oct. 8. — A radio message today told of a 1500-mile flight by a Canadian aviator over the barren lands of the Canadian Northwest in an unsuccessful search for eight aerial prospectors, missing 30 days.

"Punch" Dickins, known as one of the most skilled Arctic flyers, radioed from Fort Smith on Alberta's northern boundary that he had completed a search from Fort Reliance, at the east end of Great Slave Lake, to Bathurst inlet, on Canada's far northern coast, flying at times within the Arctic circle.

No word had been received from Dickins in four days and plans were under way to send a relief plane in search of him. He explained, however, that he had made the flight in the three days planned, but had been storm-bound at reliance for three days.

The flight of the Western Canada Airways' pilot eliminated from the search all but a short section of the route which Col. C. D. N. McAlpine and his seven companions had intended to cover in their two planes. Only a 50-mile area remains to be scanned, but the possibility exists that the prospectors may have been forced off their course.

Four other planes are engaged in the search for the missing men, but flying has been hampered by the extreme cold. At Baker Lake, one of the base points, the temperature fell to 18 degrees and at Bathurst to 21. Ice formed on the lakes, making the use of pontoons virtually impossible. The government tug, Neophyte, carrying skiis for the planes and other supplies, has arrived within 25 miles of Baker Lake after being delayed by Gales.

ATHLETICS DEFEAT CUBS, 3-1, IN THE FIRST GAME

Strike Outs Feature Work of Both Pitchers

CUBS MISS BIG SCORING CHANCE IN THIRD FRAME

By J. Roy Stockton
Of the Post-Dispatch Sport Staff.

CUBS PARK, CHICAGO, Oct. 8.—Root breezed through the first inning like a master pitcher. He put over two strikes on Bishop, then threw two balls, after which Bishop grounded weakly to Grimm. Haas was called out on strikes, making a half-hearted effort. Cochrane walked. Simmons swung twice and got only one foul. The stands cheered Charley as he plodded to the dugout. It was a fine start.

There was more action in the Cubs' half, but a stiff wind blowing in from the right field wall prevented the Cubs from scoring. McMillan opened by fouling to Cochrane and English then singled off Ehmke's glove, Boley also handling the ball. Rogers Hornsby then hit a powerful drive to right. It appeared to be destined for the bleachers, but the wind held it back and Bing Miller made the catch near the fence. Wilson then ended the frame with a sort fly to Miller.

Jimmy Foxx, first baseman on Babe Ruth's all America Team got the first Philadelphia hit, leading off in the second inning with a line single to left, but Rogers Hornsby's great throwing arm stopped what threatened to be a big inning for the Mackmen.

Double Play Helps.

Root struck out Miller, but Dykes grounded a single to left, advancing Foxx to second. Boley then hit to English, who fumbled slightly but got the ball to Hornsby in time for a forceout. Dykes collided with Rogers at second, but the second sacker recovered his balance and rifled a relay to Grimm in time to turn it into a double play. Most second sackers would have ignored the slim chance to get the runner at first, especially with another runner carrying a potential run to third base.

Ehmke was in fine form in the second. He fanned Cuyler and Stephenson with a call of three and two, took a called third strike. Charley Grimm hit the first pitch for a line single to center, but Taylor popped weakly to Foxx for the third out.

Root disposed of the Mackmen without trouble in the third and then Ehmke justified Mack's pitching selection by doing some great hurling to prevent the Bruins from scoring in their half. After Charley Root fanned, McMillan singled to center and English doubled to right, McMillan had a chance to score on the safety, but with only one out and Hornsby and Wilson coming to bat, Joe McCarthy played it safe and held McMillan at third. But Hornsby and Wilson both failed in the pinch. Rogers struck out, swinging viciously at Ehmke's slow curve and then Wilson also fanned, on three pitched balls. This was great pitching and though the fans were yelling for a base hit, they showed their appreciation of Ehmke's work by giving him a great cheer.

Public interest in baseball and the World Series may have sagged during the weeks that followed the clinching of the major league pennants by the Cubs of Chicago and the Athletics of Philadelphia, but it was at fever heat again today as the 50,000 fortunate fans gathered at Wrigley Field for the first game of the struggle for the World Championship and the glory and sports that go with the title.

William Wrigley, owner of the Cubs, is such a good sport that he obtained permission from the city authorities to close Sheffield and Waveland avenues, running along the right and left field walls of the park and extra bleachers were erected to take care of about 1500 extra spectators.

Good Sportsmanship.

As the cost of the construction will more than offset the money taken in for the seats at a dollar

FAIRMOUNT RACETRACK, Ill., Oct. 8.—A fast track and good racing weather brought 3500 persons here for the first race today. The program was composed of cheap horses in every race, practically nothing that even approached class being represented. It was Ladies' day.

"Slim" Lee's Frank D. proved to be pounds the best in the first, a six-furlong dash for 3-year-olds, winning easily after getting away slowly. He met with sharp interference and was forced to take the overland route for the last three-eighths of the race. Lucky Sweep was second and Chicola third. The time was 1:14 1-5. Illumine was the early pacemaker, but tired. Frank D paid his backers $8.26 to win, while Lucky Sweep paid $5.64 to place.

MEXICO U. ELEVEN TO MEET ARIZONA TEAM

By the Associated Press.

TUSCON, Ariz., Oct. 8. — A. L. Slonaker, graduate manager of the University of Arizona, announced today that negotiations for a series of football games between the Wildcats and the National University of Mexico had reached the stage of fixing tentative dates. Slonaker recently offered President Portes Gil of Mexico a plan for two games, one to be played in Mexico City and one here, and in answering the letter the Mexican President suggested that the games be arranged between Dec. 15 and 31.

Odds Lengthen on The "As" When Named His Pitcher

WHEN Connie Mack announced Howard Ehmke as his opening world series pitcher, the reaction in the betting markets was registered immediately. Up to the time of the pitching announcement, the Athletics and Cubs had been quoted on even terms for the opening game.

With Ehmke certain to start, the bookies shifted the odds to even money on the Athletics and 3 to 4 on the Cubs.

The inference was that the betting fraternity figured Ehmke a weak choce.

NEW ATHLETIC MANAGER AT WEST FRANKFORT

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WEST FRANKFORT, Ill., Oct. 8.—Harry Simmons has been elected athletic manager for the West Frankfort Community High. His election was made by the Senior class. The Juniors will elect two assistants, and the Freshmen three. This is a new departure in the local school and is the only one in this section to have an athletic manager. His duties are numerous, and afford the coach and assistants much relief, as it carries the honor of letter presentation.

HOWLEY IS SAID TO HAVE AGREED TO REDS' TERMS

CUBS' PARK, Chicago, Ill., Oct. 8.—Although a Cincinnati newspaper this morning told the world that Dan Howley was going to be the 1930 manager of the Reds and that he would sign a three-year contract, Dan today told the Post-Dispatch that he had not reached any decision as to where he would be next year.

"I talked with Mr. Weil, president of the Reds, but nothing definite was decided," Dan said.

A Cincinnati newspaper correspondent said that he had been informed from a reliable source that Howley and Weil had agreed on terms, but that no announcement would be made until after the excitement of the World Series had died down.

Sam Breadon, when asked about the St. Louis problem, said he did not expect to take any action for a month or six weeks.

"Our team is all set for next year, and we don't have to hurry out and sign any manager," Breadon said. "Of course, we will make every effort to land an infielder, a good third baseman or a second sacker, but that is our worry, not the problem of a manager."

There still is a possibility that Dan Howley may be manager of the Cardinals, although Breadon said he had never discussed the possibility with the former leader of the Browns. Dan has formed many friendships in St. Louis, the fans are strong for him and if Breadon offered him the job he undoubtedly would prefer it to anything else. While the Cincinnati offer is said to be for three years with a bonus provision in case the team finishes in the first division, Howley with confidence in his ability to deliver, probably would be willing to accept the Cardinal position even for the Breadon limit of one year.

Gabby Street, who acted as coach under Southworth and McKechnie and who managed the team in McKechnie's occasional absence, may receive serious consideration as a candidate for the job. Breadon likes him, the players work hard under his leadership and his appointment may be considered an economic move.

FOXX KNOCKS A HOME RUN; EHMKE FANS 12 BATTERS IN 7 INNINGS, TYING RECORD

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 8. — The Philadelphia Athletics, American League champions, won from the Chicago Cubs, National League pennant winners, here this afternoon in the first game of the world series.

The score was 3 to 1.

The home field of the National League champions was filled to its estimated capacity of 50,000 fans, bundled in furs and overcoats, for the opening struggle between two of the most colorful clubs in baseball.

It was a duel of right handers at the getaway but the veteran Connie Mack sprang a surprise by selecting his 35-year-old veteran, Howard Ehmke, to oppo Charley Root, Joe McCarthy's choice.

Both teams put their full strength on the field for the first battle, Al (Bing) Miller starting for the A's in spite of a heavy cold.

A delay of nearly 15 minutes was caused by late arrival of the umpires, which gave photographers time to get in some extra work.

The vast crowd stood with bared heads as the National Anthem was played, the field clear for action. With a mighty roar, the first game got under way.

The game:

FIRST INNING—ATHLETICS—Bishop grounded to Grimm. Haas was called out on strikes. Cochrane walked. Simmons struck out. NO HITS, NO RUNS, NO ERRORS.

CUBS—McMillan fouled to Cochrane. English beat out a hit to short which was deflected by Ehmke's glove. Hornsby flied to Miller near the left field stands. Wilson flied to Miller in short right. NO RUNS, ONE HIT, NO ERRORS.

SECOND — ATHLETICS — Foxx singled to left on the first ball pitched. Miller struck out. Dykes singled to left, Foxx stopping at second. Boley grounded to short second. Boley hit into a double play, English to Hornsby Grimm. NO RUNS, TWO HITS, NO ERRORS.

CUBS—Cuyler struck out. Stephenson also struck out. Grimm singled to center on the first pitched ball. Taylor flied to Foxx near the pitcher's box. NO RUNS, ONE HIT, NO ERRORS.

THIRD—ATHLETICS — Ehmke popped to McMillan. Bishop lined to English, who took the ball without moving out of his tracks. Haas walked. Cochrane hit to McMillan and was thrown out at first. NO RUNS, NO HITS, NO ERRORS.

CUBS—Root struck out. McMillan singled to center. English hit into right for two bases, McMillan going to third. Hornsby struck out. Wilson also struck out. NO RUNS, TWO HITS, NO ERRORS.

FOURTH — ATHLETICS — Simmons flied to Stephenson in deep left. Foxx grounded to Hornsby. Miller was out, Hornsby to Grimm. NO RUNS, NO HITS, NO ERRORS.

CUBS—Cuyler struck out for the second time. Stephenson was out on a marvelous one-hand catch by Dykes, who speared the ball as he was stretched prone on the ground. Grimm walked. Grimm was out stealing, Cochrane to Bishop. NO RUNS, NO HITS, NO ERRORS.

FIFTH — ATHLETICS — Dykes struck out. Boley also struck out. Taylor dropped the ball but tagged the runner. Ehmke flied to Stephenson near the foul line, on the first pitched ball. NO RUNS, NO HITS, NO ERRORS.

CUBS—Taylor flied to Simmons who made a one-handed catch near the stands in deep left. Root struck out. McMillan also struck out. NO HITS, NO RUNS, NO ERRORS.

SIXTH — ATHLETICS — Bishop was out, English to Grimm. Haas flied to Wilson. Cochrane fouled to Taylor. NO RUNS, NO HITS, NO ERRORS.

CUBS—English struck out. It was Ehmke's ninth strike-out. Hornsby also struck out for the second time. Wilson was the third strike-out of the inning. NO RUNS, NO HITS, NO ERRORS.

SEVENTH—ATHLETICS — Simmons lined to Wilson, who made a diving catch but held the ball. Foxx hit a home run into the center field bleachers. Miller flied to Cuyler. Dykes went out on a fly to Stephenson. ONE RUN, ONE HIT, NO ERRORS.

CUBS—Cuyler beat out a hit to short. Stephenson singled to left, Cuyler stopping at second. Grimm sacrificed, Ehmke to Foxx, both runners advancing. Heathcote batted for Taylor and flied to Simmons in short left. Hartnett batted for Root and struck out. It was Ehmke's twelfth strike-out, tying the world series of Ed Walsh against the Cubs in 1906. NO RUNS, TWO HITS, NO ERRORS.

EIGHTH — ATHLETICS — Bush went in to pitch for the Cubs and Gonzales behind the plate. English threw out Boley. Ehmke was cheered when he came to bat. Ehmke singled to right. Bishop flied to Stephenson. Haas flied to Wilson in short center. NO RUNS, ONE HIT, NO ERRORS.

CUBS—McMillan flied to Haas in short center. English flied to Miller. Bishop threw out Hornsby. NO RUNS, NO HITS, NO ERRORS.

NINTH—ATHLETICS—Cochrane singled to right. Simmons hit to English, who fumbled the ball, and Cochrane took second. English was charged with an error. English fumbled Foxx's grounder, and the bases were filled. Cochrane and Simmons scored on Miller's single through the box, and Foxx went to third. Dykes hit to Bush and Foxx was thrown out at the plate, Bush to Gonzales, Miller going to third and Dykes to second. Boley hit to Bush and Miller was out at the plate, Bush to Gonzales. Dykes going to third. McMillan threw out Ehmke. TWO RUNS, TWO HITS, TWO ERRORS.

CUBS—Ehmke threw out Wilson. Ehmke was knocked down when he stopped the ball, and remained on the ground gathered around him. It was a vicious liner and struck him squarely in the side. Ehmke sat up after a moment and returned to the mound. Cuyler was safe on Dykes' wild throw and continued to second. It was a two-base error. Cuyler scored on Stephenson's single to center field. It was Stephenson's second hit of the game. Grimm singled to right, Stephenson stopping at second. It also was Grimm's second hit. Blair batted for Gonzales. Blair forced Grimm, Dykes to Bishop. Stephenson going to third. Tolson batted for Bush. The Cubs claimed that Ehmke had balked as he bluffed a throw. But Umpire Klem overruled them. Tolson struck out. It was Ehmke's twelfth strike out, a new world's reschd. ONE RUN, THREE HITS, TWO ERRORS.

CUBS' OFFICIAL GETS INTO "HOT DOG" ROW; SPENDS TIME IN JAIL

CHICAGO, Oct. 8.—Bob Lewis, traveling secretary of the Chicago Cubs spent half an hour in jail early this morning, all on account of hot dogs.

Lewis and Ray Knoip, hot dog concessionaires at Wrigley Field, were arrested by a policeman who asserted they were threatening independent hot dog "barkers" vending the invigorating frankfurters to the thousands of persons lined up outside the ball park waiting for bleacher seats.

Lewis and Knoip were booked for disorderly conduct and released on their own $25 bonds.

Ernest Cashman, said to be a club employe, was arrested for striking one of the independent vendors. He also was charged with disorderly conduct and released on $25 bail.

AL BROWN IS NAMED WORLD BANTAM KING BY U. S. BOXING BOARD

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Oct. 8.—Panama Al Brown yesterday was named world's bantamweight champion by the championship committee of the National Boxing Association. The announcement was made here last night by Edward C. Foster, chairman of the N. B. A. committee, following upon a telegraphic conference with other members.

At the time of the recent N. B. A. convention in Chicago, Foster stated that the winner of the bout then scheduled between Brown and Teddy Baldock of England would be awarded the title. Since Baldock could not make the weight, the bout was called off and thus the championship committee came to a decision.

What Managers Have to Say About The World Series

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 8.

THESE pre-battle statements were issued by the rival managers last night:

Joe McCarthy, Cubs: "It looks like a tight series and a good one to me. You never can tell what will happen. I am making no predictions but I would be foolish if I wasn't altogether confident of my club. It will hit and hits will win the series."

Connie Mack, Athletics: "We are fit. Close series? Certainly. Two good clubs will meet. Starting pitcher? Not yet. I will not name him until tomorrow afternoon. The A's have played good ball all season and they will play good ball here."

QUICK RETURNS BY PITCHERS ARE BANNED BY WORLD SERIES RULES

UMPIRES WILL DISCOLOR BALLS BEFORE PUTTING THEM IN PLAY

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 8.—All questions of baseball rules interpretation were threshed out before the start of play in the first game today and instructions issued to govern the umpires.

There will be no "quick returns" by pitchers and umpires will discolor the balls before putting them in play, both in Chicago and Philadelphia.

Conditions in the two playing fields cause one change. At Chicago if a pitched ball strikes the backstop or screen in front of the stand a base runner will be permitted to advance only one base. In Philadelphia if such a ball strikes the backstop or screen in front of the stand and remains within the field of play, a base runner may advance as many bases as he can make.

A ball going into the stands or a dug-out thrown to first or third by a pitcher in an effort to catch a base runner napping will permit an advance of two bases.

If a fairly batted ball bound into a stand on foul territory it will be a two-base hit.

The rules as to interference with batted balls by spectators also were clarified.

BOWLING NOTES

Applications for membership in the Greater St. Louis Bowling Association are coming in fast, according to Jerry C. Ameling, secretary of the organization. The association has more than 1400 teams in its fold. A record number of teams is expected before the annual meeting to be held Oct. 20 at the Statler Hotel. Should any team or individual roll a high score before the league is a member of the American Bowling Congress and the local association, they will not be recognized by the association and will not be eligible for any of the medals awarded for high scores.

Bowlers Tie in Tourney.

F. Bussman and A. Beeles tied in the individual contest for bowlers with averages of 185 and under at the Rogers alleys. Both bowlers turned in scores of 597. D. Goodwin was second with 582, while the single game prize went to E. Schneider with 221. These contests are held every Saturday and Sunday at the Rogers alleys.

Flints Win Match.

The Justin T. Flints of the Major City and Peterson Scratch Leagues, won a special three-game match from the Morgans on the Grand-St. Louis alleys Sunday, rolling 2887 to 2704. Freddie Krems, ace of the Flint pinsters, led both teams with a 608 series. Walter Kuhnert was next with 599, with Bob Meinhardt scoring 578 and Lee Bolin 576. S. Garfolo led the Morgans with 573.

Four-Game Classic.

The Grand-Olive alleys will hold a four-game classic, open to any bowler in the Greater St. Louis district, on Oct. 19 and 20. There will be 15 squads with 16 bowlers on each squad. The first squad Saturday will take the drives at 4 o'clock while the first squad Sunday will bowl at 10:30 o'clock. Many bowlers have already entered the event but there is room for a few more. Reservations can be made by calling Lindell 5328 or call at the alleys, Grand and Olive.

Rellers Set League Mark.

The Reller Motors established a league record for three games in the Maplewood League at the Saratoga alleys last week, rolling 2871 and taking three games from the Sculleos. The Rellers were led by C. Glaub with 624. E. Rice was next with 597. The winners had a high single count of 1018.

Newspaper League.

Bill Elfert continued his fine bowling in the Newspaper League at Peterson's, shooting 608 with a high single game of 225. His team, the Sport Specials lost the odd game to the Forty-Ninth States which totaled 2724 with Wegener doing the heavy work, getting 613. Thaber, of the Sunsets, also cracked 600, getting 605 but the team lost two games to the Green Sheets. The latter five was led by Kerley and Simpson who turned in scores of 595. Kerley had a high single game of 256. Bob Volz, Green Sheet lead-off man, had a high game of 254. Other results were: Agates 2, Orange Sheets 1, Dumb Dorns 3, Intertypes 0.

Mrs. Kelly Elected President.

Mrs. M. Kelly Jr. was re-elected president of the St. Louis Women's Bowling Association at the annual meeting at the Statler Hotel. Mrs. O. C. Berghaus was elected vice president and Mrs. A. P. Dillman treasurer. Mrs. H. T. Speck will continue as secretary of the organization.

Only One Four-Run Homer.

NEW YORK.—Only one player ever hit a world series home run with the bases full. Elmer Smith did it for Cleveland in the 1920 series between the Indians and Brooklyn.

each, the stands during the series will be a monument to the sportsmanship of the magnate who held the accommodation of his patrons above the material question of profit and loss.

The extra bleachers and the regular sun seats filled early. Crowds which stood outside the park all night swarmed into the bleachers as soon as the gates were opened and there was no space available an hour later. The reserved seats, which were sold within a few hours after the grab bag sale opened filled more slowly.

The da ywas warm and ideal for baseball in the morning, but at noon time a breeze began to blow from the lake and the fans who were wise enough to bring their overcoats along were fortunate.

There were the usual cheers for the Cub heroes as the National League champions went through batting practice and the customers in the sun seats received numerous couvenirs in the form of baseballs, knocked out of the playing field by Rogers Hornsby, Hack Wilson and the other sluggers of Joe McCarthy.

Their First Look.

Connie Mack's warriors had their first glimpse of Wrigley Field this afternoon. The veteran leader decided against a workout yesterday. He explained that one ball park was like another and that if there was anything about the park that was going to handicap his players he could not overcome it by one afternoon on the strange field.

Al Schacht and Nick Altrock, the famous comedian team of the Washington Senators, entertained the fans before the game. The act went over big, as there were thousands of National League fans who were seeing the comedians for the first time.

Connie Mack apparently wanted to keep his pitching selection secret until the last minute. Usually the hurler who is going to work takes a turn in hitting practice, but only the regulars and possible pinch batters went to bat for the Mackmen.

Several hundred fans were perched on top of houses on the streets beyond the park. There would have been more vantage points, but the extra bleachers blocked the view from the second floor windows of the buildings, which probably was a blow to the plans of the householders to make a few dollars out of the series.

The first big cheer of the afternoon greeted the Cubs when they trotted onto the diamond for fielding practice. Charley Grimm was at first base, recovered from the fractured hand which kept him out of the game during the late stages of the pennant race. He is an important cog in the Cub machine and the fans cheered his appearance.

A St. Louis Touch.

Rogers Hornsby, who led the Cardinals to a pennant and world series victory in 1926, was at second base and he was cheered for several snappy plays during practice. The second-base combination of Hornsby and Woody English, one of the best in the business, worked with snap and precision.

Norman McMillan, who was with the Browns several years ago, completed the Cub infield. St. Louisans probably favor the Cubs in this series for sentimental reasons.

Grimm, Hornsby and Coach Jimby Burke make their residence there; Clif Heathcote, outfielder; Mike Gonzales, catcher; McMillan and Pitcher Charley Root formerly played with Mound City major league teams.

Connie Mack sprang a surprise all right. At 1:15 o'clock the pitchers began to warm up and Howard Ehmke, the tall right hander, proved to be the Philadelphia selection. Charlie Root, named yesterday by Joe McCarthy was the Cub hurler.

Only Two Full Games.

Ehmke won seven and lost two during the season and ptched only two complete games. While the Athletics were on a late road trip, Ehmke was sent home and it was thought that he was "in bad," with the leader of the Mack's.

Bob Grove and George Earnshaw were named prominently as possible starters for Mack in the first game, but nobody guessed that Ehmke would get the assignment.

Root, on the other hand pitched 19 complete games, and finished the season with an excellent record of 19 won and six lost.

The start of the game was delayed several minutes by the late arrival of the umpires, and when they finally appeared, Bill Klem went to Commissioner Landis' box, apparently to explain why they were tardy. He impatiently gestured to them to start.

Fuller Defeats Firpo

NEW CASTLE, Pa., Oct. 8.—Harry Fuller, Niagara Falls, N. Y., lightweight, won a decision from Henry Firpo, Cleveland, in ten rounds here last night.

RUTH LIKES A'S, BUT GIVES CUBS EDGE IN SERIES

By Babe Ruth.

(Copyright, 1929.)

CHICAGO, Oct. 8.—Every series prediction is influenced a little by sentiment. Somehow a fellow always sees the strong points in the team he's pulling for, and the weakness of the fellow he wants to see trimmed.

BABE RUTH.

As a ball player I guess I am just as much subject to sentiment as any one else. But now that I am on the ground where I can get both sides of the argument, I believe I am less prejudiced than I was before.

In my last story I said that I liked the Athletics. And I do. I admire them as a ball club. I would be a sucker if I did not pull for them to win. After all they represent my league. So I want them to win.

But in giving my opinion to the public as a baseball writer I must honestly confess that I think the Cubs have a slight edge. And I say that because they seem to have some advantage in pitching and a considerable advantage in world series experience. Which may mean a little or a lot, depending on the breaks that come.

Stecher Throws Stasiak

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 8.—Joe Stecher of Nebraska, former world heavyweight wrestling champion, last night defeated Stanley Stasiak of Poland, taking two falls out of three. Stasiak won the first fall in 22 minutes, and Stecher took the next two, employing his body scissors. He won the second fall in 7 minutes 20 second, and the deciding one in 1 minute 20 seconds.

Joe Malcewicz, Utica, N. Y., heavyweight, won a decision over Charlie Hanson, Ia., in a 45-minute bout.

THREE PLAYERS ARE DRAFTED BY CARDINAL CLUB

CHICAGO, Oct. 8.—Twenty-six players, 20 of whom have been up previously, were drawn back into the major leagues from minor circuits at the annual draft meeting last night. The Philadelphia Nationals claimed four, the largest number by one club.

The world championship contenders, Philadelphia Athletics and the Chicago Cubs, drafted one man each. The A's claimed Outfielder Oliver from Little Rock of the Southern Association, and the Cubs called in Pitcher Al Sheely from St. Paul of the American Association. Sheely's previous trial in the major leagues was with the Yankees.

The St. Louis and Cleveland clubs of the American League were the only ones not calling in players.

The Phillie list included three pitchers. Byron Speece from Indianapolis of the American Association; Nichols from Montreal, International League; Collard, Shreveport, Texas League, and a first baseman, Jack Sherlock, from the Mission team of the Pacific Coast League.

Hollis Thurston, who once pitched for the White Sox and Washington, was drawn from San Francisco of the Coast League by Brooklyn, which also got Pitcher Faulkner, once with the Giants, from Buffalo of the International League.

Detroit drafted but one player, Spencer Harris, hard-hitting outfielder from Minneapolis of the American Association.

Other clubs and players they obtained were:

Boston American—Bill Sweeney, first baseman, from Toronto International League; Otto Miller, infielder, from Milwaukee, American Association, and Pitcher George Smith from Seattle of the Coast League.

Boston National—Johnny Nuen, first baseman, from Baltimore, International League; Red Rollings, the third baseman, from Hollywood, Pacific Coast League, and Outfielder Bratcher, from Denver of the Western League.

Chicago American—E. Smith, shortstop, from Birmingham, Southern Association, and Outfielder D. S. "Sheriff" Harris, from Portland, Pacific Coast League.

Cincinnati National—Earl Webb, outfielder, from Los Angeles of the Coast League, and Harry Riconda, from Kansas City, champions of the American Association.

St. Louis Nationals—Pete Fowler, pitcher, from Reading, International; Harry McCurdy, catcher, from Toledo, and Andy Messenger, pitcher, from Wichita Falls, Texas League.

Pittsburg National—Charles Engle, shortstop, from Memphis, Southern Association.

New York National—Shortstop Allen, from Wilkes-Barre, New York-Pennsylvania League.

New York American—William Karlon, catcher, from Springfield, Eastern League.

Washington American—H. E. Pyle, pitcher, from Chattanooga, Southern Association.

MANY ENTRIES FOR NATIONAL OUTBOARD RACES AT PEORIA

PEORIA, Ill., Oct. 8.—With entries from both coasts of this country for the National Outboard championships in Peoria next Saturday and Sunday pouring into both Chicago and Peoria headquarters the list promises to be a record one.

H. G. Ferguson of Los Angeles and Julius Herbst of Wilmington, N. C., champions respectively of the Pacific and Atlantic Coasts, have each entered these finals. The Peoria list already includes entries from Chicago, Indianapolis, Cincinnati, Toledo, Omaha, Louisville, Everett, Wash., Ventnor City, N. J., Parkersburg, W. Va., and many other smaller cities throughout the country. While the National championships in all classes will be settled in two-heat events on Saturday and Sunday, the Illinois Valley Yacht Club has arranged for official mile trials for world's records to be held on Friday, the day preceding the opening of the regatta.

Besides the regulation two and one-half miles course, a mile straightaway track has been surveyed by Federal engineers. With fair weather conditions the water here is said to be unusually good for the making of fast time. Alluring cash prizes, offered by Warren S. Ripple, for the first driver to show the speed of 50 miles per hour will attract red hot competition on this day.

INTER-CITY GOLF MATCHES LIKELY TO INCLUDE OTHER CITIES

There is probability that the inter-city team play between Chicago and St. Louis golfers will be enlarged to take in St. Paul, Minneapolis, Kansas City, Cleveland and Detroit, according to a number of persons closely connected with the game in St. Louis.

Whether to enlarge the scope of the matches would be feasible will be discussed at a stag dinner at Normandie Golf Club Saturday night, to be held in connection with the inter-city match between St. Louis and Chicago players. About 150 golfers are expected to attend.

Team Which Keeps Its Feet On Ground in Tight Places Will Win Series, Cobb Says

By Ty Cobb.

(Copyright, 1929.)

CHICAGO, Oct. 8.—Now that the world series between the Athletics and Cubs has started, all the technical dope—the comments of the experts for weeks past can be scrapped. It will come down to a question of pitching and determination and grit of the team collectively to react in the face of tight situations and the knowledge that any play is liable to win or lose the honor of being returned world champions.

TY COBB.

I say that the team which keeps its feet on the ground in the tough situations when the games are in the balance, backed up by plucky pitching, will be returned the winner. I admit that I am an American League partisan. Also, that I am extremely anxious for the Athletics to win.

But I honestly do think they have the better chance to win I figure they have an advantage in managers. Mack has been in five world series and he knows what it's all about. I have great respect for McCarthy's ability, but he has never been in a world series.

Now, taking the pitching staff: When both clubs were going at their best, I think statistics will show that the Athletics showed more effectiveness and decisiveness. I think the records will indicate that there was less relief work accorded the starting Athletic pitchers than there was the Cubs.

A's Have Great Hill Staff.

The A's pitching staff cannot be denied. They have some great pitchers. My idea is that Mack will start Earnshaw, who has acquitted himself so well all through the pennant race. He has been a tower of strength and has always delivered the goods and has shown himself to be game in every respect.

If the Athletics should win the first game, Quinn might be called on but should they lose I think Grove will get the assignment, though I believe Mack would like to pitch Grove and Walberg, his two southpaws, on home grounds.

I believe Ehmke's style would be very effective against the Cubs. From all dope Quinn's spitter should be very effective, too, for Grimes of Pittsburg and Mitchell of St. Louis, both spitters, have had fine luck this season against Chicago.

I am not predicting that Mack will use Shores, but one must bear in mind that in world series games in the past he has sprung surprises. One notable case was when he used Joe Bush against the New York Giants.

The only prediction I feel safe in making is that the swing hitters on the Cub team will have plenty of trouble with Earnshaw and Grove if the Mack aces have their control. And Walberg, if he pitches in form, will show the Cubs as much or more stuff than they ever have seen. And Jack Quinn will not be punished to any extent.

Malone Is Great Pitcher.

The Cubs have a great pitcher in Malone; no question about it. I look for McCarthy to depend on Malone, Root and Blake and if Bush regained his effectiveness, he also should be troublesome. McCarthy's relief pitchers should be Nehf and Carlson. No one can't belittle the Chicago staff. They are real clever boxmen.

I am somewhat handicapped in discussing them for I have not had the opportunity to observe them. I think the Athletics' attack is superior. They have better balanced hitting. They have men who dearly love a curve ball and also those who favor the fast ball. Any one of six men on the American League club is likely to "park" the ball at any time.

I also believe that the Athletics hitters are superior in those "one big inning" attacks. Should they start hitting in the first game, it's just going to be too bad.

I look for Hornsby to be a great help to the Cubs with his fighting ability, and his coolness under fire. It is going to be very interesting to compare Hornsby with Simmons. There is no doubt about Simmons ability. I consider him one of the great stars and probably as game as any, if not the gamest man in baseball with two strikes on him.

I want to predict that Miller is going to be a most dangerous hitter in this series.

American League, Due to Yanks, Victor in 14 of 24 World Series

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 8.—Paced in recent years by the New York Yankees, American League pennant winners have won 14 of the 24 world series since 1905.

In the six seasons from 1923 to 1928, inclusive, the Yankees captured three of the annual classics.

By blanking the National league entries in the 1927 and 1928 series, the Yankees increased the American League margin in games won to ten and gave the junior loop an advantage of 17 scores in total runs.

Here is the record of games and runs since 1905:

PACKS TO CONCLUDE ARRANGEMENTS FOR ARENA FIGHT CARD

Tom Packs, matchmaker for the Arena Sports Club, an organization formed recently to sponsor boxing and other sports attractions at the new Arena, plans to leave tomorrow or Thursday for New York to conclude negotiations with fighters he has under consideration for feature attractions on the club's opening program, Nov. 5.

Packs stated that he reached a tentative agreement as to terms with some of the fistic talent during a trip to Chicago, from which he returned two days ago to confer with his associate members of the club directorate before proceeding with the negotiations. Among the fighters whose managers were interviewed by Packs in Chicago are: Tod Morgan, Eddie Shea, Tony Canzoneri and Eddie Anderson.

Before his departure for the East Packs will try to conclude arrangements with Paul Jones and Jim McMillan, heavyweight mat artists, whom he expects to sign for a return match to furnish the main event of his next wrestling show at the New Coliseum. The mat program is billed for Thursday night, Oct. 17.

Landis to Pitch First Ball One Sure Series Be

By Nick Altrock

CHICAGO, Oct. 8.—Well, the series is on the brink of started. Last night I ask bookmaker what was the dope and he said it was 11 to I don't know whether he was ing me the correct time or the ting odds.

ALTROCK.

Anyway, the Cubs are favorites in Chicago but if I setting odd them, it would an old $10 against one the new ones. It's close.

Nobody to have a defi idea who is to win the se Even the ex are nonpl and when catch a ba expert plussed, you got an inimal belongs in the Smithsonian In tute.

Must Be Strictly Cash.

Scalpers are selling series ets for $100 a pair and no ins ment plan about it. I tried to a bear market on these prices the brokers refused to go in panic. When I quit dickering price was still $100 asked and bid. I tried a dozen diffe scalpers offering $40 a pair they certainly paid a tribute me as a comedian.

Well, the teams line up just the dope I gave you. The C will start with either Bush, Root, or Carlson, or Blake in box and Connie Mack has whi his opening day choice down Grove, Earnshaw, Walberg Quinn.

The only last minute devel ment in the teams is that Jim Foxx has become a father, makes three Foxxes with a of six x's in the family. Moth son and father are doing well.

Judge Landis will throw out first ball. The Judge has throwing out first balls in 10 w series, but he is still erratic. an umpire called all the pitches he has made, the Ju would be back on the bench.

END SUFFERING FROM SPRAINED ANKLE; DRAKE HAS FINE TEAM

By Henry L. Freund

That Washington will have a hard fight Saturday night against Drake was made known yesterday by Gale Bullman, line coach at Washington, who scouted the Drake victory over the Oklahoma Aggies last Friday night. "Drake will have one of the outstanding football teams of the country this year, if the outfit receives its share of the breaks," Bullman said.

Bullman's statement is substantiated by Drake's record. The team last season won the championship of the Missouri Valley and has lost but one game in two years. That defeat came at the hands of Notre Dame by a small score.

King, who is playing his second year for Drake, is the life of the team and without him in the game, the team is mediocre. Without him Drake would not have beaten Oklahoma, according to Bullman, as he played just long enough to score all three of the team's touchdowns.

Broken field running is King's specialty and he is proficient at it as attested by the fact that he gained 105 yards against Notre Dame last year. He is fast and shifty, weighing but 140 pounds and he is expected to provide real entertainment here Saturday night.

Dr. Sharpe expressed himself as "very well pleased" with the team's showing in the 34—7 victory over Illinois College. He was especially gratified with the performance of the Bear ends and reserves as all played better than had been expected.

Special Work for Ends.

The ends, who will be an important factor against the fast and smooth running Drake team, will receive special attention this week. George Coover who suffered a sprained ankle and a bruised bone was not in uniform at yesterday's practice and he may miss the Drake game as his ankle is badly swollen. Trainer De Victor has been working hard on the Bears' star, but he doubts if he will be able to have him in shape. Wientge, Burford and Rossette, all of whom gave good accounts of themselves, will likely hold down the wing berths.

Dick Rawdon, who missed the opening game because of a knee injury, was in uniform but his knee is still heavily wrapped in bandages. He is a doubtful starter.

The same faithful band of 30 gridders who have been coming out to practice regularly were on deck yesterday afternoon and participated in a light workout. The Bear coaches stressed offense in the practice. There was heavy work on passing and it would not be surprising to see the Bears open with an aerial attack Saturday. Springer and Waid are both clever passers as well as receivers and Wientge, Coover and Burford are all adept at plucking the pigskin out of the air.

Beginning this afternoon, defense against Drake plays will be worked on and new offensive formations will be given to the Bears

St. Louis U. High Net Team Wins

St. Louis U. High's net team got off to a good start yesterday afternoon in its endeavor to annex the Prep League tennis title, by trouncing the Country Day squad, three matches to one, on the Codasco courts. The games marked the opening of the first fall tennis season in the history of the league.

Joe Connors, captain and letter man in four sports, was the only Blue and White player to suffer defeat. Playing first man, Connors went down before Jacobs of Country Day in a hard-fought three-set match, the Codasco star taking the first and third sets to win, 8—6, 1—6, 6—2. Sharp, another St. Louis veteran, staged the biggest upset of the day in breezing through to an easy 6—1, 6—2 victory over Langsdorf, captain of the Country Day squad.

McBride, the defending champion and favorite to win the title again this season, gets into action this afternoon against C. B. C., in what will be the first match of the year for both outfits. McBride meets Country Day on Thursday and Western Saturday, while C. B. C. is to tangle with St. Louis U. High Thursday and will probably play a postponed match with Western on Friday afternoon.

Yesterday's Results.

SINGLES.

Jacobs, Country Day, defeated Conners, St. Louis, 8—6, 1—6, 6—2; Sharp, St. Louis, defeated Langsdorf, Country Day, 6—1, 6—2. Kinkel, St. Louis, defeated Morrill, Country Day, 8—6, 7—5.

DOUBLES.

Renard and Faulstick, St. Louis, defeated Wear and Turney, Country Day, 6—4, 3—6, 6—1.

128 FRESHMEN OUT FOR FOOTBALL AT YALE

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 8.—C. S. (Pat) Osbourn, freshman football coach at Yale, found 120 of the 840 freshmen enrolled at the university this fall, eager for football, and had them out for practice early in the week that Yale opened. The material looked promising. The freshmen play Andover, Exeter, Hebron Academy, Roxbury school, Princeton freshmen and Harvard freshmen, following the usual custom. The squad is the largest in the history of freshmen football at Yale.

MICKEY WALKER IS ARRESTED ON LIQUOR CHARGE; TRIAL PUT OFF

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Oct. 8.—Mickey Walker, world middleweight boxing champion, quit his training camp near here yesterday, where he is polishing up for a title battle this month with Ace Hudkins of Nebraska, and appeared in Municipal Court to face a possession of liquor charge. Absence of a principal prosecution witness forced postponement of the trial until Nov. 6.

Missouri Valley Football Briefs

By the Associated Press.

DES MOINES, Ia., Oct. 8.—With Captain Jack Barnes, the only one on the injured list, Drake started drills for the Washington University night contest at St. Louis Saturday with a long signal, passing and kicking drill yesterday. Groustra, guard, returned to the squad. Barnes is expected to be ready the latter part of the week.

OMAHA.—A light workout and signal practice was Coach Chet Wynne's offering to his Creighton gridmen yesterday. Red McCondle, reserve half, who suffered a bone fracture in his foot, and Captain Rombaugh, victim of a wrenched knee, were the only casualties.

GRINNELL.—Despite a bruising session against the heavier Iowa State line Saturday, Grinnell's football squad was intact during practice today. Both Captain Rose and Ruff, backfield aces, will be completely recovered from injuries for the Marquette contest at Milwaukee Saturday.

STILLWATER.—"Fairly well pleased" with the showing of his Oklahoma Aggies against Drake last Friday, Coach Lynn Waldorf turned his attention to the Oklahoma City University night game this week-end. eH ran his proteges through a series of new plays and then brushed up on the old ones. He scheduled a heavy scrimmage for today.

M'Kechnie Signs With Braves for 4 Years; Won Two Pennants

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 8.—William "Bill" McKechnie, transient manager of major league baseball, has quit the St. Louis Cardinals to accept a 4-year managerial contract with the Boston Braves.

Desiring more of a settled managerial career in the "big show," McKechnie turned down a 1-year renewal of his present contract with the Cardinals to take the helm of the Boston club. Judge Emil Fuchs, president of the Braves, announced the change during the major league draft meeting last night. His salary was not revealed.

McKechnie has had a strange career as manager in the majors. After piloting the Pittsburg Pirates to a National League pennant and world's championship in 1927, he left to manage the Cards. In 1928 he led the Red Birds to their second title in three years but his team was routed in the world series and he failed to get a renewal of his contract, being sent to manage the Rochester Club of the Interntaional League at the start of the 1929 season. When the Cards experienced their disastrous slump later in the past season, he was recalled and replaced Billy Southworth.

Announcement of his contract with the Braves came within a few hours after the selection of William Killefer as manager of the St. Louis Browns, succeeding Dan Howley, was made public.

McKechnie said he would co-operate with Judge Fuchs immediately in planning for a more successful year for the Braves next season.

WRAY'S COLUMN

Meet Mr. Killefer

EVERYONE in St. Louis who knows his baseball is glad that Bill Killefer decided to get down off his Rosinante and sign to manage the Browns. His quixotic determination not to step into Howley's shoes, if Howley were released, was backed by no good reason. Howley did not want it and it was Dan himself who finally won over Killefer to acceptance.

Had Killefer persisted, the Browns might have found it difficult to pick up a manager who would have been acceptable to the players. Certainly nowhere could a man have been found who so thoroughly understood the present personnel of the Browns or one who would be accorded the sympathy and support that will be given Killefer.

It was a happy ending to what might have been a very vexing situation.

No Sinecure

KILLEFER'S job will be no sinecure. It will be up to him to shine up a fourth place aggregation into a pennant contender. Without additional material it can't be done—short of a miracle. The Browns' list of players recalled to the colors this year holds out little hope. It consists of men who have done only so-so in the minor teams to which they had been optioned. Little improvement can be expected of them in training camp next spring. Unless the club is able to make some extraordinary trades, such as marked Ball's clever deals for Blue, Manush and others, only a stroke of genius can advance the team next year.

The draft yielded nothing, but there still remains the prospect of getting a man or two by purchase. This is problematical. But if Philip De Catesby wants to see his pennant dream come true, he will have to unleash the old bank roll and go get 'em. Connie Mack long ago found out that correspondence schools and colleges turn out few trumps.

Howley did one thing for Ball—he united his players, so when Killefer steps in he will take over a machine, and not just a group of players. Only two or three prunings will be necessary; but one may look for a couple of releases. It would not be surprising if an outfielder and pitcher were traded for something nearer to the heart's desire.

To make the club go over the top it needs a couple of sluggers and some fight sandwiched in with the geniality and good fellowship—a couple of boys with dispositions like Lu Blue and Frank O'Rourke own would be welcomed by the new leader.

Killefer Will Succeed

IN one respect Killefer will succeed where Howley failed. Bill has a different attitude toward his work. Also he is more diplomatic. He will fight his battle in the "front office" face to face with McEvoy and Ball. Killefer understands the Browns' owner's attitude toward the club and its manager. His contract guarantees his employers that he will "co-operate with the front office," as he document reads—and that is what Howley rebelled against.

A manager who is paid $20,000 a year likes to feel that it his merit that calls forth such a salary. Unless he is in absolute charge he may make the mistake of thinking that his job includes opposing the whims and ideas of the man who hired him.

History records few instances of baseball managers who tried to balk their owners and got away with it. Right now the only case we can think of is Miller Huggins, who fought and beat Huston of the Yankees. It ended by Huston selling out. But that was only half a victory for Huggins, since Huston was only a half owner of the club.

In the main, an owner who has a $1,500,000 baseball club as a plaything has a right to think that his interest transcends that of his employee. To take liberties with such a view a manager must have proved himself several times over, by winning pennants.

Congratulations, Tacks

TACKS HARDWICK, one of Harvard's greatest all-time football players, who is president of the Boston Garden, has no more use for wrestling as an attraction for his big indoor hall.

"Over my dead body," Tacks told an interviewer, "is the only way there will ever be another Sonnenberg - Lewis wrestling bout in the Garden.

"I watched one match there closely," continued Hardwick. "A doctor was with me. When Sonnenberg dove headlong into Lewis' body, driving the Strangler outside of the ring, I wondered whether Lewis had been badly hurt. Lewis stuck one foot outside the ropes and off the mat and would not bring it back into the ring.

"What is the effect of a butt in the body like that?" I asked my doctor friend. He said that if one is struck in the pit of the stomach it would affect the spleen and a greenish hue would come over the face of the victim. 'I can detect no such symptoms in Lewis,' he added.

"I sent a man into the Strangler's room after the match," added Tacks, "to note how he was feeling and got the report that he apparently was all right. Later Lewis stepped around to the office and got his money. He was light-footed and chipper."

"I remember being butted in the stomach playing football and it always was some time before I was feeling normal again. Right there I put my foot down on wrestling. They can have it any place they want to but not in Boston."

Hardwick made no allegations of dishonesty, but he made it plain that if there was anything in the mat world coming off again, it would not be at his expense.

Oy yoi, Sonny Boy!

Chickens came home to roost at last.

The Old Roman Speaks.

"BUSH is a second John McGraw," Charles Comiskey, president of the White Sox, broadcasts about his new manager. "It's the first move toward bringing a championship team back to the South Side. Our team is a good one, and young. It is ready now for the right leader—a man who can inspire, teach and direct, a man on the order of John McGraw. I have that man in Donie Bush."

It's real tribute—to John McGraw. That Comiskey should go out of his league to find an ideal of managerial talent, a league which contains a Connie Mack, is evidence that Comiskey thinks McGraw the greatest leader in baseball.

Well, there won't be so many to start an argument with him about that, although Connie hasn't done so badly.

NATIONAL PRO GOLF TOURNEY WILL BE IN LOS ANGELES, DEC. 2-7

CHICAGO, Oct. 8.—The Professional Golfers' Association championship tournament will be held at the Hillcrest Club of Los Angeles Dec. 2 to 7, inclusive, the Executive Committee of the Professional Golfers' Association of America announced last night through its president, Alex Pirie.

Pirie's statement said the $10,400 prize money had been guaranteed by Joseph M. Schenck, moving picture producer. Rail fare one way will be paid by the golfers' association.

Qualifying rounds are to be held in 24 sections of the country, at which time 64 professionals will be certified as eligible to the P. G. A. tourney on the coast.

Rochester Is Only Repeater.

BILLIKEN ENDS GIVEN SPECIAL DRILL FOR GAME NEXT SATURDAY

By Glen McDonald.

Every Billiken football player reported in good shape yesterday afternoon at the St. Louis University Training Field and Coach Heartly Anderson sent his men through a light workout. The Billiken end candidates, however, had plenty of work. Anderson was not pleased with the way the Davis-Elkins interference handled his wing men in Saturday's game, so he gave his seven ends a long session of breaking through on the defense.

Coach "Chile" Walsh joined the squad, having returned from Washington where he scouted Georgetown's game with Western Maryland. It is Walsh's opinion that Georgetown met a team that was every bit as good as Davis-Elkins. Georgetown uses a peculiar huddle when lining up on the offensive. The Washington team's formation is called the "shuffle shift" and on lining up the backfield men stand with their backs to the linemen. Although Georgetown has been in training since the end of August, Walsh thinks that the Easterners have paid so much attention to new formations that they have neglected the fundamentals.

Have Deceptive Offense.

Western Maryland defeated Georgetown on forward passes. The victors although they were the same weight as the Washington team could not penetrate the sturdy Georgetown line. Walsh noted particularly the play of Captain Jim Mooney, right tackle and Provencial at left end. Mooney, besides being a star on the defense, is rated as one of the best kickers in the East. Provencial specializes in catching passes. Scalzi, quarterback, does the passing. The Georgetown offense is built on deception rather than a hard driving attack. The Georgetown line will probably outweigh the Billiken forward wall, but the backfields will be about even.

Coach Anderson announced that a squad of 25 men will leave for Washington early Thursday afternoon arriving at the nation's capital in time for a workout Friday. The squad is still without a good kick-off man, and a good part of the practice was given over to this detail.

Seven Ends to Make Trip.

The St. Louis U. ends will be given plenty of work till the time they get on the train Thursday. Lyfe Drury, Ford Brown, Sylvester McIntosh and Vic Daubner all shone offensively in Saturday's tilt but they were noticeably weak on breaking through the interference and getting the man with the ball on end runs. Frank Kennedy, Tom Tierney and "Packy" McFarland are the other end candidates, who will get a chance to make the trip.

Coach Jewel Browning gave his freshman squad the Georgetown plays yesterday afternoon. The frosh will use them in a dummy scrimmage against the first varsity today and try them in a scrimmage again tomorrow. The varsity squad will work out Thursday morning at the Billiken field.

FRISCO MISSIONS AND HOLLYWOOD MEET IN POST-SEASON SERIES

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 8.—Led by the mighty Ike Boone, leading batsman and foremost home run hitter of the Pacific Coast League, the San Francisco Mission Reds lined up here today against the Hollywood tars in the opening game of the post season series for the 1929 pennant.

Boone ended the regular season with an unofficial batting average of .407, which betters by three points any previous record in the league's history. His home run mark of 57 is only three short of the circuit swatting feat turned in by Tony Lazzeri while with Salt Lake City in 1925.

Indications were that Bert Cole or "Dutch" Ruether, both left-handers, would start on the mound for the Missions. August "Lefty" Johns, who also flings them from the port side, was expected to start for Hollywood.

FAGUE TO MEET BUSH ON AMATEUR BOXING CARD HERE THURSDAY

A return bout between two welterweights, Al Fague of the Pine Lawn A. C., and Johnny Bush of the Tower Grove A. C., has been added to the amateur boxing program to be given by the Missouri Pacific A. C. Thursday night at 3001 Chouteau avenue. The bout completes the special events.

In their first meeting on the last Missouri Pacific card, these boys put up a slam-bang battle, with both taking counts several times. It was reported to be one of the fastest and most interesting amateur bouts of the year.

Other special bouts: George Daw, Pine Lawn A. C., vs. Joe Coaley, Missouri Pacific A. C.; Joey Parks, Missouri Pacific A. C., vs. Woodrow Williams, St. Louis A. C., and Joe Borich, Missouri Pacific A. C., vs. Doc Hyatt, Sherman Park A. C.

The usual number of preliminary bouts between novices will complete the program.

The Obsequies.

THE Browns a double-header won;
A pleasant time was had by all,
Though Howley doesn't choose to run
For Sweeney, or for Col. Ball.
They wound up in a blaze of glory
To end a somewhat tedious story.

The Browns, who craved to grab a pair,
Set out at a terrific gait;
They were not going anywhere
And did it in 2:38.
While their career was somewhat checkered,
They broke a double-header record.

To give expression to their loss,
And show him how he would be missed,
The Brownies gave their former boss
A watch to wear upon his wrist.
And Dan, whose heart was beating quicker,
Wound up his Browns' career and ticker.

Before the fury of the storm,
The Cards were forced to bend their heads;
But to the last ran true to form
And trimmed the Cincinnati
Reds.
Our boys for all past favors
thank them
And hope for many years to spank them.

Bill Killefer, I see, has signed
A three-year contract with the Browns,
Where everybody hopes he'll find The ups outnumbering the downs.
We're glad Bill came to this decision,
Which looks so much like first division.

Nice Work.

As long as the management seems to think that the Browns have to have a manager we feel that the appointment of Bill Killefer to the post will meet with the general approval of public, press and pulpit. Bill knows his onions and can spot a lemon as far as he can see it.

Stand by, Folks.

See where the railroad passenger trains are going to tune in on the world series hour.

THOUGH far from home,
Compelled to roam,
Now comes to all wayfarers,
On board the train
That glad refrain:
"No runs, no hits, no errors."

Too True.

The man on the sandbox suggests that there will be no assurance of peace until all the navies of the world are on a parity with Switzerland.

Ha Ha!

Swiss navy jokes like wine improve with age don't they Mr. Shearer? What, you don't like navy jokes? That's funny.

HAGEN AND SMITH STAR IN EXHIBITION MATCH

LEAVENWORTH, Kan., Oct. 8.—Walter Hagen and Horton Smith, Springfield, Mo., leading professional golfers, shattered par on the Leavenworth County Club course here yesterday.

Matched against Clarence McQuire, Jr., and O. D. Coppedge, Leavenworth players, Hagen shot a 66 and Smith a 67. Par on the course is 69.

McQuire took a 71 and Coppedge a 77. Hagen's 66 is believed a course record.

3 MINUTES OF PLAY BANS STAR OF PURPLE TEAM

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 8.—Less than three minutes of play constituted a full season of football for 225-pound Carl Hutchinson, and Coach Dick Hanley of Northwestern, beset with troubles in developing a line, must find himself another tackle.

Hutchinson, a medical student, transferred from the University of Idaho, where he took his pre-medical work, and yesterday was declared ineligible for having played in less than three minutes of the final game of the season in 1927. The game was played against the University of Nevada, a school not a member of the conference to which Utah belonged. The two and a fraction minutes in the game rounded out the huge tackle's third season of competition. He explained to Athletic Director Kenneth L. "Tug" Wilson that he was not aware that competition against a nonconference team was not permitted in the Big Ten.

Must Develop New Men.

Hanley immediately rounded up four possibilities and set to work to prepare a man for the job in Saturday's opening conference struggle with Wisconsin at Madison.

Minnesota also received another jolt from Old Man Eligibility when Elmer Apmann, veteran guard, and Al Krezowski, a promising sophomore end candidate, were declared ineligible scholastically.

Coach Pat Page of Indiana is working the Hoosiers for improvement of their defense, and Chicago, which will play Indiana Saturday, is being drilled on offensive tactics.

Development of a more effective offense is Harry Kipke's task at Michigan. The Wolverines demonstrated that their defense is coming along favorably, but Kipke realizes he will need plenty of ground-gaining stuff if Michigan is to conquer Jimmy Phelan's Purdue entrant at Lafayette Saturday. Phelan is bearing down on a defense against passes.

SUN BEAU SETS TRACK MARK IN WINNING HAWTHORNE GOLD CUP RACE

EASTERN CRACK BEATS MISSTEP AND DIAVOLO IN $25,000 EVENT

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 8.—Reeling off the third fastest mile and a quarter ever raced in America, Sun Beau, great 4-year-old son of Sun Briar-Beautiful Lady, won the $25,000 Hawthorne Gold Cup yesterday before 25,000 yelling fans, largest crowd that ever saw a race at the historic Hawthorne course.

Sun Beau, almost an 8 to 1 shot in the betting, ran the distance in 2:01 3-5. Whiskbroom II. is credited with running the fastest mile and a quarter ever raced, when he stepped the distance in 2:00 flat, carrying 139 pounds at Belmont Park June 28, 1913. This performance was disputed because of the claim that the timer caught the record on the wrong finishing line. In 1924 Sarazen, carrying 120 pounds reeled off a mile and a quarter at Latonia in 2:00 4-5 when he won from the French invader, Epinard.

Sun Beau, owned by Willis Sharpe Kilmer of Binghampton, N. Y., and carrying 126 pounds, beat the western champion, Misstep, to the wire by a length and a half, with Diavolo, the favorite, another eastern handicap star, third, four lengths behind Misstep.

Brown Wisdom was fourth, Karl Eitel, the entry of Alderman John J. "Bathhouse" Coughlin, of Chicago, fifth, and Distraction, coupled with Diavolo as the Wheatley entry in the betting, a distant sixth. The small but classy field of seven original starters was reduced to six by the withdrawal of Blackwood.

Winer Pays Almost 8 to 1.

Overlooked in the betting, Sun Beau, rewarded his backers with $17.84 to win the $2 mutuels. His place price was $7.22. He paid $3.02 to show. Misstep paid $4.86 to place and $2.56 to show while Diavolo paid $2.20 to show.

Sun Beau knocked two and one-fifth seconds off the track record made by Display a year ago, in winning the first running of the Hawthorne Gold Cup.

The gross value of the race was $28,900 of which $21,900 went to Owner Kilmer. Misstep won $4000 for second place, and $2000 going to Diavolo, while Brown Wisdom got $1000.

ST. CHARLES DEFEATS UNIVERSITY CITY MUNY TEAM, 2 TO 0

Point Loma, Uncles Miss and Queen Whims, field.

Frank D. improved his position gradaluly on the outside, closed ground well in stretch, wore down leaders and drew away at end. Lucky Sweep had speed from the start, always kept close up and gamely outlasted Chicola in final drive. Chicola, close up early, dropped back at far turn, but came again, and finished going fast at the end. Black Alice made a strong move entering the stretch, but tired. Illumine showed most speed to the stretch, but gave way in last eighth. Point Loma showed good effort. Immernoch and Georgia Herget were off poorly.

$2 mutuels paid: Frank D., win $8.26, place $5.08, show $3.42; Lucky Sweep, place $5.64, show $4.36; Chicola, show $6.42.

FAIRMOUNT SCRATCHES.

BIG SIX NOTES

By the Associated Press.

AMES, Ia.—Gordon Nagle, 200-pound sophomore center, left school yesterday to attend the funeral of his mother. He will not be back for the Missouri game. Paul Trauger, quarter, is on the injured list, as is Larson.

LINCOLN, Neb.—Dummy scrimmage was held yesterday, with Capt. Farley switched to quarter. Young, Paul and Sloan made up the balance of the backfield.

NOMAN, Ok.—The varsity emerged from the freshman game with no injuries and began preparations for the game with Creighton here next week-end.

MANHATTAN, Kan.—Coach Bo McMillin, in a few brief but well chosen words, explained the mistakes of the Purdue game to his Huskies, and then put his line to charging and his backfield to breaking up passes. Statistics of the Purdue game showed the Aggies made 40 more yards from scrimmage than their opponents, but failed to capitalize because of weak pass defense.

LAWRENCE, Kan.—The Jayhawk backs labored hard on passes yesterday, indicating that the Kansas team will flash an aerial offensive on the Emporia Teachers Saturday.

COLUMBIA, Mo.—The Tiger line prepared itself yesterday against the offensive to be expected from Iowa State Saturday. The varsity-freshman game Saturday caused no casualties.

THREE TEAMS LOOM AS FAVORITES IN EGYPTIAN GRID RACE

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JOHNSTON CITY, Ill., Oct. 8.—Anna-Jonesboro's unexpected downfall at the hands of Christopher, Saturday, 14 to 0, was an upset that has put a knot in the Egyptian Conference race, placing Christopher as one of the strong conference elevens, along with Hurst-Bush and Eldorado. Coach Bergholtz who last year put across one of the biggest upsets in the conference by downing Caterville, has again developed a team that put over an equally as important one by trouncing Anna, after Christopher had lost its opening game to Johnston City.

Hurst-Bush, last year's conference champions, had little trouble in winning from Vienna in a practice game.

Carterville had a close call, but by taking advantage of a fumble behind the goal line was able to pull through with a 7 to 2 victory over Zeigler. Later in the game a fumble almost cost them a victory, but the ever-alert Hindman fell on the ball for a safety.

Eldorado, by trouncing McLeansboro, 33 to 0, now looms up as a strong team and fully prepared to give a good account of itself.

Tulsa U. Team Prepares for Detroit Game

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

TULSA, Ok., Oct. 8.—Steeped in the lore of passes, scattered formations and sundry deceptions, the University of Tulsa team will journey 1000 miles to play the University of Detroit at Detroit to match the wits of Coach Henderson with those of Coach Dorais. The game will be played at night And they will have with them a sturdy line, many members of which last year repulsed the repeated attacks of the Detroit Titans, until a game prolonged beyond normal span went to the Detroiters through the air.

Passing, reversing, sweeping, smashing, punting and place-kicking—all belong in the repertoire of the Tulsa backfield. Only two of the last year's supply of backs are missing, the veteran quarter, Downs and a flashy halfback, Boehm. And a freshman addition at half, Casey, bears his 180 pounds with such grace that followers of the Tulsans already have placed him definitely in the second backfield. It remains to be seen whether Dubie, Down's understudy of 1928, will fill as capably the vacant place of the veteran strategist, who passed and punted as well as directed the team.

ROBERT KINSEY, STAR OF MEXICO NET TEAM, WINS TWO MATCHES

By the Associated Press.

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 8.—Robert Kinsey, a former American, scored Mexico's greatest victories in the national tennis championships here yesterday, winning two matches in straight sets. He took the first from L. Legoretta, 6—1, 6—3, 6—1, then swamped Dr. Ricardo Alvarez, 6—0, 6—1, 6—1.

John Van Ryn of Orange, N. J., and Ben Gorchakoff, Occidental college, each turned in their third victories of the tournament. Van Ryn defeated Federico Sendal, 6—2, 6—2, 6—2 and Gorchakoff defeated Gomez Palacio, 6—3, 2—6, 6—2, 6—3. Fritz Mercur of Bethlehem, Pa., got into action in the singles, defeating Mario Lopez Llera, 6—2, 6—2, 6—1. One American entry was eliminated when Rex Kipp lost to the Mexican Felix Delcanto, 6—3, 6—4, 6—3.

In the women's singles, Marjorie Gladman of Santa Monica, Cal., eliminated Eugenia Villain, 6—2, 6—0; Edith Cross of San Francisco defeated Carmen Villaurrutia, 6—0, 6—4; Josephine Cruickshank, San Francisco, defeated Judith Segura, 6—2, 7—5, and Marion Williams defeated Mrs. Trine Septien, 6—1, 6—4.

Miss Cruickshank and Miss Williams eliminated Amalia Deffis and Elena Torres from the women's doubles by scores of 6—2, 6—3. Miss Gladman and Van Ryn conquered Mrs. Septien and Sendal, 8—6, 6—0 in the only mixed doubles match.

DISCARD COMES BACK TO WIN SWAT TITLE IN AMERICAN LEAGUE

CLEVELAND, Oct. 1. — Lew. "The Portuguese" Fonseca, who came back after Major League clubs discarded him only to find himself slated for nothing better than utility roles, won the American League batting championship on the basis of unofficial records.

Fonseca, the Cleveland Indians' first baseman, finished the season yesterday with an unofficial average of .369, just 5 points better than Al Simmons of Philadelphia. He brought the tribe its first batting championship since Tris Speaker rang up .386 in 1916.

He started his career in 1920 with the San Francisco Seals, jumped after a while to Smithfield, Utah, an outlaw club and then had four indifferent years with Cincinnati, fluctuating from the infield to the outfield. He was shipped to the Philadelphia Nationals in 1925 and batted .319 while playing second base, but next year was shunted to Newark in the International League. Cleveland took note of his .381 average with Newark and picked him up for relief roles.

While Johnny Hodapp, scheduled for first base by the Tribe this spring held out, Fonseca was sent to the post he held down all year.

Fonseca, who is 29 years old, was born at Oakland, Calif. He drifted into baseball by accident, having trained several years to go on the concert stage.

ROCKNE'S TEAM IS FAVORED TO WIN FROM NAVY

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 8.—Three rivalries dating back to 1904 or earlier will be renewed Saturday for the edification of Eastern college football fans.

While the Syracuse-Nebraska and Navy-Notre Dame will take a major share of general public interest, there will be plenty left for Pittsburg's tangle with West Virginia, Princeton's duel with Brown and New York University's battle with Fordham.

Of these the Pitt-West Virginia rivalry is the oldest. Back in 1895 when Pittsburg was the Western University of Pennsylvania, the Panther and Mountaineer met for the first time. There have been 23 meetings since then, with Pittsburg winning a total of 15, West Virginia eight, with one tie. Indications are that the Pittsburg margin will be increased by one, for Jock Sutherland has developed a powerful Panther team this year.

Brown Done Up Brown.

Brown and Princeton, since 1904, have met five times and the Rhode Island team has yet to record a victory. Brown has been unimpressive in its first two games, but Princeton was hardly better in recording its one touchdown victory over Amherst.

New York University will be trying to even its score with Fordham. These intra-city rivals have played nine times since 1904, with victory perching on the banners of Fordham five times.

Syracuse and Nebraska have split even in six games since 1917, the Cornhuskers winning the last two by scores of 20—0 and 7—6. Prospects are rather bright for a Syracuse victory this year, for Nebraska did not appear to particular advantage in its scoreless tie with Southern Methodist last Saturday.

Notre Dame Opposes Navy.

If a Syracuse victory materializes, it probably will remain for Notre Dame to keep up the Middle Western end of Saturday's intersectional play. Knute Rockne's Ramblers, with the speedy Jack Elder a constant scoring threat, will be favored over the Navy, which had its troubles downing William and Mary last week.

There are a number of other intersectional games of less import on the program, with Yale traveling South to play Georgia, Swarthmore meeting Virginia, Michigan State battling Colgate, Virginia Poly meeting Pennsylvania, Davidson taking the field against Army and St. Louis playing Georgetown.

Close games are in prospect in the meetings of Bucknell and Washington and Jefferson; Rutgers and Holy Cross and Villanova and Boston College, but Cornell, Columbia, Dartmouth, Lafayette and Penn State, among others, will be matched against so-called minor opposition.

Atherton Wins Bout

By the Associated Press.

TORONTO, Oct. 8.—Happy Atherton of Indianapolis came through the first stage of Toronto's flyweight elimination series last night by defeating Ruby Bradley of Holyoke, Mass. Atherton gained the decison after 10 rounds. Each weighed 112 pounds.

PERLICK TWINS WIN AND LOSE BOUTS ON PITTSBURG FIGHT CARD

PITTSBURG, Pa., Oct. 8.—The Perlick boys, fighting twins from Kalamazoo, Mich., won and lost in their bouts here last night at Motor Square Garden. Henry was knocked out in the sixth round of a 10-round fight by Joey Goodman of Cleveland, and Herman won a technical knockout over Marty Silvers, Brooklyn, in the third round of a 10-set fight. Silvers dislocated his shoulder in the third round when he fell through the ropes and was unable to continue.

George Panka, Homestead, knocked out K. O. Blackburn, Louisville, Ky., in the first round of a six-round bout.

Clark Kayoes Rioux

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 8.—Roy (Ace) Clark, Philadelphia Negro heavyweight, knocked out Elzear Rioux, Montreal, Canada, in the third round of their 10-round fight at the Arena last night. Clark scaled 236 pounds, Rioux 217.

FAST FIELD IN KEARNEY TROPHY RACE TONIGHT

Dry Creek, Grey Buck and The Villain, a trio that finished first, second and third in the sixth Madison Derby, are grouped with Bootlegger, the Montana Derby winner; McGurk, last year's interstate champion, and Hazard II, holder of the world record for three-eighths of a mile, in a field of eight greyhound speed stars scheduled to compete in the Kearney Trophy Race, a five-sixteenths mile event featuring tonight's racing card at the Madison oval. Ares and The Bison, a pair of speedy youngsters complete the field of eight contenders.

Tom Kearney, veteran local sportsman, after whom the five-sixteenths mile feature has been named, will present a handsome trophy to the owner of the victorious speedster. The trophy, a 21 jeweled watch, is to be presented in front of the judges' stand.

The fact that he has lost only two of his last 10 races, stamps Dry Creek as the favorite, although he was beaten by the fleet-footed McGurk in his last engagement, a futurity sprint, which the black Montana sprinter negotiated in :28 3-5, three-fifths of a second off the world record and but one-fifth slower than Dry Creek's best performance to date. Dry Creek's best time for the five-sixteenths is :28 flat, a mark which The Villain and Hazard II have equaled.

Hargento, the Kuester Kennels' clever red dog, rated the fastest breaker competing at the East Side course, engages the vetran stars Robin's River and Suir Side in company with Concession, Dick Free, Ishabran, Beckfield Bob and Sizar, a crack troupe of youngsters, in the futurity feature of tonight's bill. They go to the post in the final number.

CLEVELAND TO OPPOSE M. M. A. TEAM SATURDAY

With more than two weeks remaining before the opening of the City High football league, the elevens are continued with practice games. All but Central will play either Friday or Saturday of this week.

On Friday, Soldan will do battle with St. Louis University High School, a member of the Preparatory League at the Public Schools Stadium. Soldan has won two straight shut-out victories, having defeated McBride and Granite City. The 30 Soldan points have been scored by Dave Cook, the team's quarterback.

After having tied and won one game, Cleveland marred its record by losing to Principia Junior College, 7 to 0. Cleveland will have one of its stiffest battles of the year Saturday when it plays the Missouri Military Academy at Mexico, Mo.

Cleveland's conqueror, Principia, will meet Roosevelt, Saturday at Taylor Field. From the showing Roosevelt made in winning from Western Military Academy by one touchdown last week, it is evident that the Rough Riders will provide Principia with plenty of opposition.

Beaumont is also scheduled to play Saturday. The North Siders will meet Webster on the Webster Field. Webster started its season in poor fashion, losing to East St. Louis, 6 to 0. Beaumont won from St. Louis University High by the same score and now has a record of one victory and one defeat.

MASTRO MEETS TAYLOR TONIGHT IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, Oct. 8.—Earl Mastro, Chicago contender for the featherweight championship of the world, and Bud Taylor, veteran Terre Haute (Ind.) puncher, will meet tonight in the 10-round feature bout of the Chicago Stadium's program.

Two other 10-rounders are on the card. Salvadore Ruggirello, giant Italian puncher, will meet Les Kennery, young San Francisco heavyweight, and My Sullivan of St. Paul will tackle Jackie Brady, Syracuse (N. Y.) welterweight.

Who's Who Among Members Of the Cubs and Athletics

Cubs

Joe McCarthy says he remembers having done nothing but play baseball when he was a kid.

He became a manager at the age of 25, taking charge of the Wilkes-Barre team.

McCarthy managed the Louisville club for 10 years and went to the Cubs in 1926. He is 41 years old.

Guy Bush is the only major league pitcher sporting side burns. He is a product of the Cotton States League; is 24 years old, and has a mean curve ball.

Charley Grimm was one of those 17-year-old beauties. He signed with Connie Mack at that age, but never played with the A's. He is 30 and gets credit for "making" the Cubs' infield.

Rogers Hornsby batted better than .400 four consecutive years, won seven batting championships in 14 seasons and has a lifetime big league batting average of .365. He is 33.

Speed on the paths, a deadly peg and better than the average batting ability makes 30-year-old Hazen Cuyler a great ballplayer.

Hack Wilson at 29 is one of the biggest attractions in the majors. He goes in for slugging in a great big way and is noted for the number of homers he clouts as well as for the number of times he fans.

One of the best ball players Dixie ever produced is Riggs Stephenson. He is a natural hitter and has a life-time major league batting average of .337. His age is 30 years.

Pat Malone was such a cutup in the minors that the majors passed him up despite his blinding speed. Then Boss McCarthy grabbed him. Pat is the 1929 strikout king of his league. He is 27.

Charlie Root, another one of the 30-year-olds with the Cubs, originally was a fast ball pitcher. He picked up a curve a few years ago and won 26 games in 1927. Overwork that season slowed him down but he is coming back.

Mike Gonzales has been in the majors about 16 years. When the Giants dropped him seven years ago, he slipped to the minors but climbed back up after two years. He has been a big help to the Cubs this season.

Elwood English, the baby among the Cub regulars, was starring for Toledo at 19 when Joe McCarthy discovered him. He is 22 now and rates as a coming star.

The Cubs picked up Norman McMillan in the grand rush for some kind of a third baseman. He proved to be just the man they were looking for. He broke in as a major league regular at 32.

Sheriff Blake is the boy who stepped out to stardom in 1928 when the Cubs all but grabbed the National League pennant. He has taken it a bit easier this year. He is 30.

Harold Carlson, was virtually useless to the Cubs in 1928 but he started winning this year and finished in good style. His age is 35.

Zach Taylor was just another ball player until the Cubs picked him up in mid-summer. His catching helped put the Bruins way out in front. He is 31.

Athletics

Connie Mack learned baseball from the ground up. He broke into the majors as a Washington catcher in 1886. He became manager of the Athletics in 1900.

He won pennants in 1902, 1905, 1910, 1911, 1913, 1914 and 1929, his team becoming world champions by defeating the Cubs in 1910 and the Giants in 1911 and 1913.

He is 67 and has indicated that he will continue as the A's manager.

Mickey Cochrane has no superiors in the catching business. And his hitting rates him a place in the upper bracket of the batting order. He is 26.

Lefty Grove is the American League sure-shot strikeout specialist. This is the fourth season he has led the league. His age is 29.

Al Simmons, whose unorthodox batting stance amused the boys when he first broke into the majors, is doing the laughing now. He is a home-run clouter and a bear at driving in runs. Al is 26.

George Earnshaw grew up on the sidewalks of New York. He succeeded Lefty Grove as the ace of the Baltimore hurling staff and then followed Grove to the A's—four years later.

Jimmy Foxx is only 22 years old, but he has been playing professional baseball six years. He came to the A's in 1925, but had trouble breaking into the lineup until last year.

Jimmy Dykes is one of the best allround infielders in the game. He has played every position in the infield this year. He is 32.

Joe Boley is another one of those former Baltimore stars. The late Jack Dunn had a big price tag on Joe and Connie Mack was three years making up his mind to buy Joseph. His age is 31.

Mule Haas is what Connie Mack calls a great center fielder. He is 25.

The boys weak on curve ball pitching don't have much of a chance with Rube Walberg. Rube is 30. This is his fifth season with the A's.

Bing Miller got a break when Connie Mack obtained him last year in the Sammy Gray deal. He has shown his appreciation by hitting in great style this year. Bing is 34.

Jack Quinn at 44 is still good enough to stand a good chance of starting a game in the coming series. His spitter enabled him to pitch several low-hit games this year.

Cy Perkins is one of Connie Mack's dependables, although he seldom breaks into the lineup, because of the super-excellence of Mickey Cochrane's catching. Cy is 33.

Eddie Collins is a veteran of seven world's series. Eddie is 42, but still breaks into the lineup occasionally.

Eddie Rommel did his best work for Connie Mack in those dark years of the not distant past when the A's consisted mainly of young and inexperienced ballplayers. He is 32.

Prep League Notes

Five Elevens Scored Only Six Points in Practice Games Last Week—Title Campaign Opens When McBride Plays C. B. C. Friday.

By Robert W. Herr.

A rather unusual feature of the practice games in which the five Prep League football elevens participated on Friday and Saturday was the scoring of a total of but six points by the league squads in the five games. St. Louis U. High, Country Day and Western were blanked by Beaumont, Principia and Roosevelt, while C. B. C played a scoreless tie with Ranken and McBride and Central deadlocked at 6-all. The heavy playing fields and wholesale injuries in practice last week account in large measure for the showing.

With the season well under way, the league schedule will open this week, McBride meeting C. B. C. on the latter's field Friday afternoon, and Country Day playing at Western Military Academy on Saturday. McBride should defeat the Brothers handily, while the outcome of the Codasco-Western tilt will depend largely on how many of Coach Hughes' injured stars can get into playing condition during the next few days. In that Country Day and Western tied for the championship last season, the contest Saturday will practically eliminate from the 1929 race one of the 1928 title winners.

St. Louis U. High, the only eleven that will not engage in a conference game this week, is to meet Soldan of the City League on Friday. The contest will enable followers of McBride and St. Louis to compare the respective strength of the two teams, as Soldan downed the Collonnaders, 12—0, in a hard fought encounter earlier in the season.

Comparison of last season's All-Star eleven with the lineups being displayed by the various teams of the circuit this year discloses that four of the men mentioned on the mythical squad in 1928 are again in uniform. Max Krygiel of St. Louis, who was chosen as a guard is playing at center this year, while Capt. Montgomery, a tackle choice, is handling his same post. Tupper, Codasco quarterback, who was chosen as the best in the league in 1928, is still calling signals for the Brown road school, while Husch, all-star fullback, also of Country Day, was performing brilliantly at halfback up until a few days ago, but is now down with an injury which may keep him on the sidelines for the remainder of the season.

Consolidated Cigar Corp., New York

SMOKE TALKS by the DUTCH MASTERS

Of course, we don't know your particular preference in cigars. But so tremendously popular a cigar as Dutch Masters must appeal to most smokers. Why should you be an exception?

There are young men's styles in clothes—so why not a "young man's cigar"? From the number of men under 30 we see purchasing Dutch Masters, it seems to be the choice of the younger men. Probably they first take to Dutch Masters on account of its mildness. Undoubtedly they stick to Dutch Masters because of its taste and bouquet.

• • •

It doesn't take much of a judge of tobacco to realize that Dutch Masters is a good cigar. But only the smoker who knows the finer points of cigars will realize just how good Dutch Masters really is.

• • •

When it comes to cigars, some gentlemen prefer "blondes"—thinking they are milder than "brunettes." As a matter of fact the light color of a wrapper is no indication of mildness. If you want a mild cigar, the one safe rule is to select a cigar noted for its mildness, Dutch Masters, for example.

SAYS BANKRUPT FIRM WAS LEFT ON HIS HANDS

Salesman Testifies J. B. Furstenberg Never Returned After Hiring Him.

E. B. Meldner, a salesman, told Referee in Bankruptcy Coles yesterday how on the eve of a business trip J. B. Furstenberg, president of the Boggs Broom Corn Co., now bankrupt, placed him in charge of the business in September, 1928, although he represented other broom handle companies.

"The Boggs company owed my firm about $7000 and Furstenberg wanted to borrow between $15,000 and $25,000 from us to get on his feet," Meldner explained. "He made me vice president and told me to act in his place during his absence. If I found the business satisfactory I was to arrange the loan. I discovered that the business was insolvent and that many of the creditors from whom I tried to collect said they had already paid Furstenberg's brother-in-law. I resigned in November, 1928, and have not seen Furstenberg since he hired me."

Furstenberg, who is said to be operating another broom corn business in Liberal, Kan., has refused to attend hearings here because he is "too busy."

Meldner testified that he found that A. H. Rode, secretary of the Boggs Broom Corn Co., was also managing the St. Louis Broom Supply Co., a rival concern, occupying the same offices.

The Boggs company filed a voluntary bankruptcy petition last June 14, listing liabilities of $137,503 and assets of $30,662. The trustee, so far, has brought about $5700 into the estate.

The case was continued yesterday to allow the trustee to make a further effort to bring Furstenberg to St. Louis.

Mayor of Detroit Tells How City Controls Utilities

Satisfactory Service Under Day to Day Permits---No Trouble About Financing

treet Railway Company Built 30 Miles of Extensions After Its Franchises Had Expired

Accepted Home Rule and Gave Better Service When Supreme Court Ruled City Had Power to Oust It From the Streets. The Improvements Made Required Additional Investment of More Than $3,000,000.

By Paul Y. Anderson,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

DETROIT Oct. 8.—Recently when the writer was in Detroit obaining material for the series of articles which appeared in the Post-ispatch describing Detroit's handling of public utility problems, Mayor ohn Lodge and Corporation Counsel Clarence E. Wilcox were absent on acation. Both these officials have been directly concerned with the treet railway question here over a long period of years, first under rivate and then under public ownership, and it was obviously desirable get their views. Accordingly the writer returned to Detroit with the equest that they contribute such information as might be of benefit the City of St. Louis in the solution of its own street railway probm. They complied cheerfully and fully, Wilcox devoting an entire fternoon to a recital and elucidation of Detroit's experiences in that eld. The following is the first of two articles based on interviews ith them:

"Certain people down in St. ouis are saying that municipal nership and operation of street ilways in Detroit has not been unqualified success," the writ- informed Mayor Lodge. "What you say about that?"

"In the first place," chuckled Mayor. "I suspect that those rtain people' probably are insted in prolonging private ownrship and operation in St. Louis. utside criticism of our system ually comes from that source. In e second place, if they mean that r system isn't perfect, they are ite right. I never heard of a reet car system that was.

"But if they mean," continued e Mayor, leaning forward and pping his desk for emphasis, that municipal ownership and opration in Detroit has been less ccessful than private ownership d operation elsewhere, I deny and I challenge them to prove Yes, I will go even further. I allenge anyone to produce a gle example of private ownerip and operation that will come with our publicly owned sysm. Consider these facts: We are aking extensions and adding uipment on the scale necessary keep pace with the growth of a y that doubles its population in years. We are constantly placing old facilities. On a fare six cents plus a penny for transrs, our system is paying for itf out of operating revenue at e rate of nearly $3,000,000 a ar. In a few more years the ople will own it, lock, stock and rrel, without having paid in a nt except in the form of reasonle carfares. Finally, I challenge y competent and unbiased eneer or group of engineers, to say er a comprehensive survey, that troit does not have the most efient and modern street railway tem in the United States."

Then the Mayor, who is noted r the fact that he never makes campaign speech, and seldom inges in public utterances of any d, smiled at his own earnestss.

"This game of slandering our ansportation system is an old ory," he remarked. "You won't ar any of it in Detroit. You 't find any responsible person e who wants to go back to prie ownership. Criticism of mucipal ownership in Detroit alys comes from private traction erests in some other city. They e afraid of our example—and y have good reason to be."

As heretofore explained by the t-Dispatch, Detroit originally ained home rule over the street ways and all other public utilis by refusing to grant any new chises. When the principal chises of the old Detroit UnitRailways Co. expired in 1909, city regained control over fares service. The company was n allowed to operate on the is of day-to-day permits, and that basis it continued to operuntil the railways were bought the city in 1922.

Reference was made to this fact ing a meeting of the St. Louis nsportation Survey Commis a few days ago, and Stanley ke, president of the Public ice Co. there, volunteered the nion that the expiration of a chise and the inauguration of permit system would not dimh the control of the State Pub Service Commission over the pany. The writer asked Mayor ge if this had been Detroit's exience.

"Not at all," he said. "Quite the trary. The expiration of the nchises here gave the city comete control over fares and servThe United States Supreme Court held that the city had the right to remove from the streets all lines on which the franchises had expired, thus leaving the city free to exercise full control, and it did so throughout the 13 years which preceded municipal ownership. The State Commission never made the slightest effort to assert jurisdiction. So far as I know, the company never even appealed to the commission. Any such appeal would have been futile."

During the same meeting of the St. Louis Survey Commission alluded to in the foregoing, Alderman Kuhs inquired of the commission's engineer, R. F. Keiker Jr., about the operation of the permit system in Detroit. Kelker replied, saying it was true that the Detroit car company had operated for several years under a permit, but added that during the permit period no extensions or improvements were made, because the company's lack of a franchise rendered it unable to obtain the necessary capital. The writer asked Mayor Lodge if this was true.

"There isn't a word of truth in it," exclaimed that official. "How anyone pretending to have the slightest knowledge of the facts could make such an assertion, is beyond me. The company actually built a whole series of new lines and extensions after the franchises had expired. They were built under an agreement whereby the company could operate them from day to day, with the provision that the city could take them over at any time by paying the original cost of construction, less depreciation. They were known as the 'day-to-day lines.' To build them cost more than $3,000,000, all of which the company borrowed through bond issues. More than 30 miles of track was built and operated under these day-to-day agreements, entered into between the company and the Common Council."

"Is it a fact," the writer inquired, "that the company gave poor service after it was put on a permit?"

"Yes, and it is also a fact that it gave poor service under its franchise," the Mayor retorted. "Poor service was all that company ever gave at any stage of its career. That was why the city eventually had to take over the system and operate it. But I can tell you this —it gave much better service under a permit than it had given under a franchise. It had to. As long as the franchise was running the city was powerless to compel the company to make improvements, but when the franchise expired, and the Supreme Court said that the company could operate only by the city's permission, the city was able to say: 'Snap into it, gentlemen, or take your tracks off the streets.'

"They snapped into it. They made a lot of improvements that should have been made years before. At first they protested that they couldn't raise the money for these improvements unless they had a franchise, but when they saw that no franchise was forthcoming, and that they must either improve or get out, I took notice that they raised the money and made the improvements."

The writer remarked that Mayor Lodge didn't seem to take much stock in the argument that a public utility corporation cannot finance itself unless it has a franchise.

"I take just as much stock in it as I take in any other argument that has been completely exploded," the Mayor declared. "I am amazed that any utility man has the temerity to advance such a claim in the face of the undisputed examples of the contrary. In Detroit there are four great public utility corpo-

PASSENGER SLUMP ACCELERATED BY NEW FARE SYSTEM

Public Service Co. Report for Fifth Week of Test Shows Decrease in Number of Riders and Revenue

The significant fact about the first five weeks of the new experimental street car fare is that it has accelerated the rate of decrease in passengers carried and has failed to add sufficient revenue to offset it.

The new rate, which became effective Aug. 26, for a 60-day trial period, is 10 cents for adults who do not have weekly commutation tickets, and experience thus far is that about 39 per cent of the fares are at this rate. Passengers who buy weekly commutation tickets at 90 cents for 12 rides, with additional rides at 5 cents, pay about 57 per cent of all fares.

The Public Service Co.'s report for the fifth week, Sept. 23 to 29, filed with the City Counselor today, showed a reduction of $9827 in revenue compared with the corresponding week of 1928 when the 8-cent fare was in effect. This same decrease if maintained throughout a year would reduce the company's annual revenue $511,000.

Decrease in Fares 6.89 Per Cent.

Total number of fares collected in the fifth week was 4,473,212, as compared with 4,804,130 in the corresponding week last year, a reduction of 330,918, or 6.89 per cent. The steady decline in number of passengers in the last few years has been around 3 to 4 per cent a year.

For the first time since the new schedule became effective, it failed in the fifth week to produce an increase in revenue over the preceding week and likewise the number of fares collected failed to increase.

If the company's earnings under a full year at the present fare schedule were decreased $500,000 as compared with the full year of the 8-cent fare which ended July 1 last, it would still have left for its common stockholders for dividends and sinking fund the sum of $638,968. This would be evuivalent to $1.85 a share on the 343,620 shares of common stock, or 14 per cent on the cash the holders paid into the company's treasury for this stock, which was $12.50 a share.

More Than 4½ Per Cent.

The amount available to the company for use of its property, out of which it would have to pay bond interest and preferred stock dividends, would be approximately $3,000,000, equivalent to more than 4½ per cent on the valuation of $65,489,680, the valuation of $63,500,000 allowed the company by the Public Service Commission plus additions claimed by the company.

This earning would be more than 6 per cent on the price paid for the street railway system by the present owners, which was $49,100,000.

Following is the record of fares collected and revenue of the company by weeks under the new schedule:

	Fares Collected	Revenue
First week ...	4,139,858	$349,249
Second week..	4,144,549	352,475
Third week...	4,460,038	369,762
Fourth week..	4,517,685	373,309
Fifth week...	4,473,212	368,897

The record for the corresponding weeks of 1928 follows:

Week 1928	Fares Collected	Revenue
Aug. 27-Sept. 2	4,542,256	$356,214
Sept. 3-9......	4,547,636	357,750
Sept. 10-16...	4,756,992	374,973
Sept. 17-23...	4,850,167	382,357
Sept. 24-30...	4,804,130	378,725

The number of commutation tickets sold under the new schedule has increased steadily from 149,572 the first week to 173,743 in the fifth week. The number in the fourth week was 172,812.

NEW AUTO ENGINE IN REAR

LONDON, Oct. 8.—One of the new automobiles shown at the motor show here this year is a car that carries its engine in the rear, where most motorists would hang the spare tire.

Tank, carburetor and everything are there, and the power is applied almost directly to the back wheels. The makers claim more speed, less noise and a complete absence of engine fumes inside the car as the chief advantages of this departure from the customary method of engine-mounting.

MELLON TO STAY IN OFFICE TILL 1933 IF HEALTH PERMITS

Announcement That Secretary Will Not Soon Retire Is Made By Hoover.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8.—Andrew W. Mellon will guide the fiscal affairs of the United States for the duration of the current administration.

This announcement by President Hoover is intended to quiet rumors that the 74-year-old financier, who has held the Treasury portfolio longer than any of his predecessors, is planning to retire. It means that, his health and his wishes permitting, he will continue in the Cabinet until March 4, 1933, spanning the terms of three administrations—Harding, Coolidge and Hoover.

Reports have been current frequently since President Hoover took office that Mellon was about to retire. All have been denied and their persistence finally led to the White House announcement. That went beyond the reports early in the administration that the Treasury Secretary would continue in office another year.

$171,000 IMPROVEMENT BILLS FOR CITY INSTITUTIONS

Welfare Director Salisbury Submits Draft Ordinances for Repairs and Supplies.

Director of Public Welfare Salisbury today recommended to the Board of Public Service proposed ordinances appropriating $171,000 for improvements and repairs at city institutions.

The largest item, $45,000, is for fire department equipment, new beds and blankets, repairs and painting at the City Sanitarium. Other appropriations sought are: $40,000 for repairs, elevators and fire equipment at the City Infirmary; $32,000 for an addition to the power and refrigerating plant at the new morgue; $19,000 for additional X-ray and laboratory equipment at City Hospital; $10,000, lighting and fire equipment at the Training School for Feebleminded; $15,000 for an incinerator and painting at Koch Hospital; $5000, blankets and kitchen equipment, Isolation Hospital; and $5000 for repairs and painting, City Hospital No. 2.

If approved by the Board of Public Service the proposed ordinances will go to the Board of Aldermen.

ROCK ISLAND'S RATE-MAKING BASE VALUE IS $251,909,983

Final Figure Reached by I. C. C. Before Supreme Court's Decision on Reproductions New.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8.—A final valuation of $251,909,983 for rate-making purposes was placed today by the Interstate Commerce Commission on the owned and used property of the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railroad as of June 30, 1915.

The valuation decision was made by the commission last February, three months before the Supreme Court handed down its decision in the St. Louis & O'Fallon case, which held that cost of reproduction new must be given due consideration in making valuations.

The property owned but not used was valued at $236,435 and the property used but not owned was valued at $70,319,312.

LINDBERGH PARTY REPORTS FINDING MORE MAYA RUINS

Ancient Buildings Never Before Seen by Whites Discovered in Jungles of British Honduras.

By the Associated Press.

MIAMI, Fla., Oct. 8.—Discovery of Maya ruins never before seen by white man was reported by the radio operator aboard Col. Charles A. Lindbergh's plane flying in the vicinity of Lake Yaxha, British Honduras, in a message to Pan-American Airways base here today.

After reporting the takeoff from Belize on the third trip of the joint Carnegie Institution-Pan-American Airways scientific expedition and a landing and takeoff at Lake Yaxha, Radio Operator William Ehmer broke his routine message with:

"Flash—We have discovered regular ruins now, circling them. Scientists all het up."

The Miami base was working directly with the plane in flight.

Lindbergh, accompanied by Mrs. Lindbergh and members of the first aerial expedition into the unknown area of Maya Land, took off from Belize, British Honduras, at 10 a. m., and headed into the interior of British Honduras toward Flores and the Tayasal region, where the third stage of the exploration of Mayan ruins is to be made.

Scientists With Him.

Aboard the big Amphibian plane with the Lindberghs were Dr. A. S. Kidder, head of the archeological branch of Carnegie Institution, Oliver H. Richetson, also of the Carnegie staff; radio operator Emmer, and W. I. Van Dusen of New York. Lindbergh was piloting and Dr. Kidder was riding beside him in the cockpit.

Continuing the message interrupted by Operator Emmer's flash of sighting of Mayan ruins, the radio told how after circling an oblong lagoon at Yaxha, Lindbergh brought the heavy plane to a pretty landing at 11 a. m.

"Natives in a small village took to cover as we taxied across the lagoon, but reappeared when Col. Lindbergh throttled down his motors," the message said. "We were down 15 minutes, landing for the purpose of studying the silhouettes of surrounding hills on one of which definite ruins were sighted, which Dr. Kidder said dated back to early Mayan civilization.

"Twenty minutes from Yaxha, Lindbergh sighted two snow-white tops of temples at Wachum, peeping up through the vast jungle which has swallowed almost all trace of the ancient Mayas. We circled twice, discovering that the temples were built at opposite sides of a queer pyramid. Mr. Ricketson estimated the pyramid to be more than 100 feet high."

"After more circling of the surrounding hills we are now headed for Tayasal," the message concluded.

At 11:35 the Lindbergh plane reported sighting "five columns of white" in the jungle near Tikal.

"They must be massive edifices. It is miraculous how they can be picked out," the message said. "Lindbergh made three large circles, while Dr. Kidder and Dr. Ricketson busied themselves with notes. All in the plane have become keen observers. Broken clouds made it a bti hazy, but otherwise the weather is fine."

At 11:45 a. m. the plane was flying over Dr. Ricketson's jungle camp, "a handful of little huts and the only cleared spot for many miles."

At the Uaxactun excavations, where earlier explorations discovered principal pyramid believed to have been a Mayan astronomical observatory dating back to the first century after Christ, the Lindbergh party found the once partly cleared

New Head of City Art Museum Plans Policy of Popularization

Meyric E. Rogers Takes Charge as Director, Outlines Expansion Program —Will Try to Sense What the ePople Want.

Popularization of the City Art Museum in Forest Park by various means is the foremost task of its new director, Meyric R. Rogers, who entered upon his duties actively yesterday. In a talk with reporters he discussed ways of making the institution, which is supported by a special city tax rate, even more useful, and the need of increasing its financial resources. He praised its character.

Rogers, who succeeds the late S. L. Sherer, was director of the Baltimore Art Museum for the last two years. He arrived here from Baltimore on Friday and soon his wife and baby daughter will be here.

To Sense City's Needs.

"My first job here," said Rogers, "is to completely sense the individual needs of the city before going ahead with any theory of development. Like many Easterners, unacquainted with the West, I was very much surprised at the quality of the collections. I had thought to find a museum built on the basis of ideas of 20 years ago, that this region might have been developing more or less by itself, without regard to what was going on in the East. However, this museum, for its size and resources, has one of the very best collections.

"With the acquisitions of the last 15 or 20 years I am greatly pleased. My respect for Mr. Sherer, whom I had never met, became almost unlimited when I saw what he had done. He realized the thing to concentrate on was to get together a fine collection of art objects, instead of devoting too much effort to the personal service of the museum. Now, prices have jumped so that it is almost impossible for a museum of moderate means to get good things except by a stroke of luck."

As an example of prices, Rogers spoke of a William and Mary writing desk of marquetry, which Mr. Sherer bought six or eight years ago for $1650, and which a dealer valued recently as worth £5000 (about $25,000) on sale at London. It is not for sale.

"Work Now Only Begun."

"Of course," Rogers continued, "the collecting job is not completed. We have the foundation. We believe that getting the best things is always a good policy. I conceive my job to be to put to work this fine instrument (the museum) which Mr. Sherer has left. It is now realized that museum work is only begun when you have a building and a collection. You have to open the doors to the minds of the people, to increase their capacity for the enjoyment of art.

"Life today is so hectic that we have to compete with advertisers to attract the attention of our clientele—the people of St. Louis. We must bring the people and the museum in closer and closer contact as time goes on. In doing that we have to develop the personnel of the museum, to explain the things to visitors and work in other ways. Having them is like having a mutual friend to introduce you to some one."

For More Public Carriers.

Attendance has been from 350,000 to 400,000 annually, a volume which astonished Rogers. He is contemplating means of making the place more accessible. The only public carriers in the park are the park busses, which give infrequent service, and Rogers thinks the lack of other public transportation facilities has tended to keep some persons away.

NEW DIRECTOR OF ART MUSEUM

—By a Post-Dispatch Staff Photographer.

MEYRIC R. ROGERS.

Funds of the museum compare fairly favorable with those elsewhere, Rogers said, but its income from taxes was only $221,819 in the last fiscal year, and the annual increase in this revenue is comparatively small. The museum tax rate is 2 cents on the $100 valuation.

"We must compare ourselves with museums like those at Chicago, Detroit and Kansas City," Rogers remarked. "Chicago has over $1,000,000 annual income, Detroit $500,000 and Kansas City has $500,000 for acquisitions alone. We should develop a metropolitan character. The museum serves not only St. Louis and St. Louis County, but it goes beyond the State and serves the Mississippi Valley, having a larger territory than any other museum.

"More Buildings Needed."

"To develop the museum requires funds. That is a problem we are going to have to meet and unless help comes fairly soon we are going to find ourselves seriously crippled I don't wish to talk very much on this subject now because I'm not familiar enough with it. Our building, which was fine enough when erected for the World's Fair, is inadequate. We need an auditorium, class rooms, proper office space and other facilities."

The suggestion was made some time ago that the proposed new city bond issue might include an item to enlarge the museum. Rogers spoke of the helpful and understanding attitude of the museum's board of control, composed of citizens.

Born near Birmingham, England, 36 years ago, Rogers came to America at the age of 13. He became a citizen in 1920. He holds degrees in arts and architecture from Harvard University where he was associate professor of fine arts in 1926-27. Previously he was chairman of the art department of Smith College. For six years he was assistant curator of decorative arts at Metropolitan Museum of Art, New York.

OUTSTANDING MEN TO DIRECT WORK ON MISSISSIPPI

Gen. Jackson to Remain Head of Commission—Lt.-Col. Spalding to Be Western Engineer.

LATTER CARRIED OUT OHIO CHANNEL JOB

Headquarters for Flood Control Operations to Be Moved From St. Louis to Vicksburg.

Two of the outstanding men in the Corps of Engineers have been placed in charge of Mississippi River improvement, as announced at Washington yesterday, in line with the instructions handed down by President Hoover when he appointed Major-General Lytle Brown Chief of Engineers.

The announcement, sparse of detail, was interpreted by officers here to mean separation of the Western Division from the Mississippi River Commission. Brigadier-General Thomas H. Jackson has been both president of the commission, in charge of the $325,000,000 flood-control project, and Western Division Engineer, in charge of improvement of the Upper Mississippi and all the tributaries except the Illinois and Ohio.

It appears that he is to be relieved as division engineer by Lieutenant-Colonel George R. Spalding, who has just finished the epochal Ohio River channel job, Gen. Jackson will turn over the tributaries to Col. Spalding, but will retain leadership of the commission and responsibility for flood control.

"High Up in the Corps."

Gen. Jackson describes Col. Spalding and Col. Edward M. Markham, who was placed in charge of Great Lakes improvement, with headquarters at Cleveland, as "the two outstanding men high up in the corps." Other engineers refer similarly to Col. Spalding, and Gen. Jackson himself, and so it seems probable, at least, tha thte Mississippi has been placed in able hands.

Headquarters of the Mississippi River Commission, organized by act of Congress June 28, 1879, will be removed from St. Louis to Vicksburg, Miss. The flood control project begins at Cape Girardeau, 130 miles south of St. Louis by river. Vicksburg, 782 miles south of St. Louis by river and 471 north of New Orleans, is al-

Harry F. Sinclair Criticises Attorney-General Mitchell.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

IN a recent issue of your paper you approve editorially Attorney-General Mitchell's statement in the jury shadowing case that

"While no corrupt purpose had actually been consummated," he was "firmly persuaded that the jury shadowing operations were for the sinister and ulterior purpose of influencing the jury."

First, note that the Attorney-General admits that no corrupt purpose had been consummated. But he disapproves my petition on the ground that he was "firmly persuaded" that I had an intent to consummate such a purpose.

Having no act which constituted contempt he guesses at my intention, and he was wrong. As a matter of law my intentions were entirely immaterial. The law can be read from the following finding of Chief Justice Taney, one of the most distinguished of our chiefs of the United States Supreme Court:

As regards the question whether a contempt has or has not been committed, it does not depend upon the intent of the party, but upon the act which he has done.

That is, the intention must be accomplished.

The Attorney-General utterly ignores the well-established principle of the law that the obstruction of the processes of justice must be shown by "clear, convincing evidence."

There was no such testimony. All the evidence on the point was directly to the contrary. By my express order no juror was approached or influenced in any way, and jurors testified that they did not know that they were being observed

Can anyone dispute that our courts and their officers should be guided by the principles of the law and the evidence, rather than by guesses and inferences?

A Toll-Bridge Victim.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

THANKS for your editorial the other day on "The Battle of De Valls Bluff." I hope you will keep up the good fight on toll bridges. This holdup was brought home to me several Sundays ago on a drive of not more than 200 miles from St. Louis, when tolls for two of us in the old Model T figured up as follows:

St. Charles Bridge	$ .40
Louisiana Bridge	.70
Illinois River Ferry	.50
Bridges at Alton	.35
Total	$1.95

I include the ferry between Pittsfield and Winchester, Ill., because a bridge is being built there and it will be a toll proposition too. My outlay for tolls and for gasoline were about equal on that trip. One jaunt to those towns was enough, and I'll plan my route next time to avoid the toll bridges.

Another Tune for Your Bagpipe.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

WITH reference to your editorial, "England Stakes All On a Scot," it may be of interest to add that Premier MacDonald is not the first Scot sent by Great Britain on an important assignment to this country. The indomitable Earl Balfour headed the British mission to America in 1917, soon after we entered the war, and did much to bring about active participation on the Western front. More than that, he returned in 1921 as head of the British delegation to the Washington conference and became, after Secretary Hughes, its dominant figure. Americans were greatly impressed by Balfour's friendly spirit in seconding the plans for limitation, which involved the scrapping of capital ships. He was MacDonald's forerunner in the great work of Anglo-American conciliation. Britain is fortunate in having Scots to send with the olive branch to its sister nation.

Interest Rates on Savings Deposits.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

A LETTER in your column the other evening calls attention to the glaring inconsistency of bankers at this time. Let a borrower walk into a bank and he pays from 6 to 8 per cent, depending on the character of the loan. Let a savings depositor want to leave his funds and he is offered 3 to 4 per cent.

Savings interest in St. Louis has not been increased for over 10 years. Yet in New York City, a savings depositor receives from the strongest savings banks in the United States 4½ per cent on any sum deposited, with the privilege of receiving interest up to the date of withdrawal. The 30-day notification privilege is invoked only in times of extreme financial stress.

If New York savings banks can pay 4½ per cent, why cannot St. Louis banks do the same? Why should stockholders' dollars be worth more than depositors' dollars—and where would the former be, if it were not—as a matter of fact—for the latter?

R. A. WARREN.

BUYER AND SELLER.

Following a decision by the United States Court of Appeals at Philadelphia that to buy liquor is not an offense under either the eighteenth amendment or the Volstead act, Senator Sheppard of Texas, sponsor of the eighteenth amendment, has introduced an amendment to the Volstead act which would make buyer and seller equally guilty.

Such an amendment would be the acid test of prohibition. If the buyer took the chance taken by the seller the bootlegger would go out of business. That would be to make the same effort to enforce prohibition that was made to enforce the fugitive slave laws. When the North refused to catch and deliver to their owners runaway slaves, the entire machinery of the United States, from courts to army, was brought into operation to force compliance with the law. United States Marshals were liable to $1000 fine, plus the value of the slave, if the runaway was permitted to escape or was forcibly rescued while in their custody. Congress even went so far as to declare that bystanders who refused to assist in the capture of runaway slaves were guilty of treason. Obstruction, rescue or concealment was punishable by six months' imprisonment and $2000 damages and fine. All this suppression of the popular will resulted at last in the Civil War.

More than 50 years before that a similar effort was made to enforce the alien and sedition acts. These acts were passed at a time when the United States was incensed against France for her aggression on American commerce. They were aimed at French sympathizers, who were exposed to charges of treason and deportation without trial. They also struck at the free press in that they forbade any printed defense of France in the United States. There were six prosecutions under the latter provision, and popular resentment rose to such a pitch that the Federalist party, which had espoused the alien and sedition acts, was swept out of existence. The alien and sedition acts came dangerously near to giving Federal Judges power to make any opposition to the ruling party a felony, and they are regarded to this day as one of the most drastic efforts ever made by Congress to destroy the liberties of the people.

It would be a serious matter for Congress to pass such an amendment to the Volstead act as Senator Sheppard proposes. While it probably would destroy the underground liquor business it would arouse popular resentment to a pitch that would make the whole status of prohibition extremely precarious. Its status now is none too good. Five states of the Union are refusing to acquiesce in prohibition. They have no enforcement laws of their own and are saying to the United States that if it wants prohibition in their borders it will have to send its own men to enforce it. To make the buyer and seller equally guilty would be to put other states in the category of these five. The prohibition law is already a terrible instrument of vengeance; it would become an infinitely greater instrument of vengeance under such an amendment. The charge that one has bought liquor is a much more inviting means to blackmail or to punish one's enemies than the charge that one has sold liquor. The number of buyers is infinitely greater than the number of sellers. Moreover, the buyers include members of Congress, the judiciary and persons in the most influential walks of life. To bring them down to the level of the bootlegger and the moonshiner would be as drastic a measure as the slave laws or the alien and sedition acts. The Volstead act is, as Gen. Smedley Butler and many others have said, a class law. Is Congress sufficiently courageous to make good its own gesture and thus make sinners of us all? We doubt it.

Perhaps to do so would be the quickest way out of an intolerable situation. It proved so with the fugitive slave laws, and it would no doubt prove so with prohibition. The country has never been sincere in this sumptuary law The best way to prove its insincerity would be to make prohibition absolute.

SINCLAIR'S LETTER.

We print on this page a letter from Harry F. Sinclair, now serving a jail sentence in Washington for contempt of court as a result of his jury-shadowing activities. If ever a man had his day in court it is Sinclair. His quibble on the legal aspects of the case comes rather late in the day, since the courts, including the Supreme Court of the United States, have given their decision. Beaten at every point, Sinclair is now engaged in a publicity campaign in an effort to establish a difficult thesis. It is that a rich man may innocently hire an army of detectives to shadow a jury which is sitting in judgment upon him. If Sinclair can convince the public that that is a harmless procedure he becomes automatically the greatest pleader since Demosthenes.

LOUISVILLE IS DISILLUSIONED.

Louisville thought she could give her street railway system a franchise and still fix the fare, but she knows better now. When she granted a 20-year franchise in 1926 she deprived herself of all control over the fare. The consequence is that she has just had an increase in fare from 7 to 10 cents. Her experience is like that of Kansas City and every other community that has made the mistake of believing that a franchise, either in its own name or in the guise of a contract ordinance, or a service at cost ordinance, is anything but a vested right in the exercise of which the owners operate the business over the heads of the cities themselves.

The Post-Dispatch sympathizes with Louisville, as it sympathizes with Kansas City. It is sorry to see American cities so gullible, to say nothing of them being so unlearned in the law as not to know how to protect themselves. Both cities could have enjoyed home rule in the matter had the municipal officials in Louisville and Kansas City been capable of the distinction between the right and the wrong way to do it. They do it the right way up in Detroit. In Detroit the city issues permits to the utilities to do business pending good behavior. The city agrees with the utilities as to the rates, and the utilities are not able to go either to the State or to the courts to upset their agreements with the city. The consequence is that utility rates in Detroit are low. The street car lines, which were for years exploited by utility pirates, have passed into the control of the city itself. The car fare is 6 cents.

The wrong way to do it is to give the utilities franchises, or the equivalents of franchises, as Kansas City and Louisville have done. This relieves the city of anything further to say, the courts see that the companies get a fair earning upon exorbitant valuations under the mandate of the U. S. Supreme Court, and the municipal authorities sit around helpless.

The Post-Dispatch hopes to see St. Louis taken out of this municipal boob class, a class into which too many cities have fallen.

"MINDS ACROSS THE SEA."

Under the caption, "Minds Across the Sea," the Sunday Post-Dispatch printed an article by Wickham Steed, foreign editor of the London Times, which reveals an exceptional understanding of the American people and the American Government. One may doubt if there is another Englishman, or, indeed, another man of any foreign nationality who knows American psychology and the way our Government functions as Mr. Steed does.

In the matter of practical politics Mr. Steed makes an important point. The President of the United States, despite his immense executive powers, has less authority in the field of foreign relations than has a British Prime Minister with a clear party majority in the Commons. Europe does not appreciate the significance of our constitutional provision that requires the "advice and consent" of the Senate to make a treaty effective. That is the rock upon which numerous essays in international policy have foundered. Official England, and particularly the Baldwin Ministry, Mr. Steed impatiently asserts, never realized that in effectuating international agreements an American President frequently needs help—the moral assistance of other Governments. He drives home that truth with citations and historical data. He supports his charge of ineptitude and incapacity against the Baldwin Ministry with similar proof.

Getting down to the issue of the hour, he declares that "the reduction of naval armaments is the most serious business we have had on hand since the end of the great war." The situation is described as critical and will not brook delay. It must be corrected and Great Britain must do its part. One of the things Great Britain must do is to define the purpose of sea power. "We have never faced the 'Freedom of the Seas' frankly," he asserts, "or sought to deal with it in such a way that it could cease to be a menace to Anglo-American concord." It must be faced now, for the reason that "the peace of the world depends upon a positive understanding between Great Britain and the United States."

It is an astounding statement, coming from an Englishman of Mr. Steed's experience, long professional environment and presumed point of view. It is inspired manifestly by an extraordinarily comprehensive and acute knowledge of the world. It prescribes the same kind of pragmatic statesmanship which Dr. Stresemann applied so successfully to the seemingly hopeless affairs of Germany. The presence of Prime Minister MacDonald may be taken as evidence that this counsel is to be followed—that it is already at work.

A ST. LOUISAN WAXES IMAGINATIVE.

A certain St. Louisan who likes to look into the future has some ideas for the block on which the present Federal building is situated. Learning that the New York Central is about to spend a large sum of money to improve its service between New York and St. Louis, he suggests that it acquire the property and build a railroad passenger station there. Since the block is not large enough for trackage purposes, he thinks adjacent property might be undermined for track space, as was done by the Pennsylvania Railroad when it built its station in New York City. On the block could be erected a skyscraper containing the terminal and a hotel or office building, or both.

But the most interesting part of his plan is the specification that the building be provided with a flat roof, suitable for airplane landings. "It may seem a bit visionary," he says, "but the fact of the matter is I now predict that it is just a matter of time when airplanes will not require a large landing or leaving field but will rise in the air from a very small surface." It is difficult to see how the New York Central can resist this suggestion, but if it fails to take advantage of it there is one imaginative St. Louisan who can never be blamed for the oversight.

As for running electrified passenger trains underground to the heart of St. Louis, there are many things less feasible and desirable; but, as the helicopter or autogyro age is yet in the offing, we reserve comment on the idea that the roof of a building at Eighth and Olive be used as a landing field. At first blush, the presence of hordes of planes circling that roof awaiting a chance to land is a little dismaying from the point of view of a man directly below on the street.

THE BIG PARADE.

The Veiled Prophet is to be congratulated on the theme of the street pageant which his entourage will present tonight. From the inaugural "Festival of Ceres" in 1878 to "Through the Centuries" of 50 years later there never has been, to our way of thinking, a parade to equal in educational value to the city the subject of the floats this year, namely, the story of St. Louis.

Back in '80 we had the "Four Seasons" and the next year "Insect Life." Shakspeare used the wheeled stages in '84 and again in 1916 Three times it was "Fairyland," not counting "Arabian Nights" of '85, "Children's Lore" of '88, or "Myths and Legends" during the war. We have had "Dolls of the Nations," the "Alphabet," "Popular Authors" (of the Gay Nineties), and "Mystic Societies." Down the half century floats have depicted Peter Pan, the Deluge, St. Valentine's Day, Marco Polo, the Order of the White Elephant, Robin Hood, the Invention of Gunpowder, the Hot Dog Man and Cleopatra. Recently there was nothing but comic strip characters—Aunt Eppie Hogg, Krazy Kat, Mutt and Jeff, et al.

The alarm clock, sheik, flapper and golfer of two years ago showed plainly his mysterious majesty was scratching gravel. It was cause for worry. Hence the gratification at knowing the theme this year is highly worth while. Beginning with the Mound Builders, the parade will carry the crowd through the entire story of St. Louis, picturing in the end even the city's vision of the future—the Memorial Plaza. The Early Explorers, Laclede and Chouteau, the Louisiana Purchase, Lewis and Clark, the Fur Traders, the 49-ers, the "Robert E. Lee," and Grant are among the float subjects. Wonder why a parade hasn't been devoted to St. Louis before? Surely Shaw's Garden means more to us than the Order of the Thistle (1925). Anybody prefers Eads Bridge to Lapis Lazuli (1924).

Our Submerged Secretary of State

Hoover Cabinet turning out to be one-man organization and President is the man, says political writer; finds this particularly true in case of Stimson, who is a good follower when he thinks he has a good leader; won't make a good record, and hasn't a chance to make a bad one; mere messenger in parleys with Britain.

T. R. B. in the New Republic.

ONE of the few forecasts concerning the Hoover Cabinet that has turned out even measurably true was that it would be to a large extent a one-man Cabinet and that he would be the man. On practically everything else the astute and erudite "corps of correspondents" was close to 100 per cent wrong. They unanimously agreed upon the unfortunate and still slightly embittered Donovan for Secretary of War. They were 80 miles away from guessing the Attorney-General. They never had heard of Robert Lamont. The name of the Secretary of the Navy was tipped off by a Boston sports writer. The others were almost a complete surprise.

The only two things the prophets, either journalistic or political, had right were the retention of the aged Mr. Mellon, which Mr. Hoover purposely let be understood in advance, and the above-mentioned fact that he would dominate his selections, this latter being of such obviousness it could not be missed. Everybody knew that he would and it is no news, therefore, to say that he does. It is interesting, however, to point out that the member of the Cabinet whom he most completely blankets is the Hon. Henry L. Stimson, picked for Secretary of State on the recommendation of those two noble pillars of the party, the Hon. Mr. Hughes and the Hon. Mr. Root, and described as a "strong and dominant" personality.

Perhaps he was, in New York and in the Philippines, but not in Washington—at least not now. Here in Washington, despite the consciousness and painstaking efforts of the President not to give the appearance of being wholly submerged, that is fast becoming Mr. Stimson's recognized condition He is not going to be a great Secretary of State. For one reason, because he is not going to have a chance—but there are other reasons. For instance, it is generally recognized that two rather important people in Washington know considerably more about his job than he does. One happens to be his chief in the White House, Mr. Hoover; the other his Undersecretary in the State Department, Mr. Cotton. Between them, it is perfectly clear that "Our Harry," as some of his New York friends jeeringly refer to him, is not, as has been said, going to make a particularly good record for himself as director of our foreign affairs. On the other hand, he is certainly not going to make a bad one. They will not let him.

It is beginning to be recognized by the closer observers that Mr. Stimson has by no means the force he was supposed to have and is not really "carrying the ball" in the department. Further it is recalled that he was not exactly a heavyweight in the Roosevelt Cabinet, in which he served for a time. He is correct and concise, with a fine orderly mind and, of course, unblemished character. He has, too, in addition to most of the Coolidgean virtues, that of courage.

It is not meant to suggest here that he is a weak man, but that he is not the type in his line. He is a natural follower when he thinks he has a good leader. Far too intelligent to follow a poor one and much too righteous to follow a bad one, when he finds one whom he can respect both for ability and character he gladly "goes along." That is what he is doing now and that is why Mr. Hoover finds him an exceedingly satisfactory Secretary of State, one in whom he has perfect confidence and who can carry out his ideas with gratifying competency and understanding.

His friends say that Mr Stimson sees "eye to eye" with Mr. Hoover on every foreign problem. It is a safe bet that he will continue to do so, but he is also going to stay contentedly submerged at the same time. There is no better illustration of his submersion than the part he is playing in the naval negotiations with Great Britain. It is completely a minor and a messenger part—and so recognized. The man who is doing the negotiating for the Government is the man in the White House, which is perhaps about the way it should be—though it would not be, were Mr. Stimson's sponsor, Mr. Hughes, in his position.

The Little Entente

From the Manchester Guardian.

CZECHO-SLOVAKIA, Jugo-Slavia and Rumania are allied to one another by secret military agreements. They are part of the system of alliances formed under French leadership to perpetuate the armed preponderance of the victorious over the vanquished continental powers. Apparently the secret agreements were brought up to date or renewed at the Bucharest conference in May. According to the Czeske Slovo, a sometimes inspired paper, they convert the three powers into one military unit. This unit—the "Little Entente"—with its total of 40,000,000 inhabitants, is, in the opinion of Czeske Slovo, the equivalent of a great power.

For the time being the "Little Entente" is particularly suspicious of Hungary. That the Hungarians have a just grievance is beyond any doubt. Millions of their fellow-countrymen are under alien rule. That they shall remain so is one of the reasons for the existence of the "Little Entente." The Hungarians were completely isolated at one time, but by a clever foreign policy they have, without abandoning their claim to a revision of the peace treaty, come to play a considerable part in continental diplomacy. They have found powerful allies in the Italians. Indeed, a kind of counter-entente is emerging under Italian leadership.

These things do not make for disarmament in Europe. On the contrary, they are in a small way what the "balance of power" used to be in a big way. The "Little Entente" also exists to keep Germany in a state of military impotence and also to prevent the Austro-German union.

To expect the "Little Entente" to dissolve and the powers that make it up to disarm would be Utopian.

"Of Making Many Books"

JOHN G. NEIHARDT

Plain but Hardly Ordinary

UP TO NOW. By Alfred E. Smith. (Viking Press.)

"A PLAIN story of a plain ordinary man who received during his lifetime, to the fullest possible extent, the benefit of the free institutions of his country."

Thus Alfred Emanuel Smith sums up on the last page of his autobiography what he has intended the book to be. That statement is as full and concise a review of the volume as could be written, although an outside commentator, not governed by the modesty of an autobiographer, would scarcely refer to the Democratic Presidential nominee of 1928 as an "ordinary man." The story is plain in both the substance and the style. The writing is direct and clear, without ambiguities or circumlocutions. Those who heard Mr. Smith's short sentences and straightforward phrasing over the radio last fall will recognize the style at once, and will know that there is autobiography without a suspicion of the ghost writer's inky aura hovering over it.

The story of Mr. Smith's career is a familiar one, having been told and retold in newspapers and magazines before and through the campaign. Related now in the first person, it takes on new interest, from its very beginning in the East Side house under the tower of Brooklyn Bridge. Smith's boyhood days are pleasant memories to him, and under the spell of recollection he gives a full-flavored picture of New York in the 80s and 90s, when everyone knew his neighbors and cows grazed where 15-story apartment buildings now stand.

In this gregarious New York, it was only natural that a youth with an affable nature and a lively interest in what was going on should "grow up with politics," as Mr. Smith expresses it. He became a political worker before he was old enough to vote, and received his first appointment, as process server, when he was 22. His school days were brief, and in later life he once described himself as an alumnus of "F. F. M." — Fulton Fish Market. All those experiences as clerk, amateur actor, jury investigator and political worker, contributed to the education of the man who was to distinguish himself in four terms as Governor of New York State.

Through his account of the days as Assemblyman, Sheriff, Aldermanic President and Governor, runs the story of Mr. Smith's wife and children, for first of all he was always a family man. For instance, there was his appointment as member of the State Commission to the San Francisco Fair, surely an attractive plum, with its pleasant trip at public expense. But Smith did not go. "My children were growing and I hesitated to leave them for so long a time," he writes. "Instead, I spent the summer with the family in a little cottage at Far Rockaway."

The man's intense interest in his fellow man is reflected in the record of social legislation accomplished in his years at Albany. These included the housing bill, the increase in appropriations for rural schools, the repeal of motion picture censorship, the budget reform and marked successes in the long fight over control of public utilities. All Gov. Smith's accomplishments are narrated without egotism, but with a manifest pride which is quite understandable and not in the least offensive.

Most of the earlier chapters of "Up to Now" are little changed from their text when the biography was published as a serial in the Saturday Evening Post. There is much additional material, however, when the narrative comes down to the campaign and issues of 1928, and it is here that most of the current interest will be centered, for those colorful pre-election days are still fresh in the mind of everyone.

The passage of almost a year does not minimize the importance of the issues to the "Happy Warrior," as Gov. Roosevelt dubbed him, after Wordsworth. He pays his compliments to the Republican National Committee with the same vigor that distinguished his campaign. The principle controversy was pro-Smith versus anti-Smith, he says, for little was said about Mr. Hoover. He deplores the injection of the religious issue, and lays that at the doors of the Republican party, which he also blames for a vast deal of false propaganda about his own personal habits as to liquor. Yet there are no sore spots, for, he writes, "While I naturally would have liked to be elected President, I can truthfully say that I did not take the result, even considering the kind of a campaign, with bitter disappointment."

Fifteen million voters admired the career and the principles of the man enough to want him in the White House. His story is a fine account of how that man's record was built, and one need not consider the final chapters as anti-climax. Regardless of the reader's political sentiments, if any, it is a story well worth the reading.

FERD GOTTLIEB.

THE RIDDLE OF SEX. By Joseph Tenenbaum, M. D. (Macaulay.)

No publisher's list nowadays appears complete without at least one book dealing with the vexed question of sex. Given a volume or two of Havelock Ellis, Kraft-Ebing, Freud and Westermarck, and access to a standard medical library, any competent journalist can turn out such a book on two weeks assignment. The present volume is a survey of the medical and social aspects of sex, love and marriage. Covering so wide a field in a book of 350 pages precluded an exhaustive treatment of any of the special problems involved, and the author has shown excellent judgment in the selection of outstanding facts necessary to so comprehensive a survey. His book is a sane summarization of the accepted theories of sexual life in both normal and abnormal manifestations.

Reproduction of Edison's Lamp.

NEW YORK, Oct. 8.—A large scale reproduction of the first incandescent lamp, invented by Thomas A. Edison, was lighted yesterday with formal ceremony at the opening of the National Electrical Exposition here. At a signal from Vice President Curtis, transmitted over special wires from Washington, Charles Edison, son of the inventor, turned on the current. An address by Mayor James J. Walker followed.

EDISON JUBILEE SET IN SCENES OF PAST

President Hoover to Attend Dearborn Affair Memorializing Inventor's Achievements.

By the Associated Press.

DEARBORN, Mich., Oct. 8.—Scenes that tell the past and foretell the future will greet President Hoover when he comes to this city Oct. 21 to participate in the ceremony memorializing the achievements of Thomas A. Edison.

The historical village that Henry Ford is creating on a 120-acre site already has assumed shape, and many of the buildings purchased in various parts of the country to form the "community of yesterday" have been restored to their original condition and placed on foundations.

Just across the road, to furnish a sharp contrast, is the huge Ford airport, with its large hangars and the tall mooring mast for dirigibles. Completing the modern note are the Ford engineering laboratories and the other buildings of the automobile plant, "just around the corner" from the scenes of an almost forgotten past.

As the day is to honor mainly Thomas A. Edison, no little interest will center in the actual laboratories and offices used by Edison in Menlo Park, N. J., and in Fort Myers, Fla., which Ford has brought to Dearborn and reconstructed in the most minute detail.

It is here that Edison will reproduce his original experiment that brought the incandescent lamp to the world.

There will be interest, too, in the Edison machine shops and perhaps less serious, but none the less keen interest in the small railway station where legend has it Edison once was thrown off a train near Port Huron by an irate conductor after the future inventor had set fire to an empty baggage car in the course of some experiments with phosphorous.

The visit to the Ford home, "Fairlane," will take President Hoover and Edison to another interesting section of the vast Ford estate. "Fairlane" skirts a trunk line highway, and tall trees permit a view from the road of only the top of the motor magnate's home.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Oct. 8.

GLOOM thickens among musicians attached to movie theater orchestras. Their number is thinning and while the optimists are crying: "Everything is going to be all right, yes sir!" the majority believe it is whistling in the dark.

Coupled with this dilemma there is a complete abandonment of orchestras at dramas and comedies. Until a year ago there was at least a four-piece orchestra to play while the audience was seated and at intermission. Today the orchestra pits, filled with seats, are in eloquent silence.

People, it seems, would rather talk before the curtain goes up. Most big talkie houses have no orchestras. The Winter Garden used to employ around 75 musicians the year around. Now it has none.

New York has always been the orchestral capital. No musician could go long without a job, what with the movies, the theaters, the cabarets, the night clubs, road houses and symphony orchestras. Cabarets have cut down the size of orchestras, for dancing, too, is on the wane.

The big skillet-slapping organizations with their rhythmic punctilio, have shrunk to a muted quartette, and in two of the smartest new hotel dining rooms the orchestras are composed of a piano, violin and 'cello. The number of musicians thrown out of work recently reaches thousands. And more are being let out daily.

Radio work has offered an outlet for a few, but the radio, generally speaking, has aided in adding to the jobless army.

The big shots—Paul Whiteman, etc.—are not troubled, what with the talkies keeping top-notchers busy, but many excellent musicians are turning to other work. Hope is held out that synchronized sound is a fad and that the revolving cycle will again demand musicians in the flesh. But it is only a hope. Nobody is certain.

A SEDATE gentleman adjusting his spectacles in a cafe today observed: "My glasses look as though I had dropped them in oatmeal." And that's an entry for the perfect description sweepstakes.

AMONG novel stage names noticed recently are Oscar Op and Suzanne Whatt. But the merriest of all is a chorine listed as Gladys Zell.

ONE of the interesting churches in New York is the Eglise de Notre Dames, perched on a high driveway near West 110th street. It is attended chiefly by French Catholics, and the altar was hewn out of an original stone in a Manhattan cliff.

A WHIPPER-SNAPPER of 18 confesses swiping one of the canes with a searchlight handle out of a haberdashery because he wanted to look like a man about town. In adolescent days when some of us ached to be looked upon as the town roue, a diamond ring looped about a four-in-hand tie seemed to symbolize the farthest north in worldliness.

IT is reliably reported a secret agreement exists among theater owners on the Rialto to refuse to rent theaters to anyone trying to produce at popular prices, no matter how worthy the effort. That is why the extraordinarily talented Eva Le Gallienne had to rent an outmoded, tumbledown theater on Fourteenth street to exploit her Utopian idea and popular priced experimentation. This may turn out to be an added boomerang for a wobbling institution. Miss Le Gallienne packs them in and her customers are largely Social Registerites.

THE favorite dishes of visiting yokels in Broadway restaurants are oysters on the half shell and planked steaks. But we bet a fluted cookie some of the boys now and then order "an ear of sweet corn."

AD for a new cafe: "It is perfumized with a scent from Araby. Hidden birds carol roundelays while in the soft lit room is here and there the thin blue flare of crepes suzette."

Do you feel faint or shall we go on?

PUBLIC MEETINGS AND ENTERTAINMENTS

The Snider Society of Universal Culture will hold its first meeting of the season Saturday at 3 p. m. at Cabanne Branch Library, Union boulevard and Cabanne avenue. This and ensuing meetings will include discussions of the works of the late Dr. Denton J. Snider. Speakers will include William F. Woerner, president of the society since its organization five years ago; Richard Spamer, Oliver Grace and Mrs. T. E. Ferguson.

The second public school garden exhibit will be held Thursday, Friday and Saturday at Cupples School, 4908 Cote Brilliante avenue. Exhibits will include specimens from 15 school gardens, a community garden and about 500 backyard gardens.

Dr. Isaac Lippincott, professor of economics at Washington University, will lead the discussion at the first meeting of the Round Table Supper Club at the Downtown Y. M. C. A. tonight at 6 o'clock. The subject is: "Can we be happy though poor?" Other topics relating to the economic responsibilities of young men will be discussed at future meetings.

The Spanish Society of St. Louis will observe Columbus day, Saturday, with an entertainment consisting of two Spanish plays, vaudeville, and a dance, in SS. Mary and Joseph Hall, Kansas and Minnesota avenues.

Joseph E. Dunipace of Toledo, O., who has spent several years in archeological excavation in Mesopotamia, will give an illustrated lecture on "Mesopotamia" Friday night at 8:15 o'clock in the Parish House of St. Peter's Episcopal Church, 224 North Spring avenue.

MRS. BAINBRIDGE COLBY GETS DIVORCE AT RENO

Author Wins Decree From Former Secretary of State; Separated Six Years Ago.

By the Associated Press.

RENO, Nev., Oct. 8.—Mrs. Nathalie Sedgewick Colby, author, obtained a divorce here yesterday from Banbridge Colby, Secretary of State in the Wilson Cabinet.

A property settlement was made between the pair, but it was not made a part of the court record.

Mrs. Colby said they were married at Stockbridge, Mass., June 20, 1901, and had three children. In March, 1923, Mrs. Colby testified, her husband deserted her. He came back for four days in 1924, she said.

Colby was represented by counsel, but no testimony was offered in his behalf.

When Mrs. Colby filed her suit last week she said she would have something to tell the newspapermen. Her statement was:

"Mr. Colby is great in history as a great Secretary of State. There is nothing left for me to say."

11TH GAME OF CHESS MATCH

Players Adjourn After 40 Moves; to Continue Today.

By the Associated Press.

HEIDELBEURG, Germany, Oct. 8.—Dr. Alexander Alekhine of Paris, and E. D. Bogoljubow of Triberg, in the eleventh game of their world chess championship match, adjourned after 40 moves yesterday.

Bogoljubow, whose king is in the middle of the board, is two pawns ahead, while Dr. Alekhine has excellent attacking possibilities. The opening was a queen's gambit declined, Dr. Alekhine having the white pieces.

SOCIAL ACTIVITIES

MISS MARIAN THOMPSON, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Duke Thompson, 5041 Lindell boulevard, will make her debut at a tea to be given by her mother the afternoon of Nov. 5 from 4 to 6 o'clock at their home. Miss Thompson will serve as a maid of honor at the Veiled Prophet ball tomorrow night.

Mr. and Mrs. Thompson's elder daughter, Miss Mabel Green Thompson, who took part in the wedding of Miss Eleanor Lee Flagg and William Moffatt Bramwell last Saturday in Maramoneck, N. Y., will spend a few days in New York City before returning to St. Louis. While there she will be the guest of Mrs. Charles Howard McCain, formerly Miss Jane McElroy of St. Louis.

St. Louis is host to numerous out-of-town guests who have been invited to the Veiled Prophet ball and its attendant festivities, and parties for them are filling the social calendar. Mrs. Henry Fenimore Cooper of New York and her sister, Miss Evelyn Guy, formerly of 10 Portland place, who have been here several days as the guests of Miss Katherine Perkins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert T. Perkins, 6365 Ellenwood avenue, will be the guests of honor today at a luncheon to be given by Mrs. Edward Gillette Hotchkiss, 4392 Maryland avenue, at the Deer Creek Club. Tomorrow Mrs. Russell Gardner, 4515 Pershing avenue, will give a similar affair at her home for the visitors.

Sunday night Mrs. Harold Bixby entertained for the visitors and her sister, Mrs. Audenried Whittemore of Bronxville, N. Y., who is her guest.

Mrs Theron Catlin of Brentmoor gave a luncheon a few days ago and last night Mrs. Harrison Hoblitzelle a dinner for the visitors.

Following the ball tomorrow night Miss Perkins and her parents will give a dinner for Mrs. Cooper and Miss Guy at the queen's supper at Hotel Jefferson. Mrs. Cooper will depart Thursday for her home and Miss Guy will remain until Sunday, when she will depart for Vancouver to sail Oct. 17 for a trip around the world. She will be accompanied by Miss Elizabeth Waller and Miss Virginia Gordon of St. Louis and Miss Gertrude Clift of Wilkesboro, Pa.

Dr. and Mrs. Harvey G. Mudd, 47 Vandeventer place, will entertain Mrs. Mudd's nieces, Miss Theodosia and Miss Eleanor Clark of Evanston, Ill., who will arrive tomorrow to remain a week.

Another autumn visitor is Mrs. George Hill Goddard Jr., of Hollywood, Cal., the guest of Mr. Goddard Sr., 4949 West Pine boulevard. She is being entertained informally.

A large house party for the Veiled Prophet gaieties is being given by Mr. and Mrs. J. Frederick Schlafly, 40 Washington terrace; Mr. and Mrs. Duncan I. Meier, 6457 Cecil avenue; Dr. and Mrs. Roy Calvin Dobson, 84 Arundel place, and Mrs. B. B. Culver, 21 Kingsbury place, who are entertaining a group of friends from Cincinnati. Mr. and Mrs. Schlafly have as their guests Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Thompson; Mr. and Mrs. Cecil H. Gamble are visiting Mrs. Culver; Mr. and Mrs. Roger H. Rogan are the guests of Dr. and Mrs. Dobson, and Mrs. Smith Hickenlooper is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Meier. The visitors arrived this morning, and after a breakfast at the Meier home, they will be at the Dodson home for luncheon. Following the parade tonight they will be the dinner guests of Mrs. Culver.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry M. Meier of Pasadena, Cal., who are in St. Louis for a few days on their way from their summer home in Harbor Point, Mich., to Pasadena, will give a luncheon tomorrow for the group, and Thursday Mr. and Mrs. Charles White Scudder, 75 Vandeventer place, will have a luncheon at the St. Louis Country Club. Thursday night Mr. and Mrs. Tom Murphy will give a dinner at their new home in Carrswold, and later the visitors will repart for home.

Miss Natalie Moffitt, daughter of Mrs. Nathaniel L. Moffitt, 43 Kingsbury place, who with her mother and her sister, Miss Josephine Moffitt, has been in Europe for several months has returned to St. Louis, and will make plans for her debut early next month. Mrs. Moffitt, who remained abroad with Miss Josephine, is expected home next week. Miss Natalie Moffitt was graduated from Smith College in June and sailed immediately for Europe. She will be a maid of honor at the Veiled Prophet ball tomorrow evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Festus J. Wade Jr. have taken possession of their new home at 5 Windermere place. Mrs. Wade, with her small son and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank P. Crunden, 44[illegible]6 Westminster place, recently returned from Fish Creek, Wis., where they spent the summer at their cottage.

The wedding of Miss Emily Bettman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Irvin Bettman, 6252 Waterman avenue, and Louis S. Rothschild, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Rothschild of Kansas City, Mo., took place at Westwood Country Club last night at 8:30 o'clock. It was one of the most elaborate ceremonies in St. Louis in recent years. The service was read by Rabbi Isserman of Temple Israel in the presence of about 275 guests.

Decorations gave the main lounge of the club the appearance of a Gothic chapel. The walls were garlanded with smilax and the pillars marked by tall standards of Easter lilies. Three cathedral windows adorned with sprays of lilies formed a background for the bridal party.

A reception with dancing and dinner followed the ceremony. The bridal table was banked with white chrysanthemums and lighted by ivory tapers in modernistic silver holders, and the other tables were decorated with chrysanthemums in autumn shades and lighted by tapers in gold holders. A profusion of dahlias adorned the other rooms of the club.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a lovely gown fashioned in the medieval manner of seashell antique panne velvet with a long court train of the velvet. A short tulle veil, worn by her mother at her wedding, fell from a cap of tulle banded in pearls over a second veil of tulle. She carried calla lilies. She was attended by Mrs. David Mayer of Chicago as matron of honor and Miss Ruth Rothschild as maid of honor. They wore Patou gowns, Mrs. Mayer's of silver lace and Miss Rothschild's of gold lace, both made with tight bodices and pannier skirts terminating in short trains. The matron and maid of honor carried dahlias harmonizing with their gowns. Mrs. Bettman wore a Callot gown of ashes of roses and gold lame, the long skirt bordered in gold lace. She wore a pendant of pearls and her flowers were orchids. Mrs. Rothschild wore a gown of oyster-shell pink satin and a shoulder bouquet of orchids. The bride's grandmother, Mrs. Emil Pollack of Cincinnati, wore a gown of black lace and carried orchids and lilies of the valley.

Al Rothschild of Kansas City was best man for his cousin; Irvin Bettman Jr., and Louis Bettman, brothers of the bride, and David Mayer of Chicago, served as groomsmen. Among the out of town guests were the bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Bettman of Kansas City and the bride's grandmother, Mrs. Pollack.

Mr. Rothschild and his bride will make their home in St. Louis.

FARIS TO RULE ON RELIGIOUS ISSUE IN KERENS LITIGATION

To Plea $1,900,000 Claimant Hasn't Been Good Catholic, He Says, "This Is No Church Court."

Federal Judge Faris will give a decision, probably within a few weeks, on the claim of Vincent Kerens to full possession of his $1,900,000 share of the estate of his father, Richard C. Kerens, once Ambassador to Austria-Hungary.

The chief issue raised by Kerens' two sisters, in their objection to the payment of his share to him, is based on the law of the Roman Catholic Church against remarriage after divorce. Judge Faris, in discussing the point yesterday afternoon with counsel for the sisters and for the St. Louis Union Trust Co., trustee of the estate, showed that he did not think the objection sound. However, he reserved his formal ruling until briefs shall be submitted. Vincent Kerens, a former St. Louisan, now lives in Dallas, Tex.

The elder Kerens, who died in 1917, left his daughters their shares of the estate without restriction. As to Vincent, his will provided that his share should be held in trust until the trust company, as trustee, should find that Vincent had passed "five consecutive years of sobriety and good behavior." If Vincent should never obtain his share, it would revert after his lifetime to the other heirs or their heirs.

Sisters Cite Church Laws.

In July, 1928, the trust company filed suit to obtain a Circuit Court order for payment, stating that it was satisfied with Kerens' fulfillment of the good behavior condition. The sisters, Mrs. Madeline Kenna of New York and London and Mrs. Gladys Colket of Philadelphia, took their objection into Federal Court. They represented that Vincent Kerens' divorce, obtained in Texas in 1924, and his marriage in that State a year later, were not "good behavior" in the view of the Catholic Church, and would not have been approved by the elder Kerens, a loyal Catholic.

When this point was reached in the discussion yesterday, Judge Faris asked: "Do they (the sisters) say anything about the Constitution of the United States?"

"No," replied P. Taylor Bryan, counsel for the trust company. "I think they were afraid to mention the Constitution in the same breath with this mater."

"Well," said the Judge, "you need not trouble yourself with arguing that allegation. The Court will take care of that."

But the lawyers for the sisters, former Judge Fred L. Williams and former Senator X. P. Wilfley, insisted on arguing the point. They said the view and the intent of the elder Kerens, and his conception of the term "good behavior" must be kept in mind, and that the trustee should be bound by these considerations.

Standard of Good Behavior.

Wilfley made an argument in support of the Catholic rule against remarriage after divorce, declaring that it had a salutary effect.

"This is not an ecclesiastical court," said Judge Faris.

"But the right of the testator to dispose of his property as he wishes, and to impose conditions of conduct, has been upheld by the appellate courts," Wilfley said.

"It would have been very easy," Judge Faris replied, "to write that condition into the will."

Teh last remark was taken to indicate Judge Faris' view that, as the elder Kerens did not state in the will that his son must obey church laws, the only standard of "good behavior" that can be applied is the secular one.

Texas Court's View.

Bryan discussed the sisters' charge that Kerens was guilty of "gross bad conduct" in obtaining his divorce by a suit filed in Texas, with service by publication, whereas he knew his wife's place of residence and could have given her personal notice. Bryan said these matters were passed on by a Texas court, when the first Mrs. Kerens went to that State and sued to have the divorce decree set aside, her petition being denied.

Bryan pointed out also that the trust company, in seeking to pay Kerens his share, was not ministering to its own gain, as it would profit by continuance of the trusteeship. He argued that the trustee, under the will, had sole power to decide whether the conditions have been fulfilled. The approval of a court was sought, however, when it became known that the sisters would file an objection.

INFORMER NAMED AS SLAYER BY MAN WHOM HE ACCUSED

LAMAR, Colo., Oct. 8.—A new confession by one of the Lamar bank robbers, naming his chief accuser as killer of the gang was made before the opening of the trial today of George J. Abshier, one of the gang, on a charge of first degree murder.

The confession, made by Howard L. Royston, accused Ralph Fleagle, third member of the gang in custody, as the murderer of three of four men shot by the robbers. Previous confessions signed by Abshier had named Jake Fleagle, brother of Ralph, as the chief killer. Jake Fleagle has not been captured.

A confession signed by Ralph Fleagle led to the capture of Abshier and Royston. In return for information he gave the police promised that Fleagle should escape the death penalty. Both Royston and Abshier denied today they were trying to get revenge upon Fleagle.

Abshier, Royston and Ralph Fleagle have pleaded guilty.

to the grocers of St. Louis

Libby's 100 Foods now enjoy the most comprehensive advertising campaign ever used to promote the sale of any line of canned foods.

We are taking this means of telling you about it because it would be impossible for our salesmen to reach you all before the full concentrated drive begins.

To the national magazines, to the illuminated outdoor bulletins, to striking newspaper advertising—another series begins in this paper next Friday—we now add radio broadcasting.

There are two fascinating Libby programs each week broadcast over a coast-to-coast network. Your customers will hear them over KWK.

Every Tuesday evening at 7:30 there is a musical program, "Around the World with Libby." The quality of these programs—by the Libby Concert Orchestra under Josef Pasternack, with eminent guest artists—is a true reflection of the quality of Libby's 100 foods.

These Tuesday programs acquaint their hearers with the world-wide prestige of Libby's 100 Foods. Each week they present the music of some one country where Libby's Foods are known and enjoyed. As this includes every country in the world, the variety and possibilities of these programs are unlimited.

The Wednesday programs are broadcast at 9:45 A. M., an hour when almost all housewives are at home.

This series is one of special utility to your customers. It is broadcast by Mary Hale Martin, Home Economics Expert for Libby, McNeill & Libby, and it gives many valuable household hints and recipes.

Four months' experience with this morning series has demonstrated that we have found something women really want. Literally thousands of letters have come to Mary Hale Martin's desk from women all over the country, expressing appreciation of her talks and asking for her recipes, which naturally include Libby's Foods.

With the beginning of the newspaper campaign next week many grocers in St. Louis will specially feature Libby's products, through sales or display. Throughout St. Louis grocers are now placing orders for Libby's California Peaches and other California fruits, for Libby's Hawaiian Pineapple, for Libby's Vegetables, Pickles and Condiments, Canned Meats, Alaska Salmon, and Evaporated Milk.

Ready for you now is a large quantity of effective Libby display materials. Phone Libby's St. Louis headquarters, Central 2115, for your supply.

rations—the Detroit Edison (light and power) Co., the Michigan Bell Telephone Co., the Detroit City Gas Co. and the Detroit Motorbus Co. Not one of them has a franchise. The bus company never did have one, and the franchises of the other three expired many years ago.

"Did you ever hear of any of them encountering difficulty in financing itself because it did not have a franchise? Nonsense! The capital of the Detroit Edison has more than doubled since its franchise expired. I don't know how much money is invested in the Detroit telephone system, but I venture to say the amount is several times greater than it was when the franchise expired. The bus company has multiplied its investment tenfold since it started operation. The gas company always lagged behind in improvements until its franchise expired. Since then it has borrowed millions for expanding its system, until now it keeps pace with the growth of the city. All these companies are operating on a day-to-day basis, by the city's permission. None of them has any vested right in the streets. Not one of them experiences the slightest trouble in getting all the money it needs for replacements and additions."

"In the light of your experience, what would you advise the people of St. Louis to do in the matter of granting a franchise to a street railway company?" the reporter asked.

"My advice to any city is to grant no franchise to a public utility corporation, when by so doing the city loses the power to regulate rates and service. No city administration in Detroit would think of entertaining such a proposal—or if it did, it wouldn't be in office long. It is a demonstrated fact that a public utility corporation, if conducted wisely and with proper regard for the public interest, does not need a franchise. If a street railway company cannot finance itself without a franchise, it had better get out and let the city operate the lines. Personally, I do not believe that anything short of municipal ownership and operation will ever give entire satisfaction. Originally I was opposed to public ownership, but practical experience has converted me. Certainly no city should surrender a vested right in its streets to a private corporation. That is indefensible on any ground."

The writer remarked that one of Mayor Lodge's predecessors, Senator Couzens of Michigan, had given the same advice in almost the same language.

"Well, if Jim Couzens told you that, you don't need to go any further," the Mayor rejoined. "If he doesn't understand the street railway problem, nobody in the United States does."

As heretofore told in the Post-Dispatch, the Detroit street railways, in seven years of municipal ownership and operation, have produced more than $18,000,000 in excess of operating costs, on a fare which has never been higher than the present rate of 6 cents, plus a penny for transfers. All this surplus has been devoted to paying off the original purchase price and in making improvements. The extent of the system has practically doubled during that time, and is continually being expanded.

In the last two years 32.53 miles of new track has been laid, and 131 miles of new bus routes have been established. To equip these lines, 235 busses and 100 street cars have been purchased. Moreover, 14 miles of old track has been replaced, 742 cars and busses have been completely rebuilt in the city shops, and 1612 repainted. The Detroit system has 419 miles of track, compared with 348 in St. Louis. 1660 street cars as compared with 1619 in St. Louis, 509 busses as compared with 52 of the St. Louis company, and carried last year 484,000,000 passengers as compared with 393,400,000 carried by the St. Louis system. This year the Detroit system will haul more than 525,000,000.

Nevertheless, the St. Louis company is permitted by the State Public Service Commission to base its fare on a valuation of $63,500,000, as compared with the figure of $55,500,000 which the City of Detroit knows to be the actual value of its far larger property. And so long as the St. Louis company has a franchise, the City of St. Louis will remain powerless to squeeze the water out of the valuation on which St. Louis fares are based.

most squarely in the middle of the project, which runs to the head of the Passes.

To Move Office Force.

The entire office personnel of the commission, 35 or 40 employes, will be moved to Vicksburg. This, however, is a reviewing and not a purchasing office and the economic loss to St. Louis will be negligible.

Col. Spalding, who will bring a similar office to St. Louis as division engineer, has a distinguished war and peace time record. His latest and probably greatest job was the lock and dam system for a nine-foot channel in the Ohio River, which is to be opened formally Oct. 19-25. He will attack the problem of navigation improvement on the upper Mississippi, the Missouri and other tributaries, with fresh and voluminous experience on the greatest similar task so far completed in this country.

CELLARS NEAR UNION STATION FLOODED; WATER MAIN BREAKS

Basement on Eighteenth Between Market and Walnut Affected.

A broken water main resulted in the flooding of basements on the east side of Eighteenth street, between Market and Walnut streets, early today.

Water was discovered bubbling from a manhole at 3:30 a. m. by Charles Caldwell, a porter at Union Station, who notified police. A call was sent in for an emergency crew from the Water Department. The crew was reported busy with a similar call in North St. Louis and did not arrive at Union Station until two hours after the break was discovered.

In the interim water flooded basements from No. 8 to 22 South Eighteenth street, including an O. T. Hodge restaurant and the restaurant of Gus Kastana. Water also entered the janitors' quarters at Union Station.

What kind of bones is your baby building?

does he have a full chest . . well-shaped head . . straight legs?

Authorities on baby care are telling mothers that a plentiful supply of one essential factor must be provided if bones and teeth are to develop strong and sound.

This factor—Vitamin D—should be supplied even though your baby is breast-fed; even though he is plump and rosy and the picture of health.

This needed protection is obtainable from two common sources—sunshine and good cod-liver oil. It is almost impossible, however, to get enough sunshine on the bare skin to be of benefit. Clothing, clouds, fog and smoke prevent it. Even ordinary window glass filters out the ultra-violet rays.

Physicians therefore advise, as the most dependable protection, the daily use of Bottled Sunshine—good cod-liver oil.

In urging cod-liver oil as a way to avoid future trouble, thousands of physicians advise, "Use Squibb's Cod-Liver Oil."

They specify Squibb's because it is very rich in two essential vitamins—Vitamin D, the "sunshine vitamin" which helps to build good bones and teeth, and in Vitamin A which increases resistance to many infections.

Your physician knows that Squibb's Cod-Liver Oil is vitamin-tested and vitamin-protected and that it will help build teeth and bones for your baby. You can get both Squibb's Plain and Mint-flavored Cod-Liver Oil at all good drug stores.

PERPETUAL SUNLIGHT A VISION OF FUTURE

Scientist Suggests Transmitting Heat to Arctic Wastes by Quartz Rods.

A day when the dark places of the earth will be lighted with sunshine transmitted from the light areas and frigid wastes, heated with heat borrowed from the tropics, was envisioned last night by Dr. Alexander Silverman, head of the department of chemistry of the University of Pittsburg, speaking before the St. Louis section of the American Chemical Society at the auditorium of St. Louis University.

Dr. Silverman, who told of the wonders of glass, explained that it might be possible to take the sand from the seashore, cleanse it chemically and use it in making transparent quartz rods capable of conducting light and heat for enormous distances.

"It is not too much to say that these quartz rods may be laid like cables from tropic to frigid zones," Dr. Silverman said, "changing a cold country into a land of warmth. Of course, this is a dream of the future—but it is no more of a dream than other scientific dreams that have been realized during the last 25 years."

By way of illustrating that it is already possible to lead light around a corner, Dr. Silverman took a solid rod of transparent fused quartz, twisted into the shape of an S. He held a flashlight at one end of the S. The beam came out at the other end, as though the bulb of the flashlight had been extended. Quartz rods, he said, are used in X-ray examinations, leading the rays to the spot affected instead of burning a larger area.

Dr. Silverman said that the use of the quartz cables as transmitters of light might create a nightless future. It would be technically possible with such cables to light up China at midnight from St. Louis at noon.

Getting down to devices already proved practical, he said that so much progress had been made in the development of colored lights and lighting systems that the millionaire of the future could sit in his home, press a button and summon any sunlight or moonlight effect he desired.

More wine and champagne glasses have been sold in this country since prohibition, Dr. Silverman said, than ever before. He said that last year 12 drinking glasses were produced for each person in the United States. Then he gave some illustrations to show the size of the glass industry today. For instance:

"We make enough window glass annually to pave a roadway around the world wide enough to accommodate four automobiles abreast, even if the drivers were a little careless.

"A four-pound chunk of glass can be drawn into a thread so fine that it would reach from New York to San Francisco. Two thousand such threads could be put in a one inch cable.

"The annual production of plate glass in this country would make a windshield long enough to encircle the equator."

Dr. Silverman exhibited a piece of non-shatterable glass, one inch in diameter, which he said served as "transparent steel," which withstood machine gun fire at a distance of ten yards not a bullet penetrating it. It is made of three layers. The inner layer is not even marked by the shots.

DR. AUGUSTA A. HELLE, ST. LOUIS PHYSICIAN, DIES

Curiosity about the working of the human body stirred by a slight illness 25 years ago led Dr. Augusta A. Helle, who died yesterday in Barnes Hospital of cancer, to the field of professional medicine. She underwent an operation in July in Grant Hospital, Chicago, and six weeks later moved to Barnes Hospital for recuperation.

Dr. Helle resided with her mother, Mrs. Anna B. Helle, at 3525 Arsenal avenue where she also had her office. She was 53 years old. Born and reared in St. Louis, she studied medicine at the National Medical College and began to practice in 1912. An ever-increasing interest in medical science took her abroad five times for study at the University of Vienna. She was a member of the Missouri and St. Louis Medical societies.

In addition to her mother, she leaves three brothers, William M., Peter P., and Joseph Helle. Funeral services will be at 2 p. m. Thursday from Kriegshauser's funeral parlor, 4228 South Kingshighway boulevard.

442 of the 451 important Hollywood actresses use Lux Toilet Soap

PHYLLIS HAVER, Pathé star, in the striking tiled bathroom built in Hollywood especially for her blonde loveliness. "No star can look lovely unless she has a really velvety skin. Lux Toilet Soap leaves my skin so gently smooth that I have no fear of the high-powered close-up lights."

Phyllis Haver

"Charm depends on lovely skin," say 39 leading Hollywood directors

ANY girl's greatest charm is lovely smooth skin. As Howard Higgins, Pathé director, expresses it, summing up the experience of leading Hollywood directors: "A girl's greatest loveliness is a beautiful skin—it is more important in a girl than wonderful eyes or a beautiful mouth."

He goes on to say: "I don't remember a girl ever reaching screen stardom without a rarely lovely skin—for make-up is no help under the all-revealing lights of the close-up. Smooth skin is absolutely necessary for popularity and loveliness."

Because this is true, nine out of ten screen stars use Lux Toilet Soap, and all the great studios have made it the official soap in their dressing rooms. In Hollywood they have found that this delightful soap—made by the famous French method—keeps the skin exquisitely lovely.

If you aren't already devoted to this daintily fragrant, white soap, do try it—this very day. Such abundant lather! And it keeps your skin as smooth as satin.

LOIS WILSON, Warner Brothers' popular star, says: "The satin-smooth skin that a close-up reveals must be as lovely as it looks—it is something that even the cleverest make-up cannot fake. I'm delighted with Lux Toilet Soap. It's a lovely soap!"

The next time you see DOROTHY SEBASTIAN, beautiful Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer star, in a close-up, notice how petal-smooth Lux Toilet Soap keeps her skin. She says enthusiastically: "Lux Toilet Soap gives my skin such a lovely soft bloom that I never have to worry about whether it is exquisite enough to be 'studio skin.'"

Plant in the Fall

While planting can be done in the Spring, the Westover Nursery Company advises you that Fall is the better time for planting most varieties of Trees, Shrubs, Evergreens and especially Iris, Paeonias and many other varieties of Perennials.

Because the soil is warm from the hot Summer sun, and in better working condition, plants that are planted in the Fall and given a mulching of leaves or other litter, make root growth and become thoroughly established before the ground freezes, and come out more naturally in the Spring.

Evergreens, Iris, Paeonias and many other varieties of Perennials should be planted in September, and all Deciduous Trees and Shrubs can be planted just as soon as we have a heavy frost to cause the leaves to drop.

As it is not a "Home Until It's Planted," why not drive out to the Westover Nursery Company at 8500 Olive Blvd., and have them assist you in beautifying your home grounds, or send for our 80-page descriptive illustrated catalog, which is free. Phone WYdown 0202.

LINDBERGH PARTY REPORTS FINDING MORE MAYA RUINS

Lindbergh Lands on Small Pool in Jungle.

By the Associated Press.

BELIZE, British Honduras, Oct. 8.—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, seeking ancient Mayan ruins, yesterday brought his large plane down in the midst of the Yucatan jungle on a small pool. He and his bride inflated a rubber boat and, chopping their way through reeds and underbrush with hachetes, made their way to shore, where they looked for relics of the lost civilization.

Alligators, with which the lake is infested, kept their distance.

While they were ashore, Mrs. Lindbergh served her husband, the two scientists with them and the plane's radio operator with a typical field luncheon of raisins, bananas and crackers. They remarked they had been so engrossed in their search for ruins they had forgotten to eat.

The landing, which was near the banks of Lake de Chichen Canaba, Quintana Roo, was fruitless, the party finding neither ruins nor human habitation. The stop was made at noon, while the party was on the way from Merida, Yucatan, across the peninsula to Belize, over a course of about 400 miles.

The plane flew over several cities at which excavations have been in progress. At Chichen Itza the explorers saw two massive ruins bordered on two pools of deep green water. The Temple of Warriors excavation of the Carnegie Institute was nearly snow white.

There was a gray pyramid excavated by the Mexican Government, reaching 150 feet toward the sky and surmounted by a temple, details of which were disclosed clearly. Flying low over the thick jungle tops at less than 90 miles an hour the party passed the Yaxhuna ruins, 18 miles south of Chichen Itza.

While everyone scanned the massed tropical growth below for traces of the vanished Mayan race the Colonel crossed and recrossed a deep river, unknown by name or chart to anyone aboard. There was no life or sign of human habitation along its banks.

Today the party will fly into the Flores region, north and west of this city.

ROBBED OF CAR HE HAD SOLD

Motorist Held Up When About to Deliver Auto.

Lester Beisner, 5044 Raymond avenue, sold his automobile last night and prepared to take his last ride before delivering the machine today.

He was held up in front of his home by a young man with a pistol and compelled to drive to Page and Ferguson avenues, St. Louis County, where he was robbed of $3 and the car.

TWO MORE STREET CARS BOMBED AT NEW ORLEANS

One, Already Damaged, Hit By Grenade Thrown From the Weeds.

By the Associated Press.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Oct. 8.—Police and Federal officers today were investigating the bombing of two more street cars. The cars were bombed within five minutes of each other in the same lower section of the city.

Nearly two feet of rail was torn up when a Desire car ran over some explosive. The car windows wer smashed and several floor boards were displace. None of the six passengers and crew was hurt. Aas a check of the damage was being made, some one hiding in the weeds in a vacant lot threw a rudely constructed grenade against the car. The bomb exploded but did little additional damage.

A little later a Gentilly car was damaged by explosive placed between the rails. A rail was split and the windows broken. Two passengers escaped injury.

AN ANCIENT PREJUDICE HAS BEEN REMOVED

Wise legislation has halted the ancient prejudice that dictated the exploitation of child labor for selfish gain. Guided by AMERICAN INTELLIGENCE it has routed greed. No longer are little children forced into slavery.

Gone is that ancient prejudice against cigarettes—Progress has been made. We removed the prejudice against cigarettes when we removed harmful corrosive ACRIDS (pungent irritants) from the tobaccos.

YEARS ago, when cigarettes were made without the aid of modern science, there originated that ancient prejudice against all cigarettes. That criticism is no longer justified. LUCKY STRIKE, the finest cigarette you ever smoked, made of the choicest tobacco, properly aged and skillfully blended—"It's Toasted."

"TOASTING," the most modern step in cigarette manufacture, removes from LUCKY STRIKE harmful irritants which are present in cigarettes manufactured in the old-fashioned way.

Everyone knows that heat purifies, and so "TOASTING"—LUCKY STRIKE'S extra secret process—removes harmful corrosive ACRIDS (pungent irritants) from LUCKIES which in the old-fashioned manufacture of cigarettes cause throat irritation and coughing. Thus "TOASTING" has destroyed that ancient prejudice against cigarette smoking by men and by women.

LUCKY STRIKE
"IT'S TOASTED"
CIGARETTES

"It's toasted"

No Throat Irritation-No Cough.

TUNE IN—The Lucky Strike Dance Orchestra, every Saturday night, over a coast-to-coast network of the N. B. C.

"It's Toasted"—the phrase that describes the extra "toasting" process applied in the manufacture of Lucky Strike Cigarettes. The finest tobaccos—the Cream of the Crop—are scientifically subjected to penetrating heat at minimum, 260°—maximum, 300°, Fahrenheit. The exact, expert regulation of such high temperatures removes impurities. More than a slogan, "It's Toasted" is recognized by millions as the most modern step in cigarette manufacture.

WOMAN FATALLY INJURED BY AUTO HUSBAND IS HURT

Mrs. Louise Alter, 65, 2506 North 13th Street, Run Down in 4500 Block of Loughborough.

Mrs. Louise Alter, 65 years old, of 2506 North Thirteenth street, died at City Hospital shortly before noon today of a fractured skull suffered yesterday afternoon when struck by an automobile in the 4500 block of Loughborough avenue. Mrs. Alter and her husband, Adam, were walking in the street, there being no sidewalks at that point.

The driver of the automobile stopped momentarily and left, saying he would get a doctor. During his absence another motorist took Mrs. Alter and her husband, Adam, who is 75 years old, to the hospital. Alter later returned to his home after being treated for a leg injury.

Three hours after the accident Oscar Hill, 46, a salesman, of 533 Fairview avenue, Webster Groves, entered the Mounted District Police Station and reported he had driven the automobile which struck Mr. and Mrs. Alter.

Hill was charged with careless driving, felonious wounding and leaving the scene of an accident.

East St. Louisan Fatally Hurt by Auto.

Thomas O. Humphrey, 62 years old, a painter, 112A St. Clair avenue, East St. Louis, died last midnight at St. Mary's Hospital from a fractured skull suffered earlier in the evening when struck by an automobile as he crossed St. Clair avenue near his home.

Sherman Bond of Granite City, told police that Humphrey stepped from behind a parked automobile into the path of his automobile.

WALKER DENIES HE GOT $2000 LOAN TO GAMBLE

New York Mayor Accused by Opponent of Borrowing to Play Dice.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 8. — Mayor James J. Walker today gave a negative answer to an inquiry by Richard E. Enright, Mayoral candidate on the Square Deal party, as to whether the Mayor had borrowed $2000 from the proprietor of the Central Park Casino in the middle of the night.

Enright, who was Police Commissioner under Mayor Hylan, made his inquiry concerning the loan in a statement criticising Walker for leasing the casino for $8000 a year to Sidney Solomon to be operated as a high-priced restaurant and dance resort.

"I would like to ask, if he borrowed $2000 from the proprietor of this place in the middle of the night a few weeks or a month ago and had it sent over to the Ritz Carlton where he was holding a prayer meeting," Enright said. He explained that by "prayer meeting" he meant a dice game.

Mayor Walker said:

"I never asked for, borrowed or received $2000 or any other sum from Sidney Solomon or any other person connected with the casino restaurant enterprise."

Solomon also denied the transaction.

Enright in his statement named Jack Cohen as the night treasurer from whom Solomon obtained the money for Walker.

Solomon said Cohen had never been night treasurer, but was at one time employed as a detective at the casino.

Walker challenged Enright to reword his statement from a question to a direct allegation, saying if it was phrased so as to be actionable he would go before a grand jury and ask for an indictment for criminal libel.

Enright also charged that policemen and detectives in Brooklyn rode liquor trucks operated by a gangster known as "Little Augie" local representative of Al Capone, Chicago gangster now serving a sentence for carrying a concealed weapon in Philadelphia.

SPECIAL ASSOCIATED PRESS WIRE.

OIL PRODUCTION DECREASE REPORTED BY TRADE JOURNAL

By the Associated Press.

TULSA, Ok., Oct. 8.—A further drop in crude oil production was recorded last week, the nation's total output showing a reduction of 18,621 barrels from the figure for the preceding week, the Oil and Gas Journal says today.

Total daily average production for the week ended Oct. 5 was estimated at 2,883,041 barrels, compared with 2,901,362 barrels for the week ended Sept. 28.

With the Oklahoma City pool already pinched-in, the total daily average light crude oil production for Oklahoma dropped 28,215 barrels, the main decrease was in the Seminole field.

The daily light crude production in the entire mid-continent area declined approximately 23,696 barrels. Heavy crude in this area remained constant.

All other major areas with the exception of Southwest Texas crude which dropped approximately 2000 barrels, remained either constant or registered increases.

Santa Fe Springs deep drilling area in California, which has demonstrated peculiar fluctuation during the past few months added 2000 barrels to its daily production.

Cigarette Price Advanced.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 8.—Following the price advances last week by several manufacturers of popular brands of cigarettes, the United Cigar Stores Co. anounced today that the cigarettes it had been selling at two packages for 25 cents would now sell for 15 cents a package.

Announcement also was made by the Philip Morris & Co., Ltd., that it had advanced the price of one of its brands from $8 to $8.40 a thousand and on another brand from $13.25 to $13.75 a thousand.

National Bank Call.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8.—The Comptroller of the Currency today issued a call for the condition of all national banks at the close of business on Friday, Oct. 4.

The report of sales of individual stocks in this table includes only transactions during three and one-half hours of the five-hour trading session. The ticker no longer records sales of individual stocks except for a short period following the opening, but they are tabulated progressively by the Stock Exchange. The final hour's sales were not available at the close of the market. The range of prices, however, covers the transactions up to the close. A report of sales of individual stocks, complete for the entire five-hour session, will be found in the Stock Market Final Edition.

Industrial and Financial Briefs

NEW YORK, Oct. 8.—Reports from London bullion brokers today said that of the approximately $4,000,000 in gold available in the open market there, the Bank of England secured about $3,250,000 and the balance was taken by India and trade demands. About $5,000,000 is due to arrive from South Africa on Oct. 15.

W. T. Grant Co.'s sales for September totaled $4,776,599, as against $4,707,762 in the same month last year, an increase of 1.4 per cent.

COTTON SELLS LOWER AFTER GINNING REPORT

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 8.—The monthly Government report on cotton showing an indicated yield of 14,915,000 bales and a condition of 55 per cent resulted in heavy liquidation and southern selling in the market today and brought a sharp downward readjustment in values. The crop estimate was larger than generally expected and old long holdings came out in volume. The trade was the principal buyer and although large quantities of cotton passed into the possession of spinners the demand was not sufficient to readily absorb the heavy offerings. As the inquiry otherwise was small buyers were inclined to be cautious. After sharp declines the mid afternoon market was slightly steadier at advances of 5 to 7 points from the earlier lows but still 40 to 42 points net lower.

Futures closed steady, 34 to 39 points lower; October 18.43c; December 18.52-52c; January 18.58-59c; March 18.84-85c; May 19.06-08c; spot quiet; middling 18.65c.

Cotton opened steady, unchanged to 7 points lower.

Early in the day the active positions showed losses of 4 to 10 points under prebureau liquidation through Wall street commission houses and selling for Southern account. Continued favorable weather over the entire cotton belt more than offset rather steadier Liverpool cables and there was little disposition to make new commitments owing to the uncertainty as to what the Government report would show. The trade was a good buyer on the decline, however, and this demand gave the market a steady undertone.

Liverpool cables reported calling Bombay buying and prebureau covering in that market and said Manchester was awaiting the bureau while cloth and yarn buyers were cautious with sales moderate.

The Government crop figure of 14,915,000 bales proved larger than generally expected, and after its publication prices declined about $1 to $1.25 a bale under very active liquidation and selling by Wall street and local operators.

The trade continued to buy on the decline and this demand was of sufficient volume to hold the market within comparatively narrow limits, although it was thought that the crop indication of nearly 15,000,000 bales might serve to discourage buying incentive from outside sources.

Cotton Down at New Orleans.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 8.—The Government crop report giving the indicated yield as 14,915,000 bales, a moderate increase over a month ago, was somewhat larger than traders expected. As a result when trading was resumed after the usual recess prices opened 30 points down on October, 35 points down on December and 29 to 31 points down on later months.

5,906,650 Bales Cotton Ginned.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8.—The Census Bureau announced today 5,905,650 running bales of cotton of the growth fo 1929, including 169,507 round bales, counted as half bales, had been ginned prior to Oct. 1.

The department said this was indicated by the condition of the crop on Oct. 1, which was 55 per cent of normal. A month ago production of 14,825,000 bales was indicated on the condition of the crop Sept. 1, which was 55.4 per cent of a normal. Last year's crop totaled 14,478,000 bales and the condition on Oct. 1 was 54.4 per cent of a normal.

The condition on Oct. 1 and the indicated production by states follow:

INVESTMENT BONDS SHOW IMPROVEMENT

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 8.—Bond prices continued their improvement in today's market, although more irregularity was apparent than in yesterday's session. With the lower rates for monetary accommodations restoring a measure of confidence in the credit outlook, demand for long-neglected investment issues showed considerable improvement, and numerous high-grade bonds, especially in the rail group, moved up.

Convertibles displayed considerable strength in the late trading, under the leadership of American Telephone 4½s, which advanced about 7 points in sympathy with a rise in the shares. American International 5½s, International Telephone 4½s and Missouri Pacific 5½s were also strong.

Atchison general 4s, Union Pacific general 4s, St. Louis & San Francisco prior lien 4s, New Haven debenture 4s and Missouri-Kansas & Texas 4½s reflected the improvement in sentiment by registering an average gain of nearly a point.

Time money was unchanged at 8¾ to 9 per cent, although an easier undertone developed. Call funds renewed at 6½ and dropped to 6.

WHEAT SELLS HIGHER ON LOCAL EXCHANGE

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, Oct. 8.—December wheat sold up more than a cent today after irregular early trade. Corn recovered an early decline. Opening fractionally higher, wheat early sold between unchanged to shade lower level and fractionally net higher. Winnipeg was better early. The scant improvement in foreign demand and report of diminishing pressure of Argentine wheat were called influences in market. Liverpool sold off 1⅜d. Corn here opened unchanged and sold lower early.

December wheat opened at $1.33⅛. May wheat $1.44. December corn 96¼c and May corn $1.03½.

Local wheat receipts, which were 152,600 bushels, compared with 88,200 a week ago and 292,600 a year ago, included 58 cars local and 51 through. Corn receipts, which were 28,000 bushels, compared with 96,600 a week ago and 26,600 a year ago, included 15 cars local and five through. Oats receipts, which were 44,000 bushels, compared with 79,200 a week ago and 52,000 a year ago, included 15 cars local and nine through. Hay receipts were 16 cars local and four through.

Liverpool wheat closed ¼d to ⅞d lower.

December wheat here was net higher after being a shade net lower.

St. Louis Cash Grain.

WHEAT PRICE DOWN ON CHICAGO MARKET

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 8.—Influenced by forecasts as to what Argentina probably would harvest, wheat values took a decided upward swing today, meanwhile, export business in North American wheat continued active. On the other hand, the world's available supply of wheat showed an increase of over 21,000,000 bushels for the week.

Wheat closed firm, 1¼c to 1⅛c a bushel higher than yesterday's finish. Corn closed at ⅛c off to ⅜@½c up; oats, ¼c to ⅜c advanced, and provisions ranging from 7c decline to a rise of 10c.

With export demand for North American wheat apparently increasing, and with pressure of wheat from Argentina reported diminishing, wheat prices here averaged early today.

Upturns in quotations were in the face of assertion that stocks of wheat were mounting abroad. Opening unchanged to ⅝ cent higher, Chicago wheat reacted a little and then scored gains all around. Corn, oats and provisions were easy, with corn starting ⅜c off to ¼c up, and later holding near the initial range.

One factor tending to lift Chicago wheat prices today was unfavorable comment on the crop outlook in Argentina. One of the leading houses in the export trade was a good buyer today of Chicago wheat future deliveries, and there was advice indicating that some export business in United States hard winter wheat had been done overnight.

EARNINGS AND DIVIDENDS

Orders, factory productions and other business items, compiled daily by Standard Statistics Co., Inc., New York.

NEW YORK, Oct. 8.—Steel ingot output for September was greater than the weekly reports had indicated, total of 4,510,879 tons for the month exceeding same period of 1928 by 362,000 tons or 8.8 per cent. For the nine months of 1929 output was 43,243,404 tons, about 17 per cent above a year ago. Operations averaged 92 per cent in September and 94.6 per cent for nine months, compared with 88 and 84 per cent, respectively, for same periods of 1928.

Complete results of railroad earnings for August showed that net for the month ran 10.1 per cent and gross 5 per cent above a year ago, while for the first eight months net ran 20.7 per cent and gross 5.6 per cent over 1928. With normal earnings anticipated for rest of year, aggregate net of class 1 carriers for 1929 are almost certain to set an all-time record. Estimates of oil production for past week indicate that average output dropped about 18,600 barrels daily, making the third weekly reduction in succession.

STRENGTH DEVELOPS IN CURB MARKET

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 8.—The Curb Market developed pronounced strength again today, but not until after heavy profit taking on the sharp rally from the low levels of last Friday had been absorbed. The market was highly irregular until early afternoon, when the selling began to dry up, and bullish sentiment improved.

Cities Service was again a strong spot, rising nearly 2 points to a new peak at 64⅞. Electric Bond and Share was under pressure for a time, but finally turned upward and closed 4 points higher. United Light and Power stocks were in urgent demand, the B stock shooting up more than 20 points.

Several of the utilities closed barely steady, after absorbing considerable selling. American Superpower closed practically unchanged. Among the more volatile issues, however, Northern States A, Standard Power and Light, Commonwealth Edison, American Light and Traction and Middle West (old) sold up 7 to about 20 points. Insull Utility Investment and Central States were soft spots, losing nearly 2 points each.

I. T. S. SUBWAY PLAN SHAPING UP RAPIDLY

Company Proceeding With Work on $5,000,000 Twelfth and Washington Terminal.

Work preliminary to the construction of the Illinois Terminal System's subway and new station and warehouse at Twelfth boulevard and Washington avenue is being continued, but at the company's offices today it was said no prediction could be made as to when excavation would begin.

Old brick buildings have been removed from several blocks of the right of way north of the present station and wrecking crews are working northward.

Specifications are being prepared for the steel work for a new track connection with the McKinley Bridge which will be necessary. This will be the first part of the permanent new construction to be undertaken.

The station project, together with the subway and new elevated tracks, will involve an expenditure estimated at $5,000,000. Tentative plans for the new station and warehouse have been drawn, but the exact plan of the building and its height have not been decided on.

Under the company's plan as approved by the Interstate Commerce Commission the railway terminals at Twelfth and Washington will be under ground and two tracks will run through a subway to Cass avenue, from which point the existing surface tracks will be used to a point near Howard street. From there the new track will be built across private property to Tenth street, where it will run upon a viaduct which will turn eastward in North Market street and continue to the bank of the Mississippi River. There it will descend to the surface and continue north to the west end of the McKinley bridge, making the connection either by a viaduct or earth embankment.

WETS' COMMENT ON BILL AGAINST LIQUOR PURCHASES

Plan Should Be Put First in 18th Amendment, Says Anti-Prohibition Leader.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8. — The move to make liquor purchasers liable to prosecution as prohibition violators was described today by the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment as one which would nullify the eighteenth amendment.

That view was set forth in a statement by Henry H. Curran, president of the association, commenting on the bill introduced by Senator Sheppard (Dem.), Texas, to declare buyers equally guilty with manufacturers or sellers of liquor.

"The place to put a prohibition of purchase is in the eighteenth amendment, after which it will be time enough to talk about putting it into the Volstead act," Curran asserted.

"Congress left it out of the eighteenth amendment deliberately. Congress cannot put it into the Volstead act now without nullifying the amendment on which the Volstead act is based."

Sheppard said the proposal contained in his bill was left out of the amendment, which he sponsored in the Senate, because of the opinion existing then that the latter could not be passed if it contained such a clause.

The recent Philadelphia court decision holding that a liquor buyer could not be punished, together with "continued advance of prohibition sentiment and achievement," he thought, had made introduction of his bill advisable. Enactment will be sought at the regular session of Congress beginning in December, he said.

WATER-BOY KING FIGHTING TO RETAIN AFGHAN THRONE

Opposing Tribesmen Reported to Have Advanced to Outskirts of His Capital.

By the Associated Press.

MOSCOW, Oct. 8.—Reports from Tarmez on the Afghanistan northern border indicate that Habibullah, the water boy King, once again is hard-pressed to hold the throne he seized last January from Amanullah Khan.

Tribesmen led by Nadir Khan are said to be nearing Kabul, the capital, in an advance from the Lohar Valley. Habibullah mobilized all forces at his command, including police, to defend the city. The latest advices are that fighting is going on in the outskirts of Kabul.

FRANCE'S ATTITUDE ON ARMS CONFERENCE UNCHANGED

PARIS, Oct. 8.—French foreign office executives announced today they had had no opportunity yet to examine the British invitation to a five-power naval conference, and that France's answer to the invitation would depend on the contents of the invitation.

It was said France had not changed its attitude, expressed several weeks ago, that it would participate in such a conference always with the idea that its conclusions would form merely one stage of general disarmament and would be merged later into a general disarmament treaty which it was hoped to conclude at Geneva.

BUILDING CONFERENCE HELD UP

Five Men Get $3710 in Chicago Loan Office.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 8.—While eight officers of the California Building and Loan Association were in conference last night, five men, one of whom carried a machine gun, entered, made them lie on the floor, and stole $3710. The robbers made Frank Stack, treasurer, open the safe, which contained $3360, and then robbed the officers of $350.

The organization was robbed about a year ago when Stack and a stenographer were held up in the offices by four men who stole $370 from the safe.

THE BISHOP MURDER CASE

A PHILO VANCE DETECTIVE STORY

By S. S. VAN DINE

The story thus far: A man known as Cock Robin is shot through the heart with an arrow. The body is found on the archery range beside the home of Prof. Dillard, where Robin was well known. The crime seems to be the intentional dramatization of the old nursery rhyme "Who killed Cock Robin?" District Attorney Markham is puzzled by the apparently senseless circumstances attending it and asks the aid of Philo Vance, wealthy young bachelor who dabbles in the solving of unusual mysteries. The police get on the trail of Sperling, the last man known to have been with Robin. Vance, in questioning Prof. Dillard and his niece, Belle Dillard, learns that both Robin and Sperling were in love with the girl and had been arguing over her just before Robin's death. While Vance is questioning her, Siguard Arnesson, a protege of Prof. Dillard's and also a professor of mathematics, comes in. Arnesson is a cynical man who jokes heartlessly about the murder.

Vance learns practically nothing from the Dillard household, but Pyne, the butler, seems very much confused when questioned as to his whereabouts the morning of the murder. Then Pardee, a neighbor and acquaintance of the Dillards, arrives on the scene.

He, however, has no new facts to offer. There is a house at the rear of the Dillards, one window of which faces on the archery range, and Vance learns that it is ocupied by the Drukkers, mother and son. The son is a mathematical genuius and a cripple. The mother has an unbalanced mind and believes her son still to be a baby.

CHAPTER 11.

"SHE'S had such a tragic life," the girl explained. "She was once a great singer—oh, not just a second-rate artist, but a prima donna with a marvelous career before her. She married a leading critic of Vienna—Otto Drukker—and four years later Adolph was born. Then one day in the Wiener Prater, when the baby was two years old, she let him fall; and from that moment on her entire life was changed. Adolp's spine was injured, and he became a cripple. Lady Mae was heartbroken. She held herself to blame for his injury, and gave up her career to devote herself to his care. When her husband died a year after she brought Adolph to America, where she spent some of her girlhood, and bought the house where she now lives. Her whole life has been centered on Adolph, who grew up a hunchback. She has sacrificed everything for him, and cares for him as though he were a baby. . . ." A shadow crossed her face. "Sometimes I think—we all think—that she still imagines he's only a child. She has become—well, morbid about it. But it's the sweet, terrible morbidity of a tremendous mother-love—a sort of insanity of tenderness, uncle calls it. During the past few months she has grown very strange—and peculiar. I've often found her crooning old German lullabies and kindergarten songs, with her arms crossed on her breast, as if—oh, it seems so sacred and so terrible!—as if she were holding a baby. . . . And she has become frightfully jealous of Adolph. She's resentful of all other men. Only last week I took Mr. Sperling to see her—we often drop in to call on her; she seems so lonely and unhappy—and she looked at him almost fiercely, and said: 'Why weren't you a cripple, too?' "

The girl paused and searched our faces.

"Now don't you understand why I asked you to be careful? Lady Mae may think we have come to harm Adolph."

"We sha'n't add unnecessarily to her suffering," Vance assured her sympathetically. Then, as we moved toward the hall, he asked her a question which recalled to my mind his brief intent scrutiny of the Drukker house earlier that afternoon. "Where is Mrs. Drukker's room situated?"

The girl shot him a startled look, but answered promptly.

"On the west side of the house—its bay window overlooks the archery range."

"Ah!" Vance took out his cigarette case, and carefully selected a Regie. "Does she sit much at this window?"

"A great deal. Lady Mae always watches us at archery practice—why, I don't know. I'm sure it pains her to see us, for Adolph isn't strong enough to shoot. He's tried it several times, but it tired him so he had to give it up."

"She may watch you practicing for the very reason that it does torture her—a kind of self-immolation, y' know. Those situations are very distressing. "Vance spoke almost with tenderness—which, to one who did not know his real nature, would have sounded strange. "Perhaps," he added, as we emerged into the archery range through the basement door, "it would be best if we saw Mrs. Drukker first for a moment. It might tend to allay any apprehensions our visit might cause her. Could we reach her room without Mr. Drukker's knowledge?"

"Oh, yes." The girl was pleased at the idea. "We can go in the rear way. Adolph's study, where he does his writing, is at the front of the house."

WE found Mrs. Drukker sitting in the great bay window on a sprawling old-fashioned chaise-longue, propped up with pillows. Miss Dillard greeted her filially and, bending over her with tender concern, kissed her forehead.

"Something rather awful has happened at our house this morning, Lady Mae," she said; "and these gentlemen wanted to see you. I offered to bring them over. You don't mind, do you?"

Mrs. Drukker's pale, tragic face had been turned away from the door as we entered, but now she stared at us with fixed horror. She was a tall woman, slender to the point of emaciation; and her hands which lay slightly flexed on the arms of the chair, were sinewy and wrinkled like the talons of fabulous bird-women. Her face too, was thin and deeply seamed; but it was not an unattractive face. The eyes were clear and alive, and the nose was straight and dominant. Though she must have been well past 60 her hair was luxuriant and brown.

For several minutes she neither moved nor spoke. Then her hands closed slowly, and her lips parted.

"What do you want?" she asked in a low resonant voice.

"Mrs. Drukker,"—it was Vance who answered—"as Miss Dillard has told you, a tragedy occurred next door this morning, and since your window is the only one directly overlooking the archery range, we thought that you might have seen something that would aid us in our investigation."

The woman's vigilance relaxed perceptibly, but it was a moment or two before she spoke.

"And what did take place?"

"A Mr. Robin was killed. You knew him, perhaps?"

"The archer—Belle's Champion Archer? Yes, I knew him. A strong healthy child who could pull a heavy bow and not get tired. Who killed him?"

"We don't know," Vance, despite his negligent air, was watching her astutely. "But inasmuch as he was killed on the range, within sight of your window, we hoped you might be able to help us."

Mrs. Drukker's eyelids drooped craftily, and she clasped her hands with a kind of deliberate satisfaction.

"You are sure he was killed on the range?"

"We found him on the range," Vance returned non-committally.

"I see. . . . But what can I do to help you?" She lay back relaxed.

"Did you notice anyone on the range this morning?" asked Vance.

"No!" The denial was swift and emphatic. "I saw no one. I haven't looked out on the range all day."

Vance met the woman's gaze steadily, and sighed.

"It's most unfortunate," he murmured. "Had you been looking out of the window this morning, it's wholly possible you might have seen the tragedy. . . . Mr. Robin was killed with a bow and arrow, and there seems to have been no motive whatever for the act."

"You know he was killed with a bow and arrow?" she asked, a tinge of color coming into her ashen cheeks.

"That was the Medical Examiner's report. There was an arrow through his heart when we found him."

"Of course. That seems perfectly natural, doesn't it? . . . An arrow through the Robin's heart!" She spoke with vague aloofness, a distant, fascinated look in her eyes.

There was a strained silence, and Vance moved toward the window.

"Do you mind if I look out?"

* * *

WITH difficulty the woman brought herself back from some far train of thought. "Oh, no. It isn't much of a view, though. I can see the trees of Seventy-sixth street toward the north, and a part of the Dillard yard to the south. But that brick wall opposite is very depressing. Before the apartment house was built I had a beautiful view of the river."

Vance looked for a while down into the archery range.

"Yes," he observed, "if only you had been at the window this morning you might have seen what happened. Your view of the range and the basement door of the Dillards' is very clear . . . Too bad." He glanced at his watch. "Is your son in, Mrs. Drukker?"

"My son! My baby! What do you want with him?" her voice rose pitifully, and her eyes fastened on Vance with venomous hatred.

"Nothing important," he said pacifying. "Only, he may have seen some one on the range."

"He saw no one He couldn't have seen any one for he wasn't here. He went out early this morning, and hasn't returned."

Vance looked with pity at the woman.

"He was away all morning? Do you know where he was?"

"I always know where he is," Mrs. Drukker answered proudly. "He tells me everything."

"And he told you where he was going this morning?" persisted Vance gently.

"Certainly. But I forgot for the moment. Let me think". . . . Her long fingers tapped on the arm of the chair, and her eyes shifted uneasily. "I can't recall. But I'll ask him the moment he returns."

Miss Dillard had stood watching the woman with growing perplexity.

"But, Lady Mae, Adolph was at our house this morning. He came to see Sigurd"—

Mrs. Drukker drew herself up.

"Nothing of the kind!" she snapped, eyeing the girl almost viciously. "Adolph had to go—downtown somewhere. He wasn't near your house—I know he wasn't." Her eyes flashed, and she turned a defiant glare on Vance.

It was an embarrassing moment; but what followed was even more painful.

The door opened softly, and suddenly Mrs. Drukker's arms went out.

"My little boy—my baby!" she cried. "Come here, dear."

BUT the man at the door did not come forward. He stood blinking his beady little eyes at us, like a person waking in strange surroundings. Adolph Drukker was scarcely five feet tall. He had the typical congested appearance of the hunchback. His legs were spindling, and the size of his bulging, distorted torso seemed exaggerated by his huge, dome-like head. But there was intellectuality in the man's face—a terrific passionate power which held one's attention. Prof. Dillard had called him a mathematical genius; and one could have no doubts as to his erudition.

"What does all this mean?" he demanded in a high-pitched tremulous voice, looking toward Miss Dillard. "Are these friends of yours, Belle?"

The girl started to speak, but Vance halted her with a gesture.

"The truth is, Mr. Drukker, "he explained somberly, "there has been a tragedy next door. This is Mr. Markham, the District Attorney, and Sergt. Heath of the Police Department; and at our request Miss Dillard brought us here that we might ask your mother whether or not she had noticed anything unusual on the archery range this morning. The tragedy occurred just outside the basement door of the Dillard house."

Drukker thrust his chin forward and squinted.

"A tragedy, eh? What kind of tragedy?"

"A Mr. Robin was killed—with a bow and arrow."

The man's face began to twitch spasmodically.

"Robin killed? Killed? . . . What time?"

"Some time between 11 and 12 probably."

"Between 11 and 12?" Quickly Drukker's gaze shifted to his mother. He seemed to grow excited, and his huge splay fingers worried the hem of his smoking-jacket. "What did you see?" His eyes glinted as he focused them on the woman.

"What do you mean, son?" The retort was a panic-stricken whisper.

Drukker's face became hard, and the suggestion of a sneer twisted his lips.

"I mean that it was about that time when I heard a scream in this room."

"You didn't! No—no!" She caught her breath and wagged her head jerkily. "You're mistaken, son. I didn't scream this morning."

"Well, some one did." There was a cold relentlessness in the man's tone. Then, after a pause, he added: "The fact is, I came upstairs after I heard the scream, and listened at the door here. But you were walking about humming 'Eia Popeia,' so I went back to my work."

Mrs. Drukker pressed a handkerchief to her face, and her eyes closed momentarily.

"You were at your work between 11 and 12." Her voice now rang with subdued eagerness. "But I called you several times—"

"I heard you. But I didn't answer. I was too busy."

"So that was it." She turned slowly toward the window. "I thought you were out. Didn't you tell me—?"

"I told you I was going to the Dillards. But Sigurd wasn't there, and I came back a little before 11."

"I didn't see you come in." The woman's energy was spent, and she lay back listlessly, her eyes on the brick wall opposite. "And when I called and you didn't answer I naturally thought you were still out."

"I left the Dillards by the street gate, and took a walk in the park." Drukker's voice was irritable. "Then I let myself in by the front door."

"And you say you heard me scream . . . But why should I scream, son? I've had no pains in my back this morning."

Drukker frowned, and his little eyes moved swiftly from Vance to Markham.

"I heard someone scream — a woman—in this room," he reiterated stubbornly. "About half past eleven." Then he sank into a chair and gazed moodily at the floor.

THIS perplexing verbal intercourse between mother and son had held us all spellbound. Though Vance had stood before an old eighteenth-century print near the door, regarding it with apparent absorption, I knew that no word or inflection had escaped him. Now he swung about and, giving Markham a signal not to interfere, approached Mrs. Drukker.

"We're very sorry, madam, that we've had to trouble you. Forgive us, if you can."

He bowed and turned to Miss Dillard.

"Do you care to pilot us back? Or shall we find our own way down?"

"I'll come with you," the girl said; and going to Mrs. Drukker she put her arm about her. "I'm so sorry, Lady Mae."

As we were passing out into the hall Vance, as if on second thought, paused and looked back at Drukker.

"You'd better come with us, sir," he said, in a casual yet urgent tone. "You knew Mr. Robin, and you may be able to suggest something."

"Don't go with them, son!" cried Mrs. Drukker. She was sitting upright now, her face contorted with anguish and fear. "Don't go! They're the enemy. They want to hurt you."

Drukker had risen.

"Why shouldn't I go with them?" he retorted petulantly. "I want to find out about this affair. Maybe—as they say—I can help them." And with a gesture of impatience he joined us.

Clam Bisque.

Four cups milk, six large clams, one tablespoon butter, one tablespoon chopped parsley one tablespoon flour, one tablespoon onion juice, one teaspoon salt, one-half teaspoon white pepper, one-half teaspoon paprika. Put clams through the grinder and with their juice and onion bring to a boil. Skim and take from the fire. Bring milk to a boil and thicken with butter and flour rubbed together. When creamy, add seasonings and clams. Serve at once. Croutons make a nice addition to this soup. It certainly touches the spot for luncheon on a damp, rainy day.

BIG PLANS.

THE Little Black Clock was very happy, and he was full of plans and ideas.

"I've turned the time back this time," the Little Black Clock said, "and we're going to see something which started all sorts of big things. Watch!"

John and Peggy and the Little Black Clock found themselves in a room in which a man was watching a kettle boiling on the stove.

"Is he going to have some tea?" Peggy asked. "If he is, I don't see why he doesn't take the kettle off now. The water certainly is boiling enough."

"Why does he watch it like that?" John asked. "Well, anyway, it doesn't prove what my mother says."

"What's that?" asked the Little Black Clock.

"My mother says that a watched pot never boils. That kettle is being watched, and it certainly is boiling," John answered.

"He's not interested in tea or anything just now except that boiling kettle—or, rather, the boiling water, and the way it is behaving in that kettle."

"What a funny thing to watch," John said.

Then the boiling water began to lift the lid of the kettle. Up and down went the lid, and the man seemed so very, very happy.

"I can do it. I know I can," the man was saying to himself. He had not noticed John. Nor had he noticed Peggy. Nor had he noticed the Little Black Clock.

"We'll wait and see some of his experiments. I can fix the time all right even if it takes some little while," said the Little Black Clock.

So they watched and saw the man use a piston which moved as the kettle lid had moved, by means of steam, and they saw a wheel turning around at the same time.

"What in the world are we seeing?" John asked.

"The invention of the first steam engine!" exclaimed the Little Black Clock. "And the man you have been watching is James Watt."

Hardwood Floors.

Hardwood floors will never show the effort one puts on them by shellacking or varnishing unless they are perfectly clean beforehand. It will probably take some sort of a dirt remover to get off the previous soiled varnish and wax before the refinishing can be done. It is a big job and think twice before you do it yourself if your floors are very dirty.

Corks soaked in oil for five minutes will become both air and water tight.

It takes no more time or effort to GUARD THE DANGER LINE

You can't prevent all tooth decay. But you can greatly minimize it if your dentifrice will not only clean your teeth, but also combat acids in the inaccessible crevices about the teeth. For food particles are constantly fermenting and forming acids in these tiny crevices . . . leading to decay.

Squibb's Dental Cream is made with 50% Squibb's Milk of Magnesia, universally acknowledged a safe, effective antacid.

You will like using Squibb's. It is so refreshing and soothing. And you will know that you are really protecting your teeth—guarding The Danger Line—that delicate, vital line of tissue where gums meet teeth. Healthy teeth and gums largely depend upon this delicate line. It ends in a row of tiny V-shaped crevices that your tooth-brush can't reach. But Squibb's will reach every crevice, neutralize acids, give you vital protection. Squibb's is only 40c at any drug store.

So Important to Daintiness
this deodorizing sanitary protection

AVOID all danger of offense and embarrassment! . . . this new, deodorizing pad makes it easy to be safe.

Kotex offers the final refinement of sanitary protection . . . complete deodorization. What a relief this is, from old fears and worries!

You can depend on Kotex to save you from any possibility of offense in this way, just as you depend on it to save you from many other embarrassments.

Special features of Kotex

Kotex is never conspicuous. It is rounded and tapered, and designed to avoid all conspicuous bulk. Wear Kotex confidently with sheer or close-draped gowns.

Kotex completely does away with old-time fuss and laundering.

It disposes instantly, without embarrassment.

Always light and cool

Kotex, too, is so wonderfully comfortable, so light and cool and dainty! Its absorbent filler, Cellucotton absorbent wadding, is selected by surgeons in 85% of the country's leading hospitals in preference to any other material for absorptive use. Doctors use it even for the most important surgical work—preferring it for its absorbency and vastly greater comfort.

Kotex actually absorbs 16 times its own weight in moisture! So it protects completely without bulk or weight.

KOTEX IS SOFT . . .

1—Not a deceptive softness, that soon packs into chafing hardness. But a delicate, lasting softness.
2—Safe, secure . . . keeps your mind at ease.
3—Kotex filler is far lighter and cooler than cotton yet absorbs 5 times as much.
4—In hospitals . . . Kotex is the identical material used by surgeons in 85% of the country's leading hospitals.
5—Deodorizes, safely, thoroughly, by a patented process.

Kotex—45c for 12—at any drug, dry goods or department store.
Kotex Super-Size—65c for 12.

Behind the Screens

The Latest News and Gossip of the Film Actors in Hollywood Appears in the Daily Magazine of the Post-Dispatch Every Tuesday and Thursday and in the Sunday Drama Section.

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 8.

ONE needs a lot of tact in Hollywood, and more than ever these days.

Broadway has sent so many new faces to the films that it is sometimes difficult for the movie people to recognize all of them by sight and the Broadwayites similarly are often in danger of treading on the toes of the Hollywood! a ns whose names they remember vaguely but associate no faces therewith.

CHARLIE CHAPLIN.

There are literally hundreds of stage and screen celebrities and near-celebrities here now, and it is more than the average newcomer can do to keep them properly catalouged in mind. In any mixed gathering a chance critical remark, however honest and kindly intended, may fall like T. N. T.

There is, for example, the story of the Broadway star seated next to a movie light who had undertaken in a talkie the same role that the Broadwayite had made famous on the stage.

"REALLY," the New Yorker assured her movie sister, "you were very good, and I am sure that if you'd had even a fair director it would have been a splendid success." She went on to itemize the shortcomings of that particular director, who, as it happened, was seated beside the miserable movie star, his ears burning.

Another time, after a premiere, someone strolled over to a crowd of "yessing" studio satellites grouped around a beaming little man who seemed to be the center of attention. One of the group asked the newcomer his opinion of the picture. "I think it's as lousy a talkie as was ever made," he answered honestly.

There was suddenly a deathly hush. The beaming little man no longer beamed. He was the director.

Someone suggests that the only place to express an honest opinion in Hollywood is the middle of a sound-proofed stage, deserted and alone . . . But then even there some microphone might "pickup" the expression and preserve it in damning wax forever.

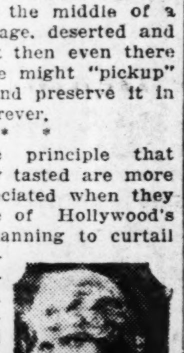
HEEDING the principle that sweets rarely tasted are more keenly appreciated when they are tasted, more of Hollywood's big stars are planning to curtail greatly the number of their annual productions.



MARY PICKFORD.

Richard Barthelmess and Corinne Griffith almost simultaneously have announced that in future they will appear in only two features annually — but in this move they are making no striking departure from precedent set by other sure-fire box-office names of the industry.

Charles Chaplin's pathetically comic vagabond cavorts anew on the screen at intervals so far apart as to make his reappearance something of a national event.

Chaplin, his own author, director, and star, has a reputation for consummate care in all his pictures, his present "City Lights" having been in production nearly a year now with no indication of approaching completion. Yet his prolonged "absences" have served to enhance rather than diminish his box-office value.

THE same applies to Harold Lloyd, whose last silent picture, "Speedy," was released a year and a half ago, and whose forthcoming first talkie, "Welcome, Danger," represents months of work.

Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks began "The Taming of the Shrew" soon after their preceding individual starring pictures were released, but January 1, 1928, was the release date of Doug's "Gaucho," which was followed more than a year later by "The Iron Mask," while Mary began on "Coquette" this spring, a year or more after "My Best Girl" was placed on exhibition.

Lesser stars of the industry often are required to skip madly from one picture to another, without so much as a day's rest, so that their names and faces may be kept constantly before the eyes of fans.

But amateur statisticians familiar with studio production schedules easily can figure what strenuous lives lie ahead of Barthelmess and Miss Griffith: drawing large weekly checks, they will work perhaps as few as 10 weeks out of the 52.

AND the studio figures it can afford it. In the case of a well-established star, his drawing power does not depend on the frequency of his appearance.

One good picture can earn as much as three or four turned out quickly. But let him stay "dark" a while, and they will flock in larger numbers to see him again—to say nothing of the lesser cost of producing the smaller output of his features.

NO doubt about it, O. P. Heggie likes character acting. The first part he ever essayed in a movie, and it was a silent one, was that of Sir William Gower in "The Actress," with Norma Shearer, in the film version of "Trelawney of the Wells."

Sir William, you may remember, was no young nobleman with sex appeal and good looks. He was an old codger of 75 years or so, and Heggie, himself a young man, liked the role.

But being a stage actor the silence of the screen then had little appeal for him, and he returned to the footlights which easily had claimed him, a rather unwilling law student, in 1900.

Once in his stage career Heggie played in a musical revue, the first American production of the kind presented in London. He was a success, but he preferred dramatic acting.

Now in a Hollywood gone completely musical, where he might capitalize on that early experience, he still clings to character portrayals, believing that the talkies offer greater opportunity to the character actor than ever before, and that as a result the one-time predominance of sexy themes in pictures will be overcome. He has just completed the old-man role of the French king in "The Vagabond King."

MOVIE stars need not be too proud of their charms. Here is Percy Westmore, studio make-up artist, declaring that he can produce a "double" for any woman star in the business, under certain conditions.

Out of a group of 25 chorus girls, he says, he can select one who, provided she has the proper height, figure, and hair coloring, can be made to photograph exactly like any given star.

But of course he cannot give the "double" a microphone voice nor screen personality, so what good will it all do, anyway?

A FEW of the day's sights, sounds and other things: Blue-uniformed waitresses in a studio commissary chattering gaily as they pack box lunches after the noon rush, indicating some company is going on location.

RUTH TAYLOR.

Alice Day strolling to her set with a Hawaiian lei about her neck, placed there by her mother and sisters when they surprised her by returning unexpectedly from a vacation in the islands. . . . Gary Cooper haggard and worn after an all-night session with camera and "mike," leaving the studio at 5 a. m.

Ruth Taylor of "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes" fame making a movie comeback after a brief sojourn on the stage. . . . She's in "This Thing Called Love" with Constance Bennett and Edmund Lowe.

A collection of pre-prohibition liquor bottles from the prop-room, all genuine, drawing exclamations from set visitors.

EXTRAS enjoying the singing and dancing of a Broadway star and getting paid for it. . . . Few of them could afford the price of a mere look-in in his native haunts back east. . . . The marvelous ease with which an entire movie company relaxes and "forgets" momentarily scenes on a sound stage. . . . And the remarkable snap with which they swing back into character and tense quiet when the director commands. . . .

Add similes: as clean as a surf-washed pebble—or a movie actor's pocketbook on the return jaunt from Mexican gaming resorts. . . . Jane Winton in one of those tulle-backed evening gowns. . . . mostly tulle. . . . Chorus girls in a musical revue whose sun-tanned limbs are not tanned high enough to "match" the modern chorus girl costume.

Laundering the Flannels

USE lukewarm water and wash one piece at a time. Thoroughly dissolve the soap so it will not cling to the flannel and make it look spotted when dry; do not rub soap directly on flannels.

Shake flannels before washing and again before hanging out to dry.

Do not allow them to become very much soiled before washing—the hard rubbing will injure them.

Never soak flannels, as this hardens them, and they should be washed quickly.

If you boil them they will shrink. They are liable to shrink somewhat anyway, but a little borax added to the rinsing water will prevent shrinking and retain the softness of the fabric.

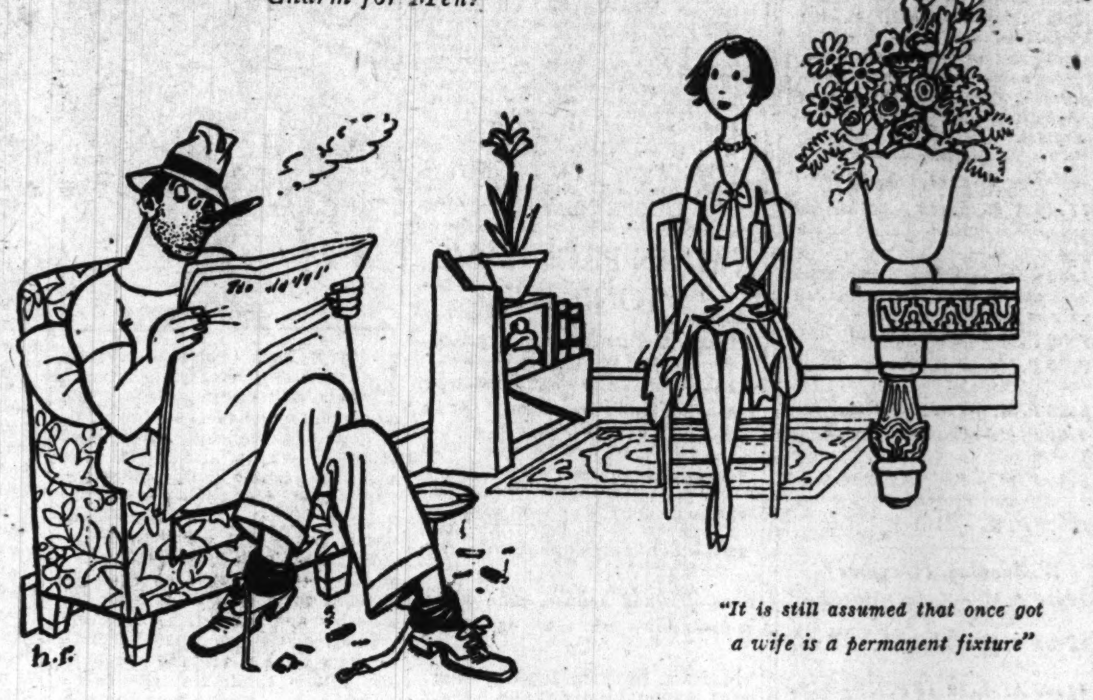
All the waters in which flannels are washed, rinsed and blued should be of the same temperature.

To restore flannels to their original softness after they have become hard and shrunken, soak them in gasoline a few hours, then wash as directed above.

HOW TO HOLD YOUR WIFE

By Mabel McElliott Clarke

Isn't It About Time to Start a Campaign for Beau-Brummellism on the Part of Husbands, to Replace the Old Stuff About Women Fighting to Keep Their Charm for Men?



"It is still assumed that once got a wife is a permanent fixture"

"I AM," said an amusing friend to me the other day, "getting extremely tired of this hold-your-husband cult. It's so old-fashioned. No one ever advises men, in the columns of newspapers and in magazine advertisements, how to hold their wives. But, no matter how beautiful, charming or intelligent a female is, the assumption is that she has to put up a hot and heavy battle, night and day, to keep her man."

I hadn't thought much about it before, but after that conversation I began to notice the trail of the shibboleth. Everywhere, in the editorial columns, in the advice-to-lovelorn and health-and-beauty departments of newspapers and magazines, I discovered traces of it. Hold-your-man seemed to be the slogan of the advertising writers, likewise, because in copy extolling the virtues of creams, wrinkle eradicators, hair dyes, freckle lotions, tooth pastes, soaps, scents and even etiquette courses by mail I picked up the path again. Women are advised to remain young, svelte, pleasantly scented, soft-voiced, amiable and charming—not, as you might think, to please themselves and their mirrors but to please the great god Man. They dare not find that first gray hair, they must not laugh lest they get those little telltale lines under the eyes, they must diet and like it. Else they will neither get nor, having got, will they hold the boy friend.

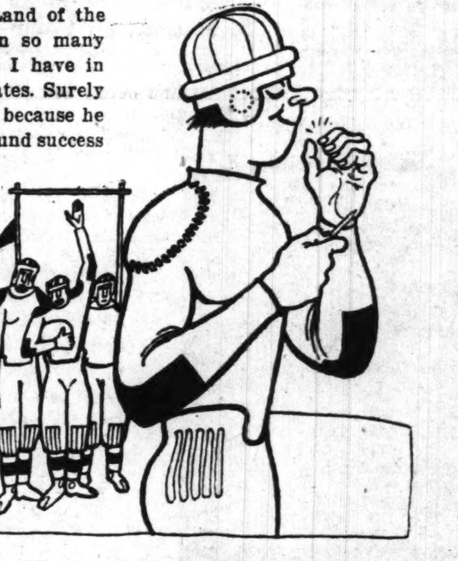
It is all fine up to a certain point. Clear eyes, good skin, Diana-like figures, are much to be admired. We ought to have, shortly, a race of supergirls with ivory teeth, complexions you love to look at if not to touch, excessive amiability and delightful manners. Splendid! I am all for it. But how about men? Why aren't they also taught to please? Why don't the copy writers, eternally harping on this E-string of fear psychology, get down to business and warn the boys that if they don't play golf, keep down the old tummy, have tonic shampoos and get their suits pressed regularly they will be out of favor with the ladies? Honestly, I do wonder why some enterprising advertising man hasn't taken this tack. It ought to work.

As far back as 1920, a visiting English woman, Berta Ruck, the novelist, wrote of our men:

"What one expected to see everywhere was the American woman escorted by the type of American man I saw as the young warrior of that Peace Procession. But here in this country of his he seems to have melted away into the minority. His place beside that radiant countrywoman of his seems to be usurped by—well, the type of American man who has never fought at all except in the money market. The American business man who, during the absence of the American fighting man, seems to have been living on the Fat of the Land to the verge of getting his country known as the Land of the Fat. Never in my life have I seen so many overfed-looking middle-aged men as I have in one day of traveling through the States. Surely it is not necessary for any man, just because he has passed the age of forty and has found success in business to lose his Romeo waistline. . . . Why the captive balloon silhouette of the American man above the fighting age limit? . . . These American sleeping cars have given me Man in an aspect new and altogether hideous. Man, educated and prosperous, at ten o'clock in the morning still shirtsleeved and unshaven. Unshaved!"

And so on and on. Don't be annoyed just because the critic is an English woman. She is a particularly nice and friendly one, I happen to know, and she was genuinely horrified at the examples of masculine sloppiness encountered. Does her verdict seem too harsh? Look around you the next time you are riding on the subway. And wonder, after you've taken a good long look, why some of the copy writers do not direct their broadsides at the stronger sex.

IN a magazine article concerning the life and love of Beatrice d'Este, I encountered the other day this reason for Beatrice's astonishing success in holding her husband's extremely fickle fancy: "She had infinite variety . . . never bored her husband . . . was never too tired to please. She danced for him on the day of her death." The italics are not mine but the writer's. Evidently the latter was lost, rapt in contemplation of so superb a wife.



"Football heroes ought to learn to keep their fingernails trim"

What an astonishing civilization ours is when Beatrice's day-of-death dance is held up as a model of wifely conduct to girls, and the very boys they hope to enslave aren't even tidy enough to wear garters for their socks!

Personally, I am all for the installation, in each prep school, of a charm department. I think football heroes ought to learn to keep their fingernails trim before they are really allowed on the field. I don't like Nice Nellies but I really don't believe our boys would be rendered hopelessly effeminate if a little of the old fear-psychology were planted in their minds early, as it is in the minds of girls.

Those of us who are lucky enough to have husbands who take a little trouble with their looks, who bother to be mannerly and amusing, who keep the waistline where it belongs, out of sight, have no right, of course, to raise our voices in a wail of desolation. But how many pretty and delightful girls do we all know who are married to clumsy, faintly slovenly males! And nobody even remotely suggests to the aforesaid husbands that they do anything about "holding" their wives. It is still assumed that once got a wife is permanent like the shrubs put in by the landscape gardener.

Yet all the testimony of the Reno courts points to the fact that wives do need to be held. I think many a little woman has hied herself off to the family lawyer because John just wouldn't keep his shoes shined, or perhaps (unlovely thought!) didn't like soap and water well enough. Maybe if John were warned, threatened and reminded by the back pages of the magazines, he'd acquire some sort of conscience about his looks. Manufacturers of beauty preparations for the use of the male to urge their prospective customers to enhance their physical charms, but always with a view to catching a wife, not to holding one already caught.

The economic position of woman has, naturally, greatly altered since Beatrice d'Este's time. Girls and men who work shoulder to shoulder, who go to the same schools, smoke the same cigarettes, fly the same planes, are naturally inclined to assume toward each other a slightly different relationship than that worn by the jaded Duke and his frightened little bride. The thing that surprises me is that the inequalities of such a relationship should be cited in this day and age to young women who obviously are not having any, thanks very much!

It used to be the thing, when a little girl flew into a childish tantrum and acted natural, to say in a warning tone: "If you keep on like that you'll never get a husband."

What a threat that was! I imagine it's still done in remote sections of these United States. What I should like to see is an organization of fiery modern mothers who would pledge themselves to say to their young sons, every time they fail to wash behind their ears: "If you keep on like that you'll never get a wife!"

Accurate Measurements.

Use three tablespoons of lemon juice when a recipe calls for the juice of a lemon. This is safer than counting the lemons as this fruit varies greatly in the amount of juice to each lemon.

Woman to Instruct Women in Aviation

WOMEN who talked of [illegible]pans and embroidery now wish to speak authoritatively of propeller wash and crank shafts.

Aviation, almost exclusively man's domain for 25 years, has attracted women to the extent that the Curtiss Flying Service, New York, noting the modern trend, has created a woman's department.

Miss Clara Trenckmann, who believes that until women get on everyday speaking terms with aviation it cannot attain its fullest development, heads the department.

To her goes the task of putting the language of flying into the vernacular of women all over the country. She will operate a clearing house of information for women who are interested in flying in any or all its phases.

Current activities of women and the field of aviation will be chronicled in a weekly news bulletin, "Women and Aviation."

Miss Trenckmann, a graduate of the University of Texas, has been in contact with women's activities and with aviation a number of years. Besides serving on the editorial staffs of two national women's magazines and free lancing in aviation, she was the first woman publicity director of a large aviation corporation. That job was with the American Aeronautical Corporation.

Two women pilots are also on the staff of the Curtiss Co. One is Neva Paris, one of the prize winners in the first women's air derby, while the other is Frances Harrell, who will pilot a special Gypsy Moth plane in the forthcoming national air tour.

TRY THESE CARROTS FOR JADED APPETITES

Hard to Resist the Flavor When Cooked This Appetizing Way

A well-known woman cooking authority, realizing the importance of vegetables in the diet, has worked out this new recipe for Flemish Carrots:

Scrape 18 young carrots and slice lengthwise into thin strips like matches. Melt 6 tablespoons butter. Add carrots, 1 tablespoon sugar, [illegible] teaspoon of chopped parsley, and salt. Cover the pan and let simmer until tender, about 20 minutes, turning frequently with a spoon. Add cream, stir well, heat and serve.

Remember the importance of vegetable foods in the daily diet, and profit by the old secret rediscovered by four famous women cooking experts. Add a dash of sugar to each vegetable while it is cooking. The little sugar works wonders for freshness, color and taste.

Sugar is the supreme condiment for developing the delicate, natural flavors of fruits and vegetables so that children and adults will be tempted to eat variety. The balanced diet is so important in promoting health that it is well to serve stewed and fresh fruits daily. If your family does not drink enough milk, serve milk shakes, eggnogs and milk desserts, such as junkets and custards. Add a dash of sugar to cooking cereal to develop its flavor. Serve cakes and cookies containing chocolate or cocoanut, ices and ice creams, canned berries and fruits, or candy for dessert. A bit of sweet makes the meal complete. The Sugar Institute.

Are you a slave to your powder-puff?

LIFE today is too full of fun and activity to waste any of it in powdering unnecessarily. And truly smart women—poised, assured—don't make themselves conspicuous by constant use of a vanity case.

If you'd like to forget your face for the whole busy day, try Armand Cold Cream Powder. It's miraculously soft and fine, with just a bit of cold cream to give it body and lasting quality. Rub it well into the puff before applying. Hours afterward, others will envy your freshness. $1 at your dealer's. Ask him also about "Find Yourself," a fascinating book of beauty helps.

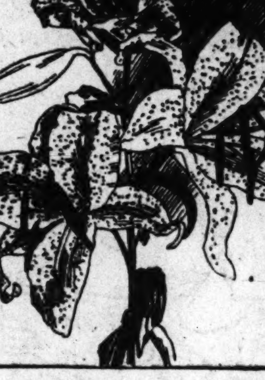
THE GARDEN IN THE AUTUMN

(National Garden Bureau.)

LILIES YOU OUGHT TO GROW



LILIES have engrossed the attention of gardeners and tested their skill for many years and many of them have been given up in despair as hopeless. Nearly all of them can be grown if their needs are studied and provided for. There are, however, a sufficient number of this handsome and stately genus that will grow under almost any conditions except those of heat and drought so that the difficult sorts may be left for the collector and fancier.

Lilies easily grown that belong in every garden are the madonna lily, Lilium candidum; the native Turk's cap, L. superbum; the old-fashioned tiger lily, L. tigrinum; the candelabra lilies, L. umbellatum or dauricum as it is sometimes known; the coral lily of Siberia, L. tenuifolium; and the handsome substitute for the Easter lily, the regal lily, L. regale. The last is likely to give more trouble than the others. To these should be added the Japanese section L. reseum or rubrum and the magnificent gold banded lily, L. auratum, even if the latter lasts only a year. It is so beautiful it is worth an annual purchase.

No bulb has made its way as rapidly as the regal lily brought from the interior of China by E. H. Wilson of the Arnold Arboretum only a few years ago. Although it is as readily grown from seed as the common perennials, blooming the third year from seed and often the second year, the supply seldom equals the demand. It is a white trumpet, similar in shape to the familiar Easter lily. The outside of the trumpet is tinted with purple and the throat is golden yellow. It is hardy except in one particular. While the bulbs stand any degree of freezing safely, the young shoots, as they appear in early spring, are very susceptible to freezing and in case of unseasonable weather must be protected. If they are frozen the season's bloom is gone.

All of these lilies except the madonna lily should be planted deep, about six inches. The madonna lily should not have more than two inches of soil above its crown. They all need fairly moist conditions but with good drainage so that water cannot stand about the bulb. It is usual to take the precaution of planting the bulb in a pocket of sand. Another in the case of extra choice lilies is to place an inverted flower pot in the hole and plant the bulb on the top of the pot to assure perfect drainage.

This is the original LARGE SIZE Eveready Layerbilt No. 486 for heavy duty—price, $4.25, only 25 cents more than the Eveready cylindrical cell battery of the same size, No. 770. There is another Eveready Layerbilt in Medium Size, No. 485—price, $2.95, only 20 cents more than the Eveready cylindrical cell "B" battery, No. 772.

FOR THE NEW SEASON BUY
THE RADICALLY DIFFERENT EVEREADY LAYERBILT

RADIO programs are now improving from night to night—now is the time to get them with a re-vigorated receiver—add new pep and punch to your reception with a set of new Eveready Layerbilt "B" Batteries. These are the exclusive, unique batteries built of flat cells, which make connection with each other automatically. Only two broad connecting bands are required, ⅜ inch wide, and only five husky solderings—reliability! Contrast this patented construction with an ordinary type battery assembled of separate, individual cells, needing 29 fine wires and 60 solderings—89 places where trouble can come!

Eveready Layerbilts also contain more active materials, for the flat cells fill more of the space within the battery box. Thus you get much longer life—added convenience and economy. For reliability and satisfaction, to get the most for your money and the best results from your receiver, use Eveready Layerbilt "B" Batteries. Look for the name printed large on the label.

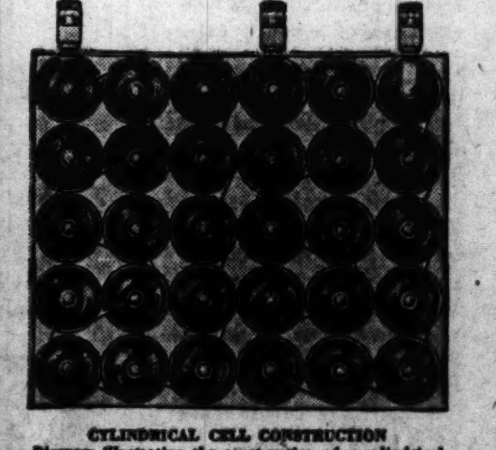
EVEREADY LAYERBILT CONSTRUCTION
Diagram illustrating the simplicity of the Eveready Layerbilt construction. Only two broad contact bands and two fine soldered connections. No wires except the terminal wires. It's all battery. Layerbilt construction is an exclusive Eveready feature. Only Eveready makes Layerbilt Batteries.



CYLINDRICAL CELL CONSTRUCTION
Diagram illustrating the construction of a cylindrical cell "B" battery. Two solderings per cell, or 60 in all, and 29 fine wires—29 chances for trouble. Note waste spaces between cells.

I HATE TO LOOK AT YOUR WINTER CLOTHES I AM AFRAID THE MOTHS ARE IN THEM AS USUAL
GET IT OVER WITH AND KNOW THE WORST
LAST YEAR I PACKED 'EM SO CAREFULLY AND THE MOTHS GOT IN IN SPITE OF IT ITS UNCANNY!
I CAN'T BELIEVE IT!
IT'S BEYOND BELIEF!
WHAT'S BEYOND BELIEF?
NOT A MOTH IN ANY SUIT! AND IT'S THE FIRST TIME I DIDN'T PUT ANYTHING IN TO KEEP THE MOTHS OUT

WELL, WELL, GEORGE OLD BOY, WHAT'S THIS I HEAR ABOUT THAT TOUGH WALL STREET OUTFIT TAKING YOU TO THE CLEANERS? THAT OLD EASY MONEY STUFF GETS A LOT OF US. HOW MUCH DID THEY GRAB, GEORGE?
OH I DIDN'T LOSE MUCH. IT'S JUST A LOAN—IN A WAY. I'LL GET IT BACK SOONER OR LATER.
LISTEN GEORGE, GIVE IN RIGHT NOW ON THAT IDEA. MY BROTHER-IN-LAW WENT THROUGH THAT. HE INHERITED MONEY. EVERYBODY ADVISED HIM TO PUT IT IN SOME SAFE PLACE, SO HE SLAPPED IT INTO THE MARKET. IN ONE WEEK HE WAS TALKING TO HIMSELF.
WELL IF I LOST TWICE AS MUCH AS I DID IT WOULDN'T AFFECT ME LIKE THAT OR
ELMER TALKED THE SAME WAY RIGHT AFTER HIS AFFAIR. THEN IN A WEEK OR SO HE NOTICED BULLS AND BEARS WHEREVER HE WENT. AND HE GOT A JOB RUNNING AN ELEVATOR SO HE COULD HEAR PEOPLE HOLLER GOING UP.
JUST AS MANY PEOPLE WOULD HOLLER GOING DOWN TOO. WOULDN'T THEY?
LISTEN GEORGE, WHY ARGUE ABOUT DETAILS? ELMER WAS JUST LIKE YOU. YOUR BUILD, YOUR LOOKS, YOUR EVERYTHING. IN ONE MONTH, ONE, MIND YOU, HE GOT SO BAD THAT EVEN THOUGH HE WAS MY BROTHER-IN-LAW I FELT SORRY FOR HIM AND—LISTEN LOUIE, I MUST TODDLE ON. SEE YOU AGAIN SOMETIME—MAYBE.
